Under the directorship of George Andrews, the Medford and Ashland choruses united in a grand concert on Friday evening last, thereby opening the Chautauqua season. The program was the same as recently given by the Medford Choral society in the Page theater, consisting of selections in Latin from Gounod's Mass, St. Cecilia and other choruses from the great masters. There was a very large and cordially appreciative audience, and the various numbers on the program were rendered with artistic effect and much enjoyed. The soloists acquitted themselves with credit. Will Vawter, Miss Florence Hazelrigg, Mrs. George Andrews, Mr. Edmonds, Mrs. Guy Childers, William Isaacs and Mr. Rasor of Ashland sustaining with marked ability the various solo responsibilities of the evening. The difficult trios of the mass were rendered very finely. A notable feature of the concert was the splendid work of Carlton Jones, his two violin solos being immensely enjoyed and an encore being insisted upon. It was not generally known until afterwards that the second solo was the artist's own composition. It was a gem and should be rushed to print. The duet between Miss Sullivan and Mr. Jones was also greatly enjoyed, Miss Venita Hamilton playing the piano accompaniment. Mrs. Marsh accompanied the chorus and the singing of the various numbers was splendidly supported by an efficient orchestra. The ladies' chorus in "List the Cherubim Host" was a very choice number also, and the entire concert was a complete and gratifying success, and a further and well-merited endorsement of the musical ability of the director. This first concert of the augmented societies of Ashland and Medford assures for the valley an organization equal to any demands that the future may make upon it.
