It wasn't the first time Miss Murray had driven a blue-blooded aristocrat of the light harness into the

"But I'm not the person to tell about it," she said. "The colt just went around the track like sixty tearing me along behind. That's all."

"It's so wonderful—you're setting a world's record. So perfectly splendid," said admiringly women friends.

"Was it?" grinned Miss Murray. "I feel sort of famous, and I don't know whether I like it or not." "I don't know a think about real racing—not a thing," she stated. "But I've loved horses all my life and have ridden them even since I was a small child."

BOMB SUSPECT BEGINS FIGHT TO SECURE LIBERTY

SAN FRANCISCO, July 31.—Attorneys for Edward D. Nolan, a machinist held in connection with the preparedness parade bomb outrage a week ago Saturday, began a fight today for his liberty, which would, it was said, force the police to bring their charges against him. Mentioning the petition in habeas corpus of Israel Weinberg, another suspect, was dismissed and he listened to the reading of a charge of murder.

The police theory of the crime now after a week of checking up is that the conspirators originally planned to hurl the bomb from the roof of a building in the heart of the business section as the United railways employees were passing the point in the parade. A miscalculation of time after the bomb had been set for two o'clock and the marchers had not appeared, caused the dynamiters to become nervous and to hurry to Sturt and Market streets where the bomb was abandoned because the street car men's division was inaccessible.

Captain Duncan Mathewson, head of the bomb bureau said that Thomas Mooney, Mrs. Mooney, Weinberg and two other suspects, waited in the street at 721 Market street until in panic they tried to recall the man with the bomb from the roof.

COMPANY SEVEN BACK FROM PRACTICE

Thirty-four members of Company 7 C. A. C. O. N. G. returned to Medford Sunday afternoon, after spending two strenuous weeks in practice with the big guns at Fort Stevens at the mouth of the Columbia River. The remaining 20 members of the company stopped off in Portland, Salem and other points as the transportation issued to the men individually, allowed them to do.

Rainy weather was encountered during most of the time spent at the fort. Company 7, however, was installed in the barracks, vacated when the regulars left for Vancouver, where they relieved infantry regulars sent to the border.

The company members report an enjoyable time at the camp, although the order was work from 5:30 till six, with drill, exercises, police duty and the actual practice at the big guns. The men all returned in fine physical condition and are now looking forward to next year's encampment.

Advertisement for OWL CIGAR. Features a large illustration of an owl and the text: 'Why the square end?' 'Have you ever noticed how many expensive cigars from Cuba have the square-end shape? Of course you know there is a reason for that. The reason is this: Of all cigar shapes, the square-end is the one most likely to give a free-drawing, even-burning smoke. You can see that this is so in the case of the OWL. Notice that the blended leaves of the OWL filler run all the way down to the burning end. When you light the leaves evenly, you know they're going to burn evenly. No air-holes or torn ends of leaves to deflect the draught and make the OWL gutter. That square-end cures that. Notice, too, that you get the full flavor of the OWL from the first puff. Not an over-balanced taste of wrapper, but the full balanced flavor of the cigar. We selected the square-end shape of the OWL as we select the leaves and the Sumatra wrappers—to make the OWL a good cigar.' Includes the OWL CIGAR logo and 'The Million Dollar Cigar' slogan.
