DESCRIBES FORESTS OF CRATER LAKE

The heavy mantle of beautiful coniferous forests in Crater Lake National park is only second to Crater lake itself in attractiveness, according to a publication by J. P. Pernot, entitled, "Forests of Crater Lake National Park," just issued by the department of the interior. "Within the confines of the park," says Mr. Pernot, "are more than a dozen cone bearing species—pines, firs, hemlock and others—growing in pure bodies or mixed together forming a confused broken cover. The various trees of the southern Cascades are not generally scattered throughout the mountains, but are distributed in fairly well defined zones at different altitudes." In this publication, which may be purchased from the superintendent of documents, government printing office, Washington, D. C., for 20 cents, are descriptions of the principal species and illustrations showing characteristic types of each tree. Over all of the region excepting the summits of the highest peaks, is spread a wonderful array of evergreen trees, clothing the slopes with dense solemn forests or dotted around mountain meadows, canyons and crater rim.

The traveler who makes only a fleeting trip to the park, sees the lake but once and then passes on with but a hazy memory of the best that the region can show. It is better to remain longer within the borders to camp beneath its hemlocks and firs, to explore its peaks and forests and look often and long upon its lake, whose blue waters and wonderful tree and cliff settings leave memories that can never be lost.

253 EXCURSIONISTS VISIT BLUE LEDGE TO INSPECT MINE

More than forty automobiles carried 253 excursionists to the Blue Ledge mining district yesterday, under the direct supervision of the Grizzlies, assisted by the Commercial club. It was the greatest "hike" event in the history of the Grizzlies and one of the most pretentious outings in the life of the local Commercial club.

The supreme feature of the excursion, aside from the universal enjoyment of the trip and the visit among the piles of copper and gold by a local multitude, was the fact that it was a business investigation. Practically every member of the big and hilarious party went into that vast mining region for more intimate knowledge of what it really possesses. Everyone, so far as heard, returned with the desire to urge the city of Medford to do everything in its power in a legitimate business way to extend the Bullis railway line into that region at the earliest possible moment.

Old Timers Greatly Surprised. Even old timers in this valley, who had never visited the district until yesterday, came back enthusiastically declaring that they were surprised that newspaper accounts of that region had never yet given an adequate description of the vast mountains of ore, exposed on every ridge and slope and in numbers of deep canyons, of which that region may boast. Mining men of extended experience in other mining regions were surprised that such ledges and veins as are exposed by the development work already done there had not been reached long ago with every modern means and encouragement for full operation.

It was expression after expression of surprise on every hand, as the big party climbed and struggled and scratched and picked its way through gorges and over sharp ridges to see as much as could be seen in a few hours' visit.

The excursion assumed the proportions of a splendid enterprise as it busied itself collectively with the work of obtaining information on which to base future judgment and action respecting the proposed construction of a railroad to that immense deposit of wealth undeveloped at a timely period in the resumption of the progress of this valley. It was the unanimous vote of those who attended this "investigation" that this is the psychological moment for the initiation of that vastly important movement.

The Big Luncheon. The luncheon at Elben at noon was really a sumptuous affair. No banquet ever had a more toothsome spread and no association of banquets ever enjoyed a repast with greater relish and gusto. "Hungry! Why that bunch of mountain climbers appeared to have been fasting for a week for this feast. Mrs. C. D. Hoon made the coffee. Isn't that enough to recommend it? Had it been really intoxicating, not many of that hungry and thirsty party would have been able to reach home last night. But it was exhilarating and stimulating—and as a result, 164 members of the party climbed far into mountain recesses beyond the reach of autos.

But the Grizzlies' secretary-journalist promises a write-up of the excursion for tomorrow. The foreword is therefore, merely a foreword, intending to convey the news that every member of the big crowd returned home safely and unhurt.

CHRISTIANITY ONLY SOLUTION INDUSTRIAL ILLS SAYS JOHN D. JR.

CLEVELAND Ohio, May 15.—John D. Rockefeller, Jr., Major General Leonard Wood and Assistant Secretary of the Navy Franklin D. Roosevelt, were speakers at today's sessions of the international Y. M. C. A. convention here, and their presence caused unusual interest in the day's program of the convention. Mr. Rockefeller told of welfare work being done in the mines of Colorado, which are owned by the Rockefeller interests. General Wood and Mr. Roosevelt will appear this afternoon at the army and navy section.

