The Little Girl Next Door

Do You Know Her?

Do you remember when she was a sweet and dimpled babe—the pride and joy of a happy home?

Do you remember how mother's lullaby closed her eye-lit eyes in sleep—and how mother's kiss opened them to the smile of love again?

Do you remember, as she grew up, what girlish beauty she possessed—what wondrous eyes that mirrored a wealth of soul, so clear and deep and pure, like a crystal pool of water banked by lilies white?

Do you remember when she left home and went out into the big world all alone, and that path she took—that winding, puzzling, bewildering path, with its snares and pitfalls, that led on and on and on to the land of sin and shame?

Would you like to hear her story—just as it all happened?

Her story is the story of thousands, and it was told before the Illinois Vice Commission in Chicago, and that story has caused more reform, more girls to be saved than any story ever told.

It's True—It's the Facts
