

LOCAL AND PERSONAL

One of the chief events of the social season will be the Alumni tennis ball which will occur this evening at the armory. This affair promises to be one of the most clever dancing parties of the year. A large attendance is expected by those in charge. The pepful music, always a feature of the Alumni parties, will be much in evidence this evening. Dancing will start at 8:30 p. m. The patronesses for the occasion will be Mrs. A. J. Vance, Mrs. M. L. Alford and Mrs. F. W. Thorne.

James H. Driscoll, of Ashland, chief game warden for this district, who just returned from an official tour of the Klamath country, attended a conference of the wardens and other officials here, in company with Chief Driscoll, at that time. Conditions in their field of work are reported to be better than usual at this time of the year.

JOHN POST, LYRIC TENOR. AT THE STAR THEATER

John Post

The lyric operatic tenor who appears on the extraordinary vaudeville bill at the Star theater tonight and tomorrow night, Mr. Post will sing a selection from the opera, "La Tosca," in Italian. He will also sing a popular song and the "Blue Danube" waltz song and a German selection. Mr. Post will sing anything by request. Leave requests at the box office. The music-loving public will find a real treat at the Star tonight and tomorrow night. There will be two other first-class acts on the same bill, including Al V. Page in a monologue which will take the house by storm. Walters and Page will offer a singing act of the very best and most up to date. This will be the big added attraction at the Star tonight.

IRISH REBELS CAPITULATE

(Continued from page one) had been occupied for several days by the rebels and even at this time snipers in houses in the vicinity are shooting at intervals. As the correspondent approached the castle a party of more than 100 captured members of the Sinn Fein marched by under escort toward Richmond jail, where more than 700 are now held. Many of the men were in green uniform. One wore the uniform of the Irish volunteers and others were in civilian clothes. Numbers of them were wounded and suffering, but most of them held up their heads defiantly. The soldiers escorting them were men who had fought all through the uprising and were more bitter against their rebellious fellow countrymen than the troops brought over from England. This feeling seems to be shared by most of the population of Dublin. Green is Deserted St. Stephens Green, where the rebels entrenched themselves as soon as the movement was begun Monday, was almost deserted. Around Trinity college and the old Irish parliament quiet reigns. The office of the training corps quartered in the college had done much to suppress the uprising. In places such as Middle Abbey, Abbey Mary and Henry street, only a few girders and window frames of some houses remain. Along the east side of Sackville street from Henry street to O'Connell bridge, the buildings are battered beyond recognition. The postoffice is merely a smouldering frame work. The stone Young Men's Christian association building on the same side of the way, was perforated by eight shots, the O'Riordan club by two and the blind institution by two. Bodies of slain rebels were being carried away in groups by soldiers, many of them having been shot several times. When the authorities gave orders that the people were to be allowed to enter the streets today some of the poor began looting. Proclamation Found In the debris was found a printed proclamation issued in the name of the president of the provisional government, the text of which follows: "The provisional government to the citizens of Dublin: The provisional government of the Irish republic salutes the citizens of Dublin on the momentous occasion of the proclamation of a sovereign independent Irish state, now in course of being established by Irishmen in arms. Republican forces now hold the lines taken up at 12 noon Easter Monday, and nowhere, despite the fierce and almost continuous attacks of British troops have the lines been broken through." The Irish commandant, J. H. Pearce, who is now a prisoner, is a schoolmaster. He was wounded by a shot in the leg. Before being captured he took a most active part in the uprising and was looked to as the head of the movement. The postoffice, which was in the hands of the rebels most of the week, when retaken was found to have been badly damaged by fire and shot. Rebels in County Heath Reports from the provisional districts show that the greatest disturbance outside the city occurred in County Heath, where armed rebels in parties were still terrorizing the countryside yesterday. In other districts there were disorders. At one place north of Dublin a small detachment of the Royal Irish constabulary, commanded by an inspector, was surrounded by rebels and disarmed. It is not known whether the rebels held the policeman prisoner, but it is assumed they did. The authorities there were dispatched there in armed automobiles. Over the rest of the country all was quiet except at Ennisceary and Wexford. Many of the prisoners were captured red-handed with weapons. Hand-dreds of others are being detained on suspicion of complicity in the outbreak. One man was caught in a chimney from which he had been slipping for four days and nights. He held a position of trust in the office of a steamship company. The casualties up to the present are said to be very numerous, although the troops have not suffered as heavily as might have been expected.

They take their time YOU can't make good cigars in a hurry. The makers of the OWL don't try to "speed up". Instead of hurrying the process of curing, they let Nature take her time to do it right. Eighteen long months the leaf is curing—mellowing—developing flavor. Then, the workmanship. It is hand-workmanship throughout. It is careful workmanship. The result is, the OWL is always a specially good, satisfying smoke. OWL CIGAR 5¢ The Million Dollar Cigar M. A. GUNST & CO. INCORPORATED

He followed mining until 1858, when he settled in the old min-

NEEDFUL KNOWLEDGE

Medford People Should Learn to Detect the Approach of Kidney Disease The symptoms of kidney trouble are many. Disordered kidneys often excrete a thick, cloudy, offensive urine, full of sediment, irregular of passage or attended by a sensation of stinging. The back may ache, headaches and dizzy spells may occur and the victim is often weighted down by a feeling of languor and fatigue. Neglect these warnings and there is danger. Delay often proves fatal. You can use no better endorsed kidney remedy than Doan's Kidney Pills. Write Medford post office for their merit.

C. J. Hann, of Waltham, Kansas, a box factory man, is in conference with business men of this city interested in the establishment of a box factory here. Mr. Hann accompanied the party of business men of Medford who made a personal inspection of the proposed route for the Bullis extension toward the Blue Ledge mines Sunday. He is very favorably impressed with the opening here for an enterprise of the kind in which he is personally interested and it is believed that, before he returns to Kansas, he will have concluded to transport his plant to this city.
