CO-OPERATION THEME OF WILSON DAY ADDRESS

to the largest gathering yet assembled at Shadow Lawn to hear his Saturday afternoon campaign speeches.

President's Address. The president's address follows: My fellow-citizens: This is called "Wilson Day" only because for six years, first as governor of New Jersey and then as president of the United States, I have been permitted to lead first a great state, and then a great national party along the ways of progress and of enlarged and regenerated life which our people had so long sought and so long been held back from by the organized power of selfish interest, and because the great honor has fallen to me of being chosen once more spokesman and representative of the men who mean to hold the country to these ways of peace, humanity and progress. It is of these forces that I shall speak and not of myself, who am merely their servant.

What are these forces? Whence do they spring? What have they accomplished, and what is their program and purpose for the future? It is plain what they are. They are the forces of humane, righteous, and patriotic purpose which have sprung up in our day in the minds of those who perceive the shortcomings of the law as it has hardened in America and who look forward with purpose and conviction to a new age in which government shall be indeed the servant of liberty and not of privilege. These are men who perceive that American law has not kept pace with American sentiment; that our law has been holding us rigid and immovable, until class has begun, in free America, to be arrayed against class; until what was legal has begun to be thought a more important part in our thoughts and determinations than what is human and right; and until America has begun to lag instead of lead in reconciling what is with what ought to be.

New Age Dawning. A new age has dawned upon us, while those who were attempting to lead us were stumbling along with their heads over their shoulders, intent upon preserving the conditions of a day that is gone. America had changed and the whole world had changed. Our commerce and industry had grown to such a bulk that the domestic markets of which our former leaders were always so solicitous were glutted and we were bound, unless we were to burst our jacket, to of Portland, Ore., a pulpit orator of great spiritual power and ability, will preach on "The Presbyterian church in U. S." A public reception and welcome of new members. In the evening Rev. A. J. Hogg will deliver his sermon lecture on "Love, Courtesy and Marriage." A cordial invitation is extended to the young people, and those not connected with any church. This lecture has been delivered many times on both sides of the Atlantic. Music by the large chorus choir in charge of Prof. Andrews.

Sunday school at 10 a. m. New class for young ladies in charge of Mrs. Cora K. Welch. Christian Endeavor at 6:20. Intermediate at 7 o'clock. All welcome.

First Methodist. Dr. J. C. Rollins, pastor. The Sunday school hour is 9:45. Strangers are made welcome. The attendance is increasing. Help it on.

The Epworth League chapters meet at 6:15. Young people find these devotional hours very helpful. You are welcome. Public worship at 11 a. m. and 7:30 p. m. At the morning hour a special "Old Folks Service." All elderly people of the community are cordially invited to attend.

The musical part of the service will be the hymns of yesterday so much beloved by the fathers. Dr. Rollins will preach a special sermon to the pioneers and old people. At the evening hour the choir will give one of their delightful evenings of song. The public has come to know what this means. There will be a short address by Dr. Rollins on "Which Ticket?" Following are the musical numbers for the evening:

Soprano solo, "The Lord is My Delight," from the Twenty-seventh Psalm (Allison) Mrs. Lynette Hoyt. "Come Ye Blessed" from the "Holy City" (Gaul), Miss Effene French. Tenor solo, Mr. A. J. McDonough. Anthem, "Benedicite Antioch" (Rees), the full vested choir.

Violin Offertory, Herbert Williams. Anthem, "Jubilate Deo" (Schubert) The choir.

The public is cordially invited to all the services of the day.

Partisan Prejudice Has No Place In International Affairs

By PRESIDENT WILSON.

Let no man dare to be a marplot. Let no man bring partisan passion into these great things. (International affairs.) Let men honestly debate the facts and courageously act upon them, and then will come that day when the world will say: "This America that we thought was full of a multitude of contrary ideas now speaks with great volume of the heart's accord, and that great heart of America has behind it the moral force of righteousness and the hope and the liberty of mankind."—At New York, January 27, 1916.

WOODROW WILSON

find a free outlet into the markets of the world. The time had come when our commerce needed freedom and would be throttled by further restraints. We had acquired foreign possessions, had been drawn into the politics of the world, had begun to play a part which could not be played by provincials, but must be played by citizens of the great world of nations. And yet we had not altered our policy or our point of view. The great European war has served at least to show us this one thing, that the world itself had changed, that it had become at once too big a world and too little a world to submit its destinies to the hostile rivalries and ambitions now of this and again of that member of a great family of men; too compact, too intimate in its contracts, too universal in its ways of intercourse, to make it any longer possible to limit the effects of any nation's action to a single, separate sphere where the rest would be untouched. An inevitable partnership of interests has been thrust upon the nations. They are neighbors and must accommodate their interests to one another, or else disturb the lives and embarrass the fortunes of men everywhere. No wonder that in such an age men in America should be cried awake and feel once more, as they felt them in the days when their great republic was set up, the compulsions of humanity and of justice!

