

UNFAIR RATES THREATEN LOSS OF TERRITORY

Testimony Submitted to Interstate Commerce Commission Demonstrates Need of Community Union to Aggressively Fight Warfare Waged by Designing Coast Jobbers.

BY FRANK H. McCUNE. (Rate Expert for Medford Shippers.)

An analytical study of the testimony introduced in the Medford rate case held before Examiner Bell, June 1st, discloses amazing things, and presents potent reasons why this community should unite as a unit to wait and aggressively defend itself against movements aimed to gain commercial domination of Medford and her trade allies by designing jobbers at San Francisco and Portland.

Historically Medford gained recognition of her rights to jobbing in a case before the interstate commerce commission in 1910 in which case certain principles controlling rate adjustments were set down by the commission, and the publication of the rates ordered in that case extended the jobbing limits of Medford from the cramped limits the method of making rates at that time imposed.

To Nullify Rates. But immediately the interstate commerce commission rates were published the jobbing interests of San Francisco began the effort of their nullification thru the state railroad commission of California and how well this tribunal served those interests is a matter of testimony in the case before Examiner Bell.

Three reductions at different dates in rates from San Francisco to northern California points were made by the Southern Pacific Co. after "informal conferences between the commission and the carrier," which conferences were sought by the commission and were as a silent threat to the railroad company to accede to persuasion or be compelled by procedure to meet its demands. No corresponding reductions were made from Medford to maintain the commerce commission parity of rates to the same territory, but each of the reductions so made nullified by degrees the adjustment decreed by the interstate commerce commission.

The San Francisco Hog.

However, the total of the reductions did not succeed in regaining for San Francisco all of the territory that rightfully reverted to Medford under the interstate commerce commission ruling, and so the San Francisco jobbers instituted proceedings before the state railroad commission of California, which case was later absorbed by an own motion case of the commission. The purpose of these proceedings, according to the chief witness for San Francisco interests, was to gain control over the northern California trade by any means possible and wholly regardless of whether the rates needed to gain this control were reasonable or unreasonable; the object was to secure domination of the trade which then flowed to Medford.

The scale of rates demanded by the jobbing interests in respect to jobbing out of Medford had more humanity expressed in them than the schedule of rates adopted by the California railroad commission in rejecting the demanded rates of San Francisco. When it is said the demanded rates expressed "more humanity" it is said advisedly, for the commission made rates were devilish in the effect of absolutely destroying all possibility of Medford of ever shipping a pound of freight across the line on a combination of rates of inbound and outbound less earloads, but made it possible for San Francisco jobbers by a combination of rates on the state line, both state commission made rates, to absorb the business of Medford itself.

Kills Medford Traffic.

The testimony uniformly shows this fact and the witnesses even of the railroad, the reluctant, testified that without a shadow of doubt that if the railroad company is compelled to publish the California schedule of rates that it will make of Medford a retail city for San Francisco or Portland, if the demanded rates of Portland based on the California commission scale is granted by the interstate commerce commission. The result of such an event will be huge property losses to Medford by confiscating investment in business and plants used for distribution of goods and the allied property interest of banking, the diversion of trade, and the loss of prestige.

As a saving clause for the rights of property in a freight rate as a factor or element in investment property the attorney for Medford has raised the point in this case of the fourteenth amendment to the federal constitution, which so far as known is the first time that this point has been raised in rate cases and made an issue of the rights of the buyer of transportation as being equal to that of the seller in the matter of confiscation of property of a freight rate, and it is conceded that the point is well taken, and should it be sustained for the buyer as it has for the seller, it will curb the greed of large jobbing centers to crush the righteous ambition of lesser communities to use their property for profit in jobbing to the extent of reasonable rates and nondiscriminatory relationship of earload rates to less than earload rates and of one community to that of another.

Discriminations Fought.

The testimony discloses that Medford never opposed or contested the "conference" reductions secured by the California commission from the Southern Pacific Co., nor contested in this case the reductions ordered by the commission in its juggled rates, but complained only of the discriminations these rates would impose on Medford interests by destroying the relationship that the interstate commerce commission said should obtain between San Francisco, Sacramento, Portland and Medford in northern California. The purpose of this suit is to secure a reiteration of this relation and its establishment in such a way that the state railroad commission may not hereafter nullify the equity rates made by the interstate commerce commission to preserve national equality.

