

OVATION GIVEN PRESIDENT ON CINCINNATI TRIP

Sharp calls of "Wilson, Wilson" greeted the president as he rode through packed streets from the chamber of commerce to a hotel for the women's lunch. He stood and sang "America" with the hosts just after entering the lunch room. He laughed when women at table after table had waiters remove jars of flowers so they could see him.

In his chamber of commerce speech President Wilson spoke as follows:

"One of the things that is denied me in the circumstances is an absolutely free expression of my personal opinion. The dignity of the office restrains even my Scotch-Irish ancestry from letting go, and it is very oppressive among friends, among many familiar friends, to be upon dress parade. I feel very much like the woman in a sideshow who saw, or thought she saw a man read a newspaper through a two-inch board. She said 'here, let me out of this place. It isn't any place for me with these thin things on.' For the time being, therefore, I feel that there is some danger of your penetrating my disguise and I am perfectly content for the day to throw off the disguise and to enjoy the comradeship and welcome which you so royally extend me.

At Home in Ohio. "The great stream of energy of this country flowed very early into Ohio, the same mixture of bloods and combination of energies that have characterized the country from one side to the other, first began to manifest themselves upon an imperial scale in this part of the world.

"Therefore, whenever I come to Ohio, I feel as if some of the zest of the history that is behind us inevitably got into my thoughts. That zest consists in this: I do not think a man can have real zest in a game that he plays by himself. I do not think there is any zest in secrecy. I do not think there is any zest in the monopoly of anything. The real zest is when you have joined your strength with the strength of your fellow citizens, when you feel that you are part of a great army of liberal spirits moving forward towards the conquest of human liberty.

No Longer a Frontier. "That is the sort of picture I get into my mind whenever I think of the great tidal movement of American history. For a long time we had a frontier, you remember. We have no frontier any more unless it is in the Philippines; we have no frontier on this continent. This great tide of life has filled the whole scope of extent of the continent, and now the problem, my fellow citizens, is to see that genuine spiritual unity binds it together from coast to coast. Unless there is spiritual unity in America, America is not herself, has not found herself; and one of the things that is most interesting now is that America is finding herself, not only so far as her own domestic task is concerned, but also in respect of the place she is to occupy and the part she is to play in the world at large.

So that every American has this task, to exemplify in himself, in his own spirit and in his own action what he would wish all the world to know America to be.

Depends on Individual. "There is no other nation of which this is equally true. There is no other nation in which it can be said that the character of the government and the action of the government so directly depends upon the character and action of the individual citizen; and just so soon as we get that arduous task, we are ready for all the great tasks that lie ahead of us, for the tasks of America in the future are incomparably greater than the tasks of America in the past. We have now to make a team of ourselves and pull for all the world the great chariot in which rides the Goddess of Liberty."

Because of the determined fight for Ohio's 24 electoral votes being made by both parties, administration officials watched the spirit of Mr. Wilson's reception with especial attention. They expressed themselves as well pleased. Cincinnati's large foreign-born population added interest to his visit.

Will Return Tonight. Although a short period laid this afternoon was set aside for "rest" for the president, he expected to be busy from the time of his arrival until his departure tonight at 10 o'clock for Shadow Lawn. Mrs. Wilson dressed in a dark gown, and wearing a bouquet of flowers, accompanied the president throughout the day. She was made an honorary member of the Woman's City club which entertained the president at lunch.

On his way here this morning Mr. Wilson was greeted by large crowds at half a dozen Ohio towns through which he passed. He appeared on the observation platform of his private car at each stop, shook hands with as many people as possible, exchanged laughing remarks, and thanked the crowds for coming out in such large numbers to see him.

Cincinnati Program.

CINCINNATI, O., Oct. 26.—An enthusiastic welcome awaited President Woodrow Wilson today on his first visit to Cincinnati since he became president of the United States. The City club, a non-partisan organization, under whose auspices the president comes to the city, has been assisted by many civic bodies, regardless of political affiliations, in arranging an elaborate program.

