CENTRAL POINT

Miss Theresa Ellestad is paying her parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. T. Ellestad, a short visit this week. Miss Ellestad is employed as teacher in the Kerby district in Josephine county.

Many of Rev. John C. Stille's staunch friends gathered at the M. E. parsonage Wednesday evening to pay a last visit to this noble gentleman and his mother before they leave for fields of work unknown. A very enjoyable evening was spent and the only thing that darkened the evening's pleasure came at parting, when the full realization of the congregation's loss dawned upon the members, at the time they bade farewell to one who had served well and faithfully.

Miss Ina Austin of Trail arrived in town the first of the week to prepare for teachers' institute.

A gloom fell on the community Friday when it became known that Mrs. Rebecca Moore, a noble and much-loved old lady of this city, had suddenly passed away. Mrs. Moore had been a resident of Central Point for a large number of years and was a great favorite with every one.

Mrs. Mae Maullly, who is teaching at Long Branch, spent the week end with Central Point friends.

Mrs. Brida Sanderson and young son, Jack Merritt Sanderson, of Tacoma, Wash., arrived here Sunday to attend the funeral of Mrs. Sanderson's grandmother, Mrs. Rebecca Moore.

Miss Gladys Holmes arrived here from Hanchuria Saturday to spend a few days with her parents before going to teachers' institute at Grants Pass this week.

Miss Ella White spent Saturday in Medford.

Central Point was well represented at the Elks' carnival in Medford last week.

Earl Scott of Phoenix was a recent out-of-town visitor here.

Carl Nidermyer of Jacksonville, accompanied by Mr. Reiss, the singing evangelist, attended church services here Sunday evening, at which the latter showed the right spirit and gave a very rousing and greatly enjoyed song service.

Miss Maggie Foley of Kanes creek is among Central Point friends and relatives this week.

Judge Charles B. Gay and wife of Medford spent Sunday afternoon with Mr. Gay's parents here.

Mrs. V. D. Brophy of Medford spent the week end with relatives here.

Curley Wilson, republican candidate for sheriff, was in our midst on Sunday.

James S. Hall, father of Court Hall, who was injured during last week when he was thrown from a jitney, his head striking the pavement, was operated on at Sacred Heart hospital this afternoon by Drs. Stearns and Pickel. At 1:30 he came out of the influence of ether but shortly passed into a stupor. He is not expected to survive.

The operation disclosed a circle of about an inch in diameter on his skull which showed a large number of small fractures. Mr. and Mrs. John Hall, the former a brother of the injured man, are expected from Lake Creek this evening.

ANOTHER CRISIS IMPENDS

W. G. SHEPHERD, the famous American war correspondent, who has spent the past two years on the European battlefields, draws this vivid picture of the effects of war, in which all the European nations are trying to involve the United States:

In war thinking men become unthinking. Men of business, science and achievement stop their work and become mere physical units in an army. Youth drop their life dreams and their futures. Ambitions crumble, home and family plans are swept aside. Progress, whose figure we carve in marble to decorate our proud buildings, become a withered, paralyzed wreck. The blight of hate reaches into the innermost corner of every city, of every home, of every heart. Worse things than death fall to the lot of millions of human beings in war, including material and moral decay.

The effect of the American policy of neutrality and peace abroad has not been to make Americans "blush with shame" because their government was sane enough to avoid senseless conflict, but has, on the contrary, been to make Americans proud of their country. As Mr. Shepherd says:

We are proud of American sanity and of American statesmanship and that cool, calm reckoning of the American people which prevented them from being stampeded.

It was a fine, thrilling thing to be an American in European capitals, and to know that in our own capital at Washington there were men as shrewd and as far sighted as any of the statesmen of Europe; to know also, that the statesmen in Washington were steadier, saner, less influenced by hate and bitterness and better able to judge right and wrong, than the wisest statesmen in Europe.

And yet we have Americans in the United States whose main occupation at present is traducing the president of the United States for not having plunged the nation into the holocaust.

Submarine activity off the Atlantic coast threatens to raise another international crisis, which may precipitate war. It is only one of many such occasions in the past—any one of which, handled less skillfully, would have drawn the nation into the mad, insane world war.

We are contemptuously told that another deluge of notes impends. The only alternative to notes is bullets. If notes accomplish better results than bullets, as they have, why resort to bullets? What has a single one of the European belligerents gained by war? Nothing but sorrow, misery and bankruptcy—the loss of millions of humanity.

Is the nation ready to change pilots in this world crisis, to drop the executive who has maintained peace with honor, for an untried and unknown? Are we ready to slide backward towards war and reaction?

