

JOFFRE GIVEN GOLDEN STATUE AS A SOUVENIR

Minature of Statue of Liberty Presented Hero of the Marne—Reception to French Mission by New York City Greatest in Gotham's History—Grant's Tomb Visited.

NEW YORK, May 10.—France, through Marshal Joffre, her hero of the Marne, unveiled a statue of an earlier hero of her national life, LaFayette, at Prospect Park, in Brooklyn, today.

M. Viviani, France's former premier, delivered the dedication address in which he said: "LaFayette not only did his duty to America but also to France, since he has endeared France to America in this hour when France stands in need of help."

"We find all over America hearts that throb as one with sympathy for France and which are inspired by our countryman, LaFayette."

M. Viviani was presented with 10,000 francs by the Society for French war orphans, for distribution in France; and received as a personal gift a silver loving cup. Marshal Joffre was given a silver dress sabre and other members of the war commission received appropriate memorials.

Presented a Token.

NEW YORK, May 10.—The French war commission visiting New York faced a formidable program today calling for the presence of its members from 9:30 o'clock until midnight and carrying them from Prospect park in Brooklyn to Grant's tomb in Manhattan. The unveiling of a statue to LaFayette, a luncheon by the Merchants' association, the conferring of degrees at Columbia university and a visit by Marshal Joffre to the tomb of Grant were the chief functions claiming the attendance of Marshal Joffre, M. Rene Viviani, former premier of France and the other members of the mission.

The demonstration given to the visitors yesterday was declared to have been the greatest in the city's history.

Presented a Souvenir.

When Marshal Joffre arrived on the north meadow of Central Park to receive the golden miniature statue of liberty, the gift of the people of New York, through popular subscription raised by the New York World, 5000 school children waving the tricolor and the stars and stripes greeted the hero with a shout. An enormous crowd joined in the demonstration. A little girl dressed in Zouave uniform standing close to Joffre shouted "Vive France!" The hero of the Marne heard her salutation, took her in his arms and kissed her on both cheeks. Then, turning to Mayor Mitchell, he said in French:

Speech of Thanks.

"I am profoundly touched by the remarkable souvenir which with such delicate attention you offer me. I am profoundly touched above all, and I feel the value of this emblem that comes to me from the common people of America, from the people as a whole. I thank you. I thank you from the bottom of my heart, and I ask you to thank the people for this gift, which I shall keep all my life, which I shall carry to my home, which I shall have under my eyes every day to remind me of my love of America and of what America has done for France. I shall treasure it for what it stands for and for what it means for us."

At the Merchants' association luncheon, M. Viviani, according to auditors who understood French, said that he had declared that there would be no peace between the allies and the central powers until Alsace and Lorraine are completely restored to France and French territory cleared of the German invaders. His speech taken by stenographers was being translated into English this afternoon.

Record Reception.

NEW YORK, May 10.—New York surrendered unconditionally late last night to Joseph Jacques Joffre, marshal of France, and French war commission. Not only did the world's largest city capitulate to the hero of the Marne, and to Rene Viviani, former premier of France, who headed the war mission to the United States, but it accorded them a triumphal entry.

Never have visitors to New York been given so tremendous a welcome. At least a million of its citizens turned out to pay homage to the great soldier and the great statesman of a sister republic.

Accustomed as they have become to demonstrations of esteem since they set foot on American soil, the Frenchmen were overwhelmed at the

The public library is today in receipt of 31 bulletins or pamphlets from the government on various military subjects. These will be kept at the desk for the present, where they may be consulted easily or taken out by anyone interested.

Some of the titles are: Military Training in the Public Schools, Organization of Volunteers, Organization of a Reserve for the Regular Army, Organization of a Citizen Army, Motor Transport in Campaign, Military Aviation, Development of Large Caliber, Mobile Artillery, and Coast Artillery Units.

New books of fiction just added to the public library:

Agony Column (Biggers), Casuals of the Sea (MacFee), Emperor of Portugal (Lagerlof), Eternal Feminine (Andrews), Further Side of Silence (Clifford), Georgia of the Rainbows (Johnston), Head Winds (Connolly), Pleasant Ways of St. Modard (King), Rainbow's End (Beach), Shadow Riders (Paterson), Tales of Labrador (Gredfell), The Vermilion Box (Lucas), Worn Doorstep (Sherwood).

demonstration accorded them by New York. They did not try to hide the emotion they felt. From the moment they alighted in Jersey City from the closely guarded special train which brought them from Philadelphia until they retired at night in the Fifth avenue mansion of Henry C. Frick, they were not permitted to forget that New York was proud to have within its gates the representative of the best loved ally of the United States.

Teddy a Guest.

Henry C. Frick, at whose home the Frenchmen are staying, entertained at dinner in honor of the commission. Among his guests were Colonel Theodore Roosevelt, Charles E. Hughes and Ambassador Jusserand. The toasts proposed were "To France and Our Guests," by Mr. Frick; "To the United States and Our Host," by M. Viviani, and "To the Presidents of the United States and France," by Colonel Roosevelt. Colonel Roosevelt sat at the right of Marshal Joffre and they conversed animatedly in French.

INDIANS ACQUITTED OF SELLING LIQUOR

At the evening session of federal court Wednesday night the jury reached a verdict of not guilty against Bidwell Riddle, Foster Barkley and Harry Brown, Klamath Indians who were charged with bringing liquor on the reservation. The jury was out only 35 minutes. This was the second trial for the defendants, the first trial having been held at Portland last winter, the jury disagreeing. The evidence showed that the accused were gloriously drunk on the reservation, yet the government failed to introduce convincing proof that the liquor was drunk on the reservation.