Mr. Rockefeller urged a campaign to be called "the every Christian man at work movement." Multitudes of men whose names appear on the church rolls as christians are merely marking time, said Mr. Rockefeller, like soldiers parading the streets in dress uniform instead of rendering active services like the men in khaki.

"Christian manhood, like muscular or mental power, is only to be maintained by its use," he said. "I call upon the ministers of this land to cause to action that vast horde of christian men enrolled in the churches but seldom seen in the pews, who are only waiting for some service which requires many qualities to be again brought into active connection with the church."

"As we face the great industrial problems which are arising daily, it seems clear that the only hope of their permanent and satisfactory solution lies in the practice of the doctrine of the brotherhood of man. When men of widely separated stations are thrown together, come to know each other, to admire the strong and many qualities which they see in each other, when they are working side by side for the advancement of a common interest, then only does personal distrust, hatred and misunderstanding give way to a spirit of fair play, justice and a desire for the common good."

H. S. GRADUATES SET GOOD EXAMPLE

The class of '16 of the Medford high school has set many examples that are worthy of praise, but one in particular showing they have the proper spirit to be community builders is that they have had their beautiful invitations and personal cards done by a home firm.

In former years the classes have for some reason unknown always sent out of town for this very necessary part of a graduation, but the class of '16, setting an example for their elders and all citizens, patronized home industry and the results are declared to be more than gratifying. Not only did they save money, but they left an example for future classes that can be followed with profit.

The invitations and cards were obtained from the Medford Printing company, and the class was so well pleased that they voted this firm a vote of thanks for their many courtesies in connection with the order.

HUBBARD HIT BY BOUNDING PEBBLE

One of the incidents of the climb by many of the Sunday excursionists from the Blue Ledge camp to the Blue Ledge mine, proper, was that in which Port Hubbard caught a bounding pebble on the bridge of his nose, causing the blood to flow in profusion. Some one above Mr. Hubbard's party started a few pebbles on the trail. The climb was "nearly straight up" to the Blue Ledge tunnel. Mr. Hubbard heard the pebbles on the "slide" and turned quickly to see what it was. A sharp pebble instantly caught him between the eyes. Had it struck an inch to either side, it might have destroyed an eyeball. He washed the injured member with a snowball and thanked the stars he saw (which were numerous) that the leaping, whizzing bit of copper ore missed his optics.

"I DON'T SUFFER ANY MORE"

"Feel Like a New Person," says Mrs. Hamilton.

New Castle, Ind.—"From the time I was eleven years old until I was seventeen I suffered each month so I had to be in bed. I had headache, backache and such pains I would cramp double every month. I did not know what it was to be easy a minute. My health was all run down and the doctors did not do me any good. A neighbor told my mother about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I took it, and now I feel like a new person. I don't suffer any more and I am regular every month."—Mrs. HAZEL HAMILTON, 822 South 15th St.

When a remedy has lived for forty years, steadily growing in popularity and influence, and thousands upon thousands of women declare they owe their health to it, is it not reasonable to believe that it is an article of great merit?

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential), Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

Preliminary hearing will be heard before Justice of the Peace Taylor on Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock. Constable Hammond has gone to Gold Hill and Grants Pass today to subpoena witnesses. Barney, who is past middle aged and unmarried, has nothing to say to officers about the charge against him. He is well known in the placer districts of southern Oregon.

HUGHES NOT ACCEPTABLE

Roosevelt can or will be set aside and Hughes substituted as a second choice. If Perkins had such an idea he could not put it over. The thousand delegates who will come to the progressive convention will come as Roosevelt men first, but they will be progressive party men second, and it may be predicted here that the progressive party will be continued as a party nationally and to a certain extent locally, and it Roosevelt is not the nominee of both parties and will not take the nomination of the progressive party alone—this to be decided at the time the conventions are held and to be determined by the choice of the republicans—there will be a progressive party candidate and a third party ticket in the field.