SOME TRANSLATOR

WE are hearing a lot in this presidential campaign both from Hughes and Roosevelt, principally Roosevelt, about "translating words into deeds," "squaring actions with words," etc. We are not much given to taunting a man with what he said or did years ago, but we cannot refrain from quoting at this time from a speech made by Roosevelt to a gathering of progressives in 1913. These were the colonel's noble and inspiring words:

Men and women, I would continue the fight even if I stood entirely alone. I shall continue it with a glad and proud heart because it is made in your company.

Win or lose, whatever the outcome, I am with you, and I am for this cause to fight to the end. We are dedicated in this great war for righteousness, and while life lasts we cannot and we will not abandon it.

The men who believe that we will ever betray these ideals or abandon the task which we have set ourselves do not know us and cannot even guess at the faith that inspires us.

This movement will never go back, and whatever may betide in the future, of one thing the disciples of an easy opportunism may rest assured—I will never abandon the principles to which we progressives have pledged ourselves, and I will never abandon the men and women who drew around me to battle for these principles.

And now, three years later, the same Roosevelt, having abandoned all of the principles to which the progressives pledged themselves, and all of the men and women who drew around him to battle for those principles, has joined with Taft, Penrose, Smoot, Crane and others of the same kidney in an attempt to defeat President Wilson, who has been responsible for more real progressive legislation than any president in recent years.

Speaking of "translating words into deeds," our old friend the colonel is some translator, all right.

DEMONSTRATES DEMOCRACY

HENRY FORD was recently described by Charles R. Crane as the greatest practical democrat in this country. It will be noted that democrat is spelled with a small "d."

Crane amplified the statement in this way: "Ford is demonstrating every day in his business that the interest of employer and employe is mutual; that labor is not a commodity to be purchased at the lowest market price; that high wages and short hours mean increased efficiency and increased profits and that the more equitably these profits are divided as between employers and employes, the better the situation of everybody concerned."

We agree with this opinion of Ford and we do not think it is possible to overestimate the significance of the fact that although he is a lifelong republican, he is enthusiastically supporting President Wilson for re-election.

Henry Ford is not afraid that the country is going to smash unless we rebuild the high-tariff wall. He is not asking that the steel that goes into his cars be protected against the pauper steel of Europe.

Henry Ford knows that the way to keep this country prosperous is to preserve our ideals of peace and continue those domestic policies which make for the more equitable distribution of the profits of industry.

It is not strange that Ford is for Wilson. It would be strange if he were not.

MEXICO INSISTS UPON WITHDRAWAL

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., Oct. 10.—Colonel Barragan, chief of staff to First Chief Carranza, said today that an agreement to withdraw American troops from Mexico must be signed and a definite date for withdrawal must be set before any other questions affecting Mexico can be successfully taken up by the Mexican-American commission at Atlantic City.

Colonel Barragan will accompany Filipe Arredondo, Mexican ambassador designate to the United States, to Boston when the latter passes through here tonight on the return trip to his post after conferring with Carranza.

LOCATION SUBMARINE MYSTERY

from submarine raids, it was learned today. In anticipation of a shortage of European goods they have placed in bonded warehouses on the Atlantic coast foreign merchandise valued at about $100,000,000. They began to store this supply soon after the outbreak of the war. If the German raids continue the American merchants will draw on this accumulation of stock.

This supply includes, it is estimated: Coal tar colors valued at $500,000; 2,500,000 yards of wool dress goods worth $500,000; 1,200,000 yards of wool cloths worth more than $1,000,000; about 8,000,000 yards of linens worth $2,500,000; furs worth $500,000; several million square yards of foreign cotton goods and a wide variety of other imported stock worth hundreds of thousands of dollars.

The Frederick VIII, according to her officers, sighted no submarines while passing Nantucket, but had not changed her course. On the voyage from Copenhagen she put in at Kirkwall, Scotland. There the British authorities removed all the mail and Harald Grest, a Swedish consular agent to Costa Rica, whom they charged with making sketches while in the harbor at Kirkwall.

applications to provide for the payment of principal and interest on the liens on or before thirteen years from application, the first two years only payment of interest being required.

A penalty will be imposed for non-payment and a substantial penalty for delinquency. The charter amendment must also provide for the issuance of delinquency certificates against each piece of delinquent property, and due provision made for the foreclosure of liens against the delinquent property. The city will be compelled to buy in delinquency certificates, providing there are no other bidders. The charter shall also provide a method for the sale of delinquent property, with the method followed in the state of Washington, wherein due notice is given of such sale, being suggested as a model to follow.

It is also suggested that the plan provide for the payment of interest—saving by the city.

The council will tonight consider any plan which Mr. Hanson may submit, and it is said by members of the council that definite action may be expected at tonight's session.