Today the case against Tom Bartel charged with selling whisky to an Indian is on trial.

Late Wednesday night, shortly after their arrival in the city in custody of Deputy United States Marshal William Harman, Dewey Oenchain and Tommy Wahtah, two Klamath Indian boys aged about 17 years, were arraigned before Judge Wolverton in federal court on a larceny charge. The boys pleaded guilty to the charge of breaking into Elliott's traders store on the reservation and stealing $3 in money and a small quantity of merchandise.

Because of their youth and previous good record, on recommendation of Assistant District Attorney Goldstein, the court sentenced the boys to 30 days confinement in the Multnomah county jail at Portland.

KILLS FAMILY WITH AXE, THEN COMMITS SUICIDE

ELKTON, Ky., May 10.—Frank Miller, a young farmer, early today killed his father, Charles Miller; his mother, Mrs. Betty Miller; his brother, Elmer, and his brother's wife, Amy, with an axe, and hanged himself.

Young Miller notified the authorities by telephone that he had slain the members of his family and was about to take his own life. "The whole family is dead but me," he told Coroner Bartlett over the wire, "and I will be dead when you get here." Continued illness, it was said, had unbalanced young Miller's mind.

DOCTORS TO MEET IN MEDFORD 1918

Medford was selected as the place and the second Tuesday in May was chosen as the day for the 1918 convention of the Southern Oregon Medical Association which closed its 1917 meeting in Grants Pass Tuesday night.

Dr. W. W. P. Holt of Eagle Point was elected president, and George C. Knott of Glendale was elected vice-president of the association for the ensuing year. These officers succeeded Dr. F. D. Stricker of Grants Pass and Dr. V. L. Rochoer of Yoncalla respectively. Dr. A. C. Seely of Roseburg was re-elected secretary-treasurer.

Resolutions were passed pledging the association to aid financially the families or dependents of members called to the colors during the war.

Among several papers read at the convention were those of three Portland physicians, William S. Knox, George S. Whiteside and E. A. Pearce. About 40 doctors attended the convention.

INCREASE IN POULTRY IN COLD STORAGE

WASHINGTON, May 10.—The federal office of markets today reported an increase of 260 per cent in poultry held in storage May 1 as compared with stocks on the same date a year ago, but marked decreases in all classes of meats except cured beef. Storage turkeys showed the greatest increase, 746 per cent. Frozen beef fell off 2 per cent, lard 52 per cent, frozen pork 30 per cent, dry salt pork 4 per cent, sweet pickled pork 6 per cent and frozen lamb and mutton 13 per cent. The stock of cured meat was 25 per cent higher than a year ago.

NEWEST WAY OF COMBATting U-BOAT PERIL

How England Is Fighting Submarines Told by Naval Expert—American Built Chasers Play Important Part in Destruction of Undersea Terrors—Hunt in Packs.

(Staff Special.)

BY J. HERBERT DUCKWORTH.

NEW YORK, May 10.—Capt. Ronald Skinner of the new British freighter Lyndhurst Grove, described to me today the newest way the British admiralty has of fighting the U-boat menace, which if not curbed will, it is claimed, bring the whole world face to face with food famine.

While methods change from month to month, according to Capt. Skinner, the 550 American-built "chasers" are now playing an important part in destruction of the under-sea terrors.

It has been semi-officially reported that 48 German submarines were captured or sunk during the first two weeks of February.

Hunt in Packs.

The chasers hunt in packs. Sentinels fly over the waters of the war zone and when they spot a submarine send out a wireless to the mosquito patrol giving the location of the enemy.

The seaplane circles above the submarine like a monster fish-hawk and in this way directs the armed motorboats to their quarry.

Ninety-nine times in a hundred the submarine has submerged before the chasers can reach the signalled rendezvous.

But this does not necessarily mean the submarine has escaped. After gathering at the spot where the submarine has submerged, the chasers then scatter in all directions, radiating from the tell-tale U-boat bubbles like the spokes of a wheel. Working in pairs they drag light nets and troll for the submarine.

Contact Bomb Used.

When an obstacle is encountered that experience tells the sub-lieutenants in charge of these small warships is a submarine, a contact bomb is sent sliding down a wire to the submerged vessel.

There is a muffled roar, a great commotion on the surface of the water, and another crew of a twentieth century pirate ship has gone to Davy Jones' locker.

This method of fighting the submarine is made possible by the fact that most of the waters of the coast of the British Isles are comparatively shallow. In any case a submarine cannot go down further than 160 feet. The French are using dirigibles in addition to seaplanes for the spotting of submarines.

Another form of observation aircraft used by the French is the sausage balloon which is towed over suspicious areas by tugs or other small fleet auxiliaries.

The English have also, it is said, invented a powerful aerial bomb that will destroy a submarine if exploded from as far away as 60 feet.

Boiling Points Determine Quality of Gasoline

"Then I might just as well throw my gravity hydrometer away!"
"You said it, Mr. Motorist."

"Listen, the boiling points of gasoline absolutely control its starting qualities, accelerating qualities, power-giving qualities. Gravity has nothing to do with it."

"To get the most out of your motor, your gasoline must have the correct series of boiling points in a gradually rising, unbroken chain—low boiling points for easy starting, medium boiling points for quick and smooth acceleration, high boiling points for power and mileage."

"And only straight-distillation can give this. No mixture can embody all the hundreds of intervening fractions necessary for a perfect motor fuel."
