

CHAMBERLAIN ISSUES APPEAL FOR GOOD ROADS

PORTLAND, May 31.—Before his departure for Washington, United States Senator G. E. Chamberlain, chairman of the senate committee on military affairs, gave out an interview declaring in favor of the proposed $5,000,000 road bond issue to be voted upon Monday and asserting that the carrying out of the road program enacted was an essential of military as well as industrial preparedness.

There could be no more opportune time, he said today, to enter upon a constructive plan of road construction than the present when an era of great prosperity is about to begin through the expenditure of vast sums of money for industrial and military purposes.

Federal Aid Expected.

As a further inducement to "high way development" Senator Chamberlain predicted that an extension of the federal aid to roads already provided for would soon be made by the national government in all human probability and in that event the states which had shown the most progressive spirit in this direction would be the first to be benefited.

In the exigencies of the present war he counseled, there should be no let up in continuing public improvements, especially in the way of agriculture and transportation.

"I cannot leave Oregon," said Senator Chamberlain, "without emphatically expressing my profound interest in the good roads bond issue which is to be voted on next Monday.

"There is nothing in the line of preparedness in which the government is so vitally concerned as good roads, hard surface roads. We will need them more effectively to move the products of the farm to market. The people of this state will be performing a great patriotic duty if they carry the bond issue by an overwhelming vote.

The proposition, as I understand it, that the automobiles, which are a destructive agency to roads, are to contribute to the construction and maintenance, is certainly in the right direction, thus saving the taxpayers much of this burden.

Roads Are an Investment.

"It should not be forgotten that the money of the taxpayer expended in good roads is not to be charged up to expense account, but rather to investment account. Money so spent, if rightly spent, constitutes an investment rather than an expense. The interest comes back to the producer as well as to the consumer in the reduction of cost in getting the products of field and farm to market at a reduced rate, and in securing a corresponding reduction in reaching the field and farm with the commodities of the city and industrial life.

Good Times Will Continue.

"The expenditure of several billion dollars in this country is sure to make good times. The large shipbuilding contracts that have already been let on the Columbia river, and those that are to follow will bring prosperity to Oregon, and the increase in the lumber trade incident thereto will keep it there. All the products of agriculture and livestock will continue to be sold at remunerative prices by our farmers, thus adding to the general prosperity.

"My advice is to go ahead with roads and wheat elevators. There is no better time for public improvements than when the people are making money, with a bright future sure to follow."

The one thing I want to tell the readers of the Mail Tribune is that Mrs. Graffias has two thousand five hundred tulips that are in bloom or have bloomed; every color found in the tulip family is there. No pen can picture their beauty. Some of them stand 38 inches tall—almost as tall as the picket fence—and 8 to 9 inches across. They are of the Parrot and Darwin and many other kinds. They were surely worth many times the trip to see them.