Program Remaining. The program remaining is as great as the program accomplished. The procedure of our courts is antiquated and a hindrance, not an aid, in the just administration of the law. We must simplify and reform it as other enlightened nations have done, and make courts of justice out of our courts of law. We must seek and find the means of bringing capital and labor to a clear understanding of their common interests, which are no other than the interests of the nation itself as a community. We must release our great undeveloped natural resources upon some sensible plan of use and conservation. We must recruit the votes of forward-looking men by the votes of women so that we may have a fresh insight in all matters of social reform and move more certainly and more promptly in the solution of the many new problems of society with which the law must, henceforth deal. We must unite the Americans, north and south, in a new sympathy and co-operation. We must seek justice and the right through every channel that offers; and we must put America in all its force, in all wealth alike of physical power and spiritual enthusiasm, at the service of the other nations of the world when peace comes on that other side of the seas, to make that peace permanent by establishing it on the everlasting foundations of right, co-operation, equality and justice.

New Day in Politics. These are the freshening winds blowing out of the life of mankind everywhere, that have brought on a new day in American politics. We have looked once more very critically at our own laws and our own practices and have set about to square them with the actual conditions of our life and the life of the world.

Four years ago there were two parties in the field whose programme was conceived under the influence of these great forces of progress and adjustment, the democratic party and the progressive party. This year there is but one, the democratic party. In the presidential election of four years ago, some 15,000,000 votes were cast. Of these, nearly ten and a half millions were cast for the candidates of the two progressive parties, only three and a half millions for the candidate of the republican party, the party which lingered in the old ways and felt none of the new impulse of a new day. More than two-thirds of the voters of the United States favored then, and favor now, a program, whose object is to serve the changing needs of humanity and progress.

Revised Accomplishments. The democratic party was entrusted with the task. These powerful forces of the new age were put under its direction. And under that direction what have they accomplished? They have put both the business and the life of the country upon a new footing. They have released the financial credit, upon which commerce and production alike depend, from the control of small groups of financiers and bankers at the speculative centers. They have released the commerce and industry of the country from the domination of those who were building up their power by selfish and unfair methods of competition. They have supplied those who wish to conduct their business in conformity with the spirit of the laws with friendly guidance and delivered from them a nervous fear of the courts. They have released our foreign trade from the shackles of a tariff contrived in the interest of special groups of favored producers, and have created a tariff commission intended to substitute public for private influences, facts for theories and pretensions, in all future legislation with regard to duties and remade provision for the immediate and systematic development of our carrying trade on the seas. They have at last supplied the means by which the nation may be bound together, materially and spiritually, by a network of good roads, upon which both commodities and sympathies may more freely form community to community.

Aiding the Farmer. They have put the farmer upon a footing of perfect equality with business men and men of all other callings in respect of his access to commercial credit; have placed a great bureau of thee. These things we must do and all else that may serve mankind.

Nation Is Co-operative. And our motto must be co-operation, the union, not the hostile rivalry of the forces of society within the nation and within in the family of nations. Their interests of mankind can never again be served by aggression; the interest of no nation or group of nations can ever again be served by aggression. The contests of jealousy are bitter and as dangerous as the contests of arms. The world must henceforth seek the means of accommodation, not the means of arresting quarrels merely. The nation we love and serve must be among the first and foremost of those that rise to the new ideals with spirit and well-directed force. Our own reforms, our own actions in the interest of justice and humanity must be the earnest of our spirit and purpose in the affairs of the world outside our own borders.

Such is the prospect, such is the program, my fellow-citizens, to which we look forward, to which it is our purpose to move forward with enthusiasm and irresistible ardor. We will not pause in the midst of our task. We know that we stand at one of the most critical junctures in the history of the world, when all hopes hang in the balance. We will suffer no man, no body of men, through timidity or fear of jealousy, to delay or hinder or embarrass us. Reaction can have no place of tolerance amongst us, when all the world waits upon those who plan justice and progress. I summon you, not only to sustain, but to swell the hosts that have their eyes now set towards the light, their eyes lifted to the horizons where the dawn of a new age brings to brightness, and I summon you with confidence, with a certain expectation of the part America and her great people are to play when the dawn broadens into day.