The danger that threatens Medford is now under consideration by the courts and the interstate commerce commission both on the part of the Southern Pacific Co., which is contesting in the federal court the confiscation of its property in freight rates in the California commission made rates and by Medford which is before the commission pleading confiscation of property in a freight rate by the destruction of the parity of relationship of communities in the earload and the less than earload rates. The outcome will be watched with interest not only by those immediately and seriously concerned and involved, but by the transportation world.

Threat to Prosperity.

This threat to Medford's prosperity and property should awaken a keen, active interest in the subject of equitable and reasonable freight rates and watch all movements in readjustments or actions seeking readjustments. As it is a matter that affects the entire community and allied communities, the burden of meeting the necessary expenses of aggressively defending against conquest of invaders should be borne by all. It should not be expected that one or two firms or persons ought to bear all the expenses for the entire community when all share in the benefits. The case just presented is a community case; it is vital to every one and each should see to it that he shares in its benefits by sharing in the expense.

NATION TOOL OF PROVIDENCE FOR FREEDOM

President in Address to Confederate Veterans Asserts United States Kept United to Work for Humanity—Time for Sacrifice at Hand to Perpetuate Principles We Profess.

WASHINGTON, June 5.—President Wilson, welcoming the 5000 Confederate veterans to their reunion here today, declared the country was beginning to see why the nation was kept united. Men of the United States, he said, have a love of liberty at heart and now are to be an instrument in the hands of Providence for the liberty of mankind.

The president said that as he was coming to the meeting his mind was turned towards the long lines of young men all over the country who are registering for army service.

President's Speech.

"There is not a man of us who must not hold himself ready to serve the government under which he lives," the president told the veterans and they responded with a rousing cheer.

"There comes a time when a nation must sacrifice everything to the principles which it professes," said the president. "I am thankful for the privilege of self-sacrifice which lends dignity to the human spirit. This is a happy day, a day of noble memory, a day of dedication and a day of the renewal of that spirit that has made America great among the nations of the world."

The old soldiers waved their hats and the hall resounded with the rebel yell, when the president mounted the platform. Many veterans crowded around him and shook hands before he began his speech. Thousands stood on the streets outside the hall.

Significance of Welcome.

The president said he felt there was some significance in the coincidence that at the moment he was welcoming the former host of the Confederacy to the capital they sought to destroy, millions of young men were registering themselves for service to keep the world free.

"These solemn lines of young men going today all over the Union to the places of registration," said he, "ought to be a signal to the world to those who dare flout the dignity and honor and rights of the United States, that all her manhood will flock to that standard under which we all delight to serve and that he who challenges the rights and principles of the United States challenges the united strength and devotion of a nation."

Headless Prosperity.

"We have prospered with a sort of headless and irresponsible prosperity. Now we are going to lay all our wealth, if necessary and spend all our blood, if need be, to show that we were not accumulating that wealth selfishly, but were accumulating it for the service of mankind."

"Men all over the world have thought of the United States as a trading and money-getting people, whereas we who have lived at home know the ideals with which the hearts of this people have thrilled; we know the sober convictions which have lain at the basis of our life all the time and we know the power and devotion which can be spent in heroic ways for the service of those ideals that we have treasured. We have been allowed to become strong in the providence of God that our strength might be used to prove, not our selfishness, but our greatness and if there is any ground for thankfulness in a day like this, I am thankful for the privilege of self-sacrifice which is the only privilege that lends dignity to the human species."

YOUNG AMERICA AIDING NATION

Individuals and vigilance committees to report any violations of the law; and while the machinery of the free national elections is being utilized to accomplish the registration the entire fabric of the civil government is being employed to see that it is done.

Of the approximately 19,000,000 men who are registering today, the census bureau estimated that about 4,500,000 are married and about 5,500,000 single.

Only Complete Returns.

The war department has instructed precinct and county officials not to transmit any incomplete returns to the governors of their states. It will, therefore, be 9 o'clock tonight before the first precinct return in the eastern states is complete and it will be midnight, Washington time, before the precincts are closed on the Pacific slope. Then more time must elapse while these returns are being transmitted to the state capitals. The governors have been instructed not to transmit any partial returns of their states to Washington but to hold all returns for a complete report. That will entail another delay. The complete returns for any county will be available for local public knowledge, the complete returns for a state will be available for public knowledge first at a state capital and then in Washington.

For that reason partial returns will be misleading and possibly do grave injustice to some patriotic community. War department officials have appealed to all newspapers to publish nothing but complete returns for comparison with the official estimates of what the registration for given localities should be.

