BRING EXILES FROM SIBERIA

ously since March 24, five days after they first heard of the revolution.

The cars were met by a vast crowd at the railroad station, which cheered them tumultuously. The returning exiles returned the cheers, but they were in a deplorable physical condition, saggy, uncouth, unwashed and extremely emaciated. Many were crippled with rheumatism, two had lost hands and feet from frost bites and one who attempted flight a week before the revolution had been shot in the leg when he was recaptured. He was lying in a prison hospital, when he learned that he was a free man.

In Incongruous Grab.

The exiles had started west so hurriedly that they arrived in an extraordinary variety of incongruous garb. Some wore new costumes, which had been supplied by sympathizers along their route and some had handsome fur overcoats covering their hideous jail uniforms. Among those who wore this latter costume was a young millionaire aristocrat from Odessa, who had been sentenced to life ten years ago for fomenting a revolutionary mutiny in the Black sea fleet. Others of the party wore shaggy sheep and wooden skins as a protection against the bitter Siberian blasts. One man from the Irkutsk city jail wore the gold braided uniform of the dismissed governor of Irkutsk under a ragged and greasy overcoat.

All Ekaterinburg gathered to do honor to the exiles and a reception and dinner was hastily improvised at, which a speech was delivered by Sophia Vasneff, who spent seven years in different Siberian penal villages for possessing revolutionary literature.

Freed by Revolt.

As soon as the news of the revolution spread through Siberia these exiles, who had the means, started for the nearest railway, travelling day and night in the Arctic cold on peasant sledges or government post sleighs. An enormous number of sledges from widely scattered settlements converged on Irkutsk and so congested the trails that the movement was held up sometimes for hours. Five days after the triumph of the revolution 6000 exiles entered Irkutsk, but the vast majority were unable to proceed west owing to the lack of rolling stock. These encamped about the town and along the railroad and at least a month will be needed before they can be sent home.

EAT WITHOUT FEAR OF INDIGESTION OR SOUR, ACID STOMACH

Instant Relief! "Pape's Diapepsin" Ends Your Stomach Distress. Try It!

Wonder what upset your stomach—which portion of the food did the damage—do you? Well, don't bother. If your stomach is in a revolt; if sick, gassy and upset, and what you just ate has fermented and turned sour; head dizzy and aches; belch gases and acids and eructate undigested food; breath foul, tongue coated—just take a little Pape's Diapepsin to help neutralize acidity and in five minutes you wonder what became of the indigestion and distress.

Millions of men and women today know that it is needless to have dyspepsia. A little Diapepsin occasionally keeps the stomach sweetened and they eat their favorite foods without fear.

If your stomach doesn't take care of your liberal limit without rebellion; if your food is a damage instead of a help, remember the quickest, surest, most harmless relief is Pape's Diapepsin, which costs only fifty cents for a large case at drug stores. It's truly wonderful—it stops fermentation and acidity and sets things straight, so gently and easily that it is really astonishing.