The president will be escorted to the chamber of commerce, where he will be welcomed to Cincinnati by Mayor George Nieftin. The president will make a brief address and hold a reception, following which he will be turned over to a committee of the Women's City club, whose guest he will be at a luncheon.

The president then will be taken on an automobile tour of the city. At 5:45 p. m. President Wilson will leave his hotel for the Business Men's club, where he will be the guest of honor at a dinner tendered by the City club. After the dinner the president will go to the Music hall, where he will deliver an address.

At 10 o'clock tonight the presidential party will start on the return trip to Shadow Lawn, N. J.

At Chillicothe, O.

ON BOARD PRESIDENT WILSON'S SPECIAL, CHILICOTHE, O., Oct. 26.—President Wilson was greeted here today by a large crowd, including several hundred railroad shop men. A large bunch of flowers was presented to Mrs. Wilson.

"I used to have lots of fun here when I was a youngster," said Mr. Wilson to the crowd.

A woman in the crowd told the president she hoped the country would remain at peace. "I hope so," replied the president.

Met By Crowds.

ON PRESIDENT WILSON'S SPECIAL, PARKERSBURG, W. Va., Oct. 26.—President Wilson en route to Cincinnati, arranged to greet the people of several Ohio towns early today. He was due to arrive in Cincinnati at 11:50 o'clock.

Last night large crowds met the president's special at Martinsburg, W. Va. Replying to calls for a speech, the president shook his head and said: "I would speak but rather would than talk about it."

Urged to say a few words, he declared: "I'll say this, with a great deal of cordiality, that it is very delightful to be greeted in this way. It shows a large number of my fellow-citizens believe in me, anyway."

HANSBROUGH FOR WILSON

"With a view to clothing itself in seeming plausibility, not to say respectability, it invaded the supreme court to get a candidate. And the ease and readiness with which Judge Hughes laid off the judicial gown in equaling only by his alacrity in descending to the back alley where he immediately supplied himself with numerous muddily missiles to hurl at President Wilson.

Strangling Progressivism. "While the president was putting in operation the federal reserve law, thus making an end to financial panics, Judge Hughes was closeted with Roosevelt and other agents of the corporations, devising a means of strangulation for the progressive party.

"While the president was providing for a tariff commission, taking the tariff question out of politics, Judge Hughes was in consultation with the Harvey trust organizer, Mr. George W. Perkins, who is the solicitor of funds for the Hughes campaign.

"At the moment that Mr. Wilson was heroically struggling to prevent a nation-wide strike, Judge Hughes was taking the stump to tell the people that the president of the United States was a spoilsman and almost everything else that was bad.

"By the prompt action of the president, the strike was prevented and one hundred million people received a guarantee to the enjoyment of the blessings of domestic peace.

"Judge Hughes now devotes himself to denouncing the president for permitting the brotherhoods to 'hold up the government,' but he has nothing to say as to the many 'hold-ups' the railroads and other monopolies have pulled off in Washington. He could not be expected to do so with all the corporations in the country lined up to secure his election. The voting masses are taking note of this glaring fact.

Financial Legislation.

"Among many other things the country is indebted to Mr. Wilson for financial legislation which keeps the people's bank deposits in circulation instead of permitting them to be locked up by the big bankers and used for speculative purposes. Thus is prosperity distributed among the people and the rates of interest are reduced to the farmer.

"It is also indebted to him for his successful efforts in providing for a scientific and business tariff. Mr. Hughes would make it the foothold of politics again.

"Had Mr. Wilson been the vacillating creature he is pictured, and were the country now in the throes of a great strike, Hughes and his henchmen would be denouncing him—and rightfully too—for neglecting his duty.

"With Roosevelt and Perkins his principal supporters, I challenge any man anywhere to show that Wall street interests and the corporations in general are not solidly back of Judge Hughes' candidacy.

"Hence, it is that, for their own protection, the people owe it to themselves and to future generations to vote for Mr. Wilson without regard to former party affiliations.
