TWENTIETH CENTURY SCHOOL ADVANTAGES

By BLANCHE ST. REET.

Passing 220 Main street yesterday, a prettily decorated window caught my attention. The color scheme was of black and yellow, most appropriate for Halloween, and a clever "poster" proved that the lovely hats that were shown in the window were not for sale, but were on exhibition, and the product of the sewing class of the Medford high school.

Truly we should be thankful that our superintendent has obtained "Masters of Art" in all lines that will prove useful in our children's walks of various chosen professions.

Think, fathers and mothers, of your own limited public school advantages and remember that sewing, baking, and the modern branches our children enjoy was only taught at home or at an expensive training school. Go look at the window, and then feel thankful that we live in the twentieth century.

GERMAN PRINCESS WEDS DRUG CLERK

LONDON, Oct. 15.—The Frankfurter Zeitung announces the marriage of Princess Marie Theresa of Hohenzollern to Otto Kohlfelsen of Innesbruck, an apothecary and descendant of an humble Austrian family. The princess nursed Kohlfelsen while he was in a hospital suffering from an illness contracted on the battlefield.

Two Christmas Presents for the Price of One.

The best family paper and the best fashion magazine—The Youth's Companion and McCall's Magazine, both for $2.19. The Youth's Companion ($2 by itself) has for years been one of the best, most entertaining, and most useful of Christmas presents, crowded with stories, articles, humor, science, and the progress of the world week by week. McCall's Magazine (50 cents by itself) is the most widely circulated fashion magazine in America.

THE YOUTH'S COMPANION.

- 1. The Youth's Companion—52 issues of 1917.
2. All the remaining issues of 1916.
3. The Companion Home Calendar for 1917.
4. McCall's Magazine—12 fashion numbers of 1917.
5. One 15-cent McCall Dress Pattern—your choice from your list number of the magazine—if you send a 2-cent stamp with your selection.

ASK IF 8 HOUR LAW GOING TO BE UNDONE BY HUGHES

NEW YORK, Oct. 19.—The executive committee of the Woodrow Wilson Business Men's National League has issued the following statement on the eight-hour law:

"On September 1, 1916, the congress passed the eight-hour law, affecting railroad trainmen. The law provides that after January 1, 1917, the standard workday for these men shall be eight hours; that their present wage shall not be reduced, and that a commission shall be appointed by the president to study the effects of this eight-hour standard, the commission to report to the congress from six to nine months after January 1, 1917. It provides further that if any of these employees are obliged to work more than eight hours they shall be paid a pro rata rate for such service.

Situation Deadlocked.

"The public is familiar with the situation that led up to the passage of this law. The railroads and the employees were at a deadlock for months, the employees refusing to arbitrate the question of an eight-hour standard and the railroads refusing to grant it, until finally the employees, by vote, gave their representatives authority to call a strike if their demand was not granted by the railroads. The press of the country teamed with reports directing attention to the gravity of the situation and predicting the dire results that would inevitably follow the calling of a strike, and appeals were made to both sides to get together. Had a strike resulted, we all realize the terrible economic loss, as well as loss of life and property, that would have followed. One hundred million people, the greater part of whom were not directly involved in this controversy, would have been affected by this strike.

Loss of Millions.

"From the moment that the railroads issued their embargo order on account of the threatened strike a general letting up in business followed, and even the issuance of this order resulted in the loss of millions of dollars to shippers of perishable goods. Thousands of people who were in different sections of the country for pleasure or business hurried home, fearing that they would not be able to travel in the event of a tie-up of the railroads, and the business of this country was beginning to suffer, even at the prospect of a strike. Finally the president, representing these one hundred million people, as well as the railroads and their employees, after a fruitless effort to harmonize the interests, referred the matter to the congress, and, although on the eve of adjournment, the congress immediately took up this problem and passed a law which saved the country from a serious catastrophe. The passage of this law was not a victory for the railroads, or for the employees—it was a victory for the people, who were most deeply interested.

Entitled to Gratitude.

"The president has promised that upon the reconvening of the congress adequate legislation will be enacted to prevent a recurrence of the impending calamity that overhung this nation. Our gratitude should go out to both the president and the congress for their prompt action in this crisis.

"The Wilson Business Men's National League would like to know whether Mr. Hughes, if elected, intends to repeal this controversy, and this subject is to the danger of precipitating a strike."

The statement is signed by the officers and directors, who are:

PORTLAND FIGHTS EPIDEMIC OF INFANTILE PARALYSIS

PORTLAND, Oct. 19.—The City and County Medical society met last night to discuss and act on the growing epidemic of infantile paralysis in Portland. There are now 14 cases, one of which is of a youth six years old. The cases are well distributed about the city and doctors announce there is no cause for general alarm. One of the suburban schools was today closed for fumigation; one was closed for a day last week and another carefully watched for developments of the disease. The characteristic of the cases has been the presence of flies in the home. Dr. David N. Roberg, state health officer, attended the meetings tonight.

SOUTH ASSURED FOR PRESIDENT WILSON

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Oct. 19.—William J. Bryan began his campaign in Tennessee in behalf of the democratic ticket here today.

"I have been on the firing line in the middle west, where the campaign is the hottest," he said. "I have spoken in twelve states so far and the democrats of Tennessee and the south may be assured there is a mighty current of public sentiment continually growing that will sweep President Wilson to a victorious re-election."

GLADDEN SUPPORTS WILSON

(Continued From Page One). The helm was in the hands of a sane and judicious leader. "When the election drew near the caudron began to bubble. It was inevitable that the most reasonless and wanton attacks would be made upon the president; at a time when the nation ought to be standing firmly together, all the resources of party politics are drawn upon to discredit our national leader. "Those of us who are old enough to remember the election of 1864 and the tempest of vilification and accusation which burst upon the head of Abraham Lincoln during the campaign preceding his second election, know what to look for in a time like this.

