fully demolished and considerable damage was occasioned to other property.

"An engine from the local fire station had reached the spot and was playing on the fire when the explosion occurred. The engine itself was destroyed, but only two firemen appear to have lost their lives. The chief chemist, and a number of workmen were killed by the explosion.

"The chief chemist, Dr. Abgell, while making expeditions to seek safety, himself went to the fire and attempted to combat it.

Hundred Injured.

"The number of persons killed other in the factory or in the neighboring houses has not been ascertained. The casualties, however, owing to the burning, are not nearly so heavy as at first anticipated. Up to the present between thirty and forty bodies have been recovered and about 100 persons are reported to have been seriously injured.

While several munition plants have been constructed at various places in the neighborhood of London since the outbreak of the war, the largest munition factory is that of the Woolwich government arsenal, located about seven miles east of the English capital.

It appears probable from the official statement in regard to the disaster, particularly regarding the floor mill, that the explosion did not occur on the grounds of the old Woolwich arsenal proper, although the factory destroyed may have been one of those established in the vicinity.

FRANCE TO FIGHT UNTIL REPARATION FOR PAST IS WON

PARIS, Jan. 20.—President Poincare has received Edward Marshall, an American newspaper writer, at the Palace of the Elysees and talked with him in regard to President Wilson's note and the reply of the entente allies. The interview appears in the words of the president as follows:

"We are condemned to continue the war, until, we, our gallant allies and ourselves can obtain the reparations and guarantees rendered indispensable by the aggression of which we have been the victims, by the sacrifices to which we have subjected ourselves, and by the losses which we have suffered."

"May I tell America that France is our friend, even though we are not fighting with her?" The American visitor asked.

"The United States of America and France are closely united by ineffaceable common recollections, by the same political traditions, by the same attachment to free institutions," said President Poincare. "This war, which Germany unleashed upon Europe and which France did everything to avoid, could not alter the good relations between the United States and France. It has even brought them closer and strengthened them."

"The United States," M. Poincare continued thoughtfully, "have remained neutral, but the sympathies of individuals in every section have manifested themselves in favor of France and her allies. We have been deeply moved by innumerable demonstrations of friendship."

"There has never been a day since soon after the beginning of the war on which I have not personally received from America a voluminous mail containing generous offerings for our invaded populations, for our war widows and our war orphans. The letters which accompany these tributes emanate from all social classes and often are expressed in very moving words. Other letters bring to me warm wishes for the victory of France."

"Your great country surely understands that we, the allies, are fighting not only for our own independence and our own national honor, but for a much wider cause, which goes far beyond the boundaries of our own interests. We are fighting for the rights of the individual and for the liberty of peoples."

"The violation of Belgium brings out the symbolic significance of this whole war. Germany was not satisfied with declaring war on us without provocation. She had wanted to butcher us without warning and to attain that end, she trampled under

SOUTH DAKOTA COURT OVERRULES FEDERAL

PIERRE, S. D., Jan. 20.—The supreme court of South Dakota, in a formal opinion handed down today, in the action of the state against express companies operating in South Dakota, involving the institution of increases in inter-state rates to correspond with the level of the existent inter-state schedules, arising in proceedings brought by the Sioux City, Iowa, commercial club to compel the increases, held that the inter-state commerce commission had no control over inter-state rates. It took issue with a decision of the supreme court of the United States in the Shreveport, La., rate litigation, holding that the federal court was in error in finding that the federal constitution authorized federal control of inter-state tariffs.

Other witnesses have been ordered to hold themselves in readiness to appear before the committee at any time and place.

BORDER TROOPS PAY HOMAGE TO ADMIRAL DEWEY

EL PASO, Tex., Jan. 20.—Under drab skies thousands of soldiers of the Mexican border here today stood at attention while other thousands of civilians bared their heads and face the east as military bands in the plazas, at the post and in the arm camps played the dirge from the oratorio "Saul" in memory of Admiral George Dewey.

Mayor Tom Igo issued a proclamation calling upon citizens to join in honoring the hero of Manila. At a prearranged signal all trains, street cars, automobiles and other traffic in the city stopped stores closed and factories shut down for five minutes while flags at all army camps and in the city were flying at half-mast for one hour beginning at 9 o'clock a. m.