EAGLE POINT EAGLETS

By A. C. Howlett

County Commissioner George Owen, Wm. Vander Hellen, W. C. Daley and his son, George, were here this week for dinner on their way up to look over the proposed change in the road on the Nygren hill just this side of Salt creek, and everybody who has to travel over this road wishing that that arrangement can be made to effect a change for the bill has been an eyesore to the travel now for over 53 years that I know of, altho it has been greatly improved since I first traveled over it.

Ralph Olesen, George Hall of Trail, G. W. Davis and Mrs. E. G. Hadley of Medford were here for dinner. Mrs. Hadley was traveling over the country lately traveled by her deceased husband while he was selling Watkins' remedies, collecting up the little accounts he had left uncollected. She had Mr. Davis to go with her in an automobile as he is somewhat familiar with the country.

James McCoslin, who is working on the Ali Vista orchard in town having some repair work done, getting ready for the summer work.

Mrs. Charles Painter who has been visiting her son-in-law, Mr. Walker, and family, in Gold Hill, returned the first of the week, and on her return Mr. Painter went to visit them as they were getting ready to start for California.

Roy Davis of Derby came out about the middle of the week and went to plowing for L. K. Haak. He is boarding and lodging at the Sunnyside.

William Lewis of C. P. passed thru here with a bunch of his sheep taking them from the range north of here to the Fish Lake Ditch Co.'s pastures on the desert to be sheared. The weather has been so cold so far this spring that the sheep men have been holding off waiting for warmer weather before shearing.

I see that Geo. Brown & Sons are getting on some small lots of wool, altho the bulk of the wool has not been sold yet altho the price is the highest for several years. Mr. Brown of Trail brought in about 600 pounds for G. B. & Sons and received $300 cash for it. And Ed Tucker of Brownsboro brought in a small lot, realizing 50 cents a pound for it.

R. L. Dodge who owns the Riverside ranch had five barrels of gasoline come in on the P. & E. Thursday and taken to his ranch. He is using it to propel his caterpillar (I believe that is the name of the machine) to plow up his land this spring. I understand that they do fine work and are very fast, plowing several acres a day.

E. H. Hard of the federal loan bank association went up to Derby to perfect an organization Thursday, returning Friday on the Jo Mooman stage.

C. P. Stefford, representing the Reinhardt Lumber Co. of San Francisco, Calif., was on his way up to the Hill & Koenig sawmill near Derby. He is buying in all the lumber he can in this section.

Chris Beale was also a passenger on the P. & E. for Butte Falls, and Mike Hanley had about a ton of hay shipped in to take to his mountain ranch.

John Tyrrell of L. C. John Talent of Salem and George B. Brown of Brownsboro were among the guests at the Sunnyside Thursday. Mr. B. has sheared his sheep and says that he has some two-year-old weathers that sheared 14 pounds each realizing $7 per head for the wool. He is one of the main men in that Cinabar mine on and near his place that I spoke of some time ago, but they are all as dumb as an oyster about the deal that I spoke of in a former letter.

Mr. Hoagland of Central Point was a passenger of the P. & E. and took the E. P. L. C. stage for Brownsboro. Mrs. G. Nygeen came over Thursday morning on the E. P. L. C. stage transacted business with our merchants, returning on the same stage.

L. A. Stephens of California has moved into the Charley Bacon house, Millan Armyntrod, a niece of Wm. Knighton from Grants Pass, is here with her uncle and aunt.

Aden Haselton, the boy who had his arm broken, went to the hospital this Saturday morning to have his arm reset.

Frank Rhodes was doing business this morning in our town and so was

Mrs. James McCoslin and A. G. Bishop, owner of the Greenwood orchard, S. E. Ward of Butte Falls and I. F. Koenig of Derby and James King of Derby were passengers on the P. & E. this morning.

Miss Hazel Brown, daughter of one of the firm of Geo. Brown & Sons, R. G. Brown, who has been attending the Medford high school, and graduated, returned home Saturday morning.

While I was writing this letter Verna Mathews called me up on the phone and subscribed for the Weekly Mail Tribune and since my last report, Charles Painter has renewed his sub. to the D. M. T.

GERMANS LOSE DESTROYER

The most interesting feature in the meager official reports in the repeated announcement of a tremendous artillery duel in progress around the little Belgian village of Wytchaeete, about five miles south of Ypres. From this point as far south as the famous Vimy ridge, 30 miles away, the guns are roaring day and night, apparently indicating that General Haig has chosen this wide sector for his next big blow. In this connection it is recalled that General Maurice, director general of military operations, predicted some weeks ago that the next British offensive would be on a vaster scale than any which preceded it.
