HUGHES AND HUERTA

M R. HUGHES, the candidate who does not know what he would do if president, challenges the administration to deny his charge that President Wilson had authorized John Lind to say to the minister from a foreign power to Mexico that Huerta would be put out of the presidency of Mexico if he did not get out voluntarily.

No one denies that the Wilson administration put Huerta out of business—least of all the president. It is one of the accomplishments for which he should be proud. It saved Mexico from a murderous despotism by a blood-spattered assassin.

Mr. Hughes does not say what he would have done had he been president. Would he have recognized Huerta?

Why should this scoundrel have been recognized? Huerta basely conspired against President Madero and used the army under his command against the constituted authorities to overthrow them.

Should he have been recognized for such treasonable acts?

Huerta caused Madero to be imprisoned and then murdered. Should he have been recognized for that bloody act? Huerta caused the best members of the Mexican congress to be arrested and executed, even causing the tongue of a senator who had the courage to denounce him to be cut out before he was executed. Were such barbarities sufficient reason to recognize him?

Huerta was a drunken, dissolute, medieval monster who set aside the constitution and laws of his land, and in their place endeavored to establish a military tyranny based upon his power to imprison and kill.

The Mexican people, with other Spanish-American peoples, took the United States of America as its inspiring example and threw off the Spanish yoke years ago. By so doing they aided this country in maintaining its independence. Had those people not done so, the civil war in this country would undoubtedly have been followed by European intervention because of their foothold in Mexico, Central and South America.

Spain, instead of losing her dominions by revolution of the people of her various American colonies, would have sold them to other European countries or had them taken from her by them.

During the civil war Maximilian of Austria, with the aid of Napoleon III, set up a monarchy in Mexico, and this country started an army on the way to overthrow him, but the Mexican revolutionists succeeded in doing so without our aid.

We forbid European nations from acquiring territory in this hemisphere because we consider it dangerous to our independence.

We have gone further under Woodrow Wilson in saying that the peoples of the southern countries are entitled to a republican form of government. If it is best for us, it is best for them.

Liberty is necessary for the advancement of Mexico, as it was for the thirteen colonies. Mr. Hughes insinuates Huerta could have maintained a stable government. When was a stable government maintained by military force, short of extermination and enslavement of the people affected?

Spain failed in Mexico, Central and South America and in Cuba. Turkey failed in Armenia, Bulgaria and Serbia. Spain failed in Holland. England in South Africa, and finally surrendered the government of that country to the Boers she was supposed to have conquered.

To say that a drunken creature like Huerta could have done so is the campaign clap-trap of one who is without sympathy with enslaved and oppressed.

Mr. Wilson said nothing nobler than his declaration that we should view the Mexican situation from the standpoint of the Mexican people. It is the welfare of her millions of downtrodden people and their future, and not the interests of alien adventurers and investors that should claim the attention and efforts of all liberty-loving people.

If there is any great number of people in this country that would in a spirit of revenge seek to conquer Mexico, the avenging of wrongs is only the excuse, but robbery is the real motive.

Once installed there, the plunderers would raise the cry "that once the flag is raised it shall not come down."

Let us beware. Those who would conquer and bind the Mexicans would do it for commercial gain and commercial greed is always deaf to the appeals of the submerged. We know that from its opposition to laws against child labor in this country. Let us beware.

Those who would enslave the Mexican people would not hesitate to more firmly rivet the shackles of our own working class, and nothing would help them to do so more than to bring the laborers of this country into competition with the slave peons of Mexico, which would surely ensue if we conquered that country.

As the New York World puts it: It is a fine "party of Lincoln" whose leaders applaud assassination in the interest of human slavery and wear mourning for the assassin.

EM-TEES

Mary Pickford, the beautiful "movie" actress, says: "It is easy for a pretty girl to be good if she is rich, but a pretty girl who is poor has a lot of temptations. The pretty girl who is poor is a little bit in the position of the boy in the grocery shop: 'A grocer leaned over the counter and yelled at a boy, who stood close to an apple barrel. 'Are you tryin' to steal them apples, boy? 'No—no, sir, the boy faltered. 'I'm tryin' not to!'"

The chap who courts more than one girl at a time is courting trouble.

A SENSIBLE START.

The couple were married at the home of the bride's parents, where they will remain until the bridegroom gets a job.—The Centralia (Mo.) Courier.

HAD TO OBEY ORDERS.

An old colored uncle was found by the preacher prowling in his barnyard late one night. "Uncle Calhoun," said the preacher sternly, "it can't be good for your rheumatism to be prowling around here in the rain and cold."

"Doctors orders, sah," the old man answered.

"Doctor's orders?" said the preacher. "Did he tell you to go prowling around all night?"

"No sah, not exactly, sah," said Uncle Cal, "but he done ordered me chicken broth."

FACETIOUS.

It is announced that in a new building to be erected in this city in which there are to be bachelor quarters, a dumb waiter is to be installed. It would be well, too, if she was also deaf and blind.—The Sapulpa (Okla.) Herald.

A WIFE BIT SANE.

While a certain Scottish minister was conducting religious services in an asylum for the insane, one of the inmates cried out wildly:

"I say, have we got to listen to this?"

The minister, surprised and confused, turned to the keeper and said: "Shall I stop speaking?"

"No, no; gang along, gang along. That will not happen again. That man only has one lucid moment every seven years."