Formally Approved.

"We are not surprised to find great party leaders denouncing Wilson today for the policies which a year and a half ago, they were expressly approving; we are not amazed, we are only amused when we hear him execrated by his political adversaries for trucking to the Kaiser, while all Germany is preparing to hang flags from every window in celebration of his expected defeat. "I do not think that it has ever looked for a moment so dark for Wilson as it did all that summer to Lincoln; but Wilson has had some chance to find out what republicans can do to men who greatly serve them. We all said at the beginning of this campaign that it would be conducted on a high plane; but I wonder if a debate, led by eminent men, in which such a record as Wilson has made for the past three years and a half can be reviewed by his opponents without a generous or appreciative word, is really good politics. I wonder how many wavering voters it has confirmed in their purpose to vote for Wilson. I know of one."

GREAT OVATION FOR WILSON

non-partisan commission, but that congress had given him a bi-partisan commission. He also spoke of the trade commission. "It is not playing the game," he declared, in speaking of the old methods of handling trusts.

Light Wanted, Not Heat.

"What we want is not heat, but light," he added. "You men are sometimes singularly inattentive," asserted the president in saying that too little attention had been paid to his recent appointment of an advisory committee for the council of national defense. He explained that the committee should do important work in strengthening the preparedness of the nation. "When you name a body of men like this you take a great step in preparedness, both for war and for peace," he said.

WAR TO LAST A YEAR

fought better than now and some have never fought so badly as in the last few weeks. Today, for example, twenty Germans practically threw up their hands, and walked into the British lines. But the soldiers who took them prisoners or their commanders had no illusion that these Germans typified the condition of the German army as a whole. There were Germans, who were ready to fight with that ferocity which expects no quarter. "I predict that this is the beginning of a renaissance of patriotic feeling and co-operation," he said.

GOLD HILL NUGGETS

Mrs. Frank Willmarth came up from the Pass Sunday morning and spent the day with Mr. and Mrs. T. J. West and other friends. Mr. Willmarth is still down in California, but as he can get no suitable accommodations there for housekeeping, Mrs. Willmarth remains in Oregon for the present. H. E. Thomas and wife of Portland were in Gold Hill one day last week, looking up the real estate holdings of his mother, who had passed away recently. Mr. Thomas is chief clerk of the East Side Freight Office, Portland. John Hammersly came down from Willow Flats Wednesday morning and spent the day with friends in Gold Hill, going that evening to his family at Grants Pass. John now has 14 cougar to his credit. Mrs. P. H. Daily, wife of the superintendent of the Medford high school, visited Friday and Saturday with her old-time friends, and former schoolmate, Mrs. Edith M. Starns of this city. The ladies kept in touch with each other as much as possible during the past, endeavoring to visit at least once a year, so Mrs. Daily took the occasion to stop over on her return from attendance at the teacher's institute at Grants Pass last week. Mrs. Bari Carter of Arizona, came Sunday morning to visit at the home of her aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Dietrich of this city. Mrs. Carter was formerly Miss Fauny Smith, and lived for some time in Gold Hill. She was accompanied by her two sons, and Mr. Carter will come in two or three months, and together, they will visit relatives in Portland. The "Harvest Home" social, given by the Sunday school, was a very decided success. Scores of young and old heartily entered into the games, and the "track meet" was a decided hit, under the supervision of the two Misses Cady and Schroeder, the two high school instructors. Decorations and refreshments in keeping with the name were on deck. J. W. Herron returned Wednesday morning from an extended trip through Northern Oregon and as far east as Cincinnati, O., stopping at several large cities en route. He saw very plainly the prosperity in the east, where money is abundant. Rev. Richards, local pastor for the M. E. church for the coming year, preached to a fine, large, interested audience at both morning and evening services. Several car loads of enthusiastic republicans traveled to Medford Sunday to meet for the "Golden Special," which stopped for a few minutes at that place, and were amply repaid for their journey by the able speeches delivered. Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Cook were in Gold Hill Sunday from their Rock Point home. Great crowds attended the free movies at the "Comus," given by Lauer & Co., at 7:30 o'clock Monday afternoon.

ALONG ROGUE RIVER

Dr. and Mrs. Kirchgessner were Medford visitors Saturday.

T. C. and Oliver Gaines and Harry Banks took a drove of beef cattle to Medford the first of the week. Mrs. Jane Ragsdale of Beagle and her cousin, Mrs. Howard, and little granddaughter of Death Valley, spent several days last week with Jesse Ragsdale and Alvin Albright and families. The teachers opened their school again Monday. They enjoyed the institute very much. Mrs. Gene Bellows was called to Ashland Sunday by the death of her father, Mr. Wyant. Mr. Wyant died Sunday morning and was over 70 years of age. He visited his daughter here many times and made many friends, who regret to hear of his death. Mrs. Dave Pence and children, Hazel, Zella and Lincoln, spent the first of the week in Medford. Will Houston and son, Merle, took some fine sorghum to Medford Saturday. Dave Pence, George Weeks and others took their beef cattle to Medford Monday. Jasper Hannah sold several hundred gallons of nice sorghum this week. Mr. Maxfield of Trail has rented Perry Foster's farm. Mrs. Thomas Rainey was a Central Point visitor a few days ago. Jack Houston was at Beagle Sunday. Jack Daw passed Saturday, en route from Pelican Bay to Medford. Miss Nell Thompson of Dorby was the guest of Miss Lola Hudson Tuesday. Mrs. Frank Castor, Mrs. Austin,
