HEAVIEST STORM OF SEASON CAUSES LOSS OF LIVESTOCK

The heaviest precipitation of the winter fell in the 24-hour period from 2 p.m. Saturday to 1 p.m. Sunday, the record at the local weather office showing a rainfall of 1.61 inches, half of which was in the form of snow, which covered the valley from 8 to 10 inches in depth. This brings the total rainfall for February to 3.21 inches, or about 24 short of the February normal precipitation of 4.45 inches.

This brings the season rainfall beginning September 1, to 9.66 inches, divided as follows: September 27; October 28; November 1.99; December 1.77; January 1.94; February 3.21. For the same time last year the precipitation was 10.11 inches. It has been impossible for the weather office to arrive at any figure on the total snowfall for the month. Measurements taken show 17.5 inches, which, however, is far too low, due to the fact that much of the snow melted almost as fast as it fell. The present snowstorm has continued the longest time in recent years, and a heavy blanket still covers the valley.

There is 3 feet of snow at Prospect, 1 foot also in the Umpqua, and 4 feet of new snow in the Siskiyous. Saturday night's rain brought Bear creek up a couple of feet, but the stream has fallen 8 inches since. Rogue river came up a couple of feet also.

Cattle and sheep are beginning to suffer, most stockmen making provision for feeding only a certain number of days during the season. Supplies of hay are beginning to run out, and stock is being turned out to rustle for themselves in the hill sections around the valley.

In the Prospect section, northwest of Medford, many of the ranchers have put their stock on short rations and will be forced to turn their stock out within three or four days. An appeal was sent in to the pathologists' office, asking if something could be done to relieve the situation. Hay, however, is short in the valley and in addition it would be practically impossible to haul it into the hills on account of the depth of the snow.

A rumor is current among local stockmen that cattle are dying in the snow on the Dead Indian and Klamath ranges.

Valley stock is faring better, most of the ranchers having a plentiful supply of fodder in their barns.

A heavy loss of lambs is reported.

CHEYENNE, Wyo., Feb. 26.—Governor John D. Kendrick, elected to represent Wyoming in the senate for the term commencing March 4, to-night handed his resignation to Frank L. Houk, secretary of state, who will succeed him in the executive office as Wyoming has no lieutenant governor. Governor Kendrick is a democrat.

JOHN MARGREITER ACCIDENTALLY KILLED BY RIFLE DISCHARGE

Conducted an investigation. The body was lying in three feet of snow. Questioning of the friends and relatives of the dead man failed to disclose any motive for suicide, and the theory was accepted that the shooting was accidental.

Margreiter was 29 years old and had lived all his life in Jackson county. He leaves his widowed mother, Mrs. Edna Margreiter, four sisters and three brothers—Mrs. Herman King of North Bend, Mrs. Leslie Rogers and Mrs. Carl Coker of Klamath Falls, Mrs. Emma Margreiter of Portland and Messrs. Thomas, George and Carl Margreiter. Mrs. Coker, Mrs. Rogers and Miss Margreiter arrived Monday morning to attend the funeral.</p
