AMERICAN MISSION ARRIVES AT RUSSIAN CAPITAL

PETROGRAD, June 14.—The American mission, headed by Elihu Root, has arrived here.

Home Drying of Vegetables and Fruits

WASHINGTON, June 9.—Dry vegetables and fruits for winter use in tin cans and glass jars for canning are scarce or expensive.

This is the advice of specialists of the U. S. department of agriculture, who recently have studied the possibilities of conserving food to meet war needs in spite of any difficulties that may be experienced in obtaining canning containers. Drying was a well-recognized and successful way of preserving foods before canning came into general use, the specialists point out, and modern methods make it still more practicable than formerly, either in the home or by community groups.

Methods of Drying.

Three methods have been found by the department specialists to give satisfactory results. These are sun drying, drying by artificial heat, and drying with air blasts as before an electric fan. Trays for drying by any one of these methods, as well as tray frames for use over stoves or before fans (can be made satisfactorily at home. Frames and trays for use with artificial heat may be purchased complete if desired.

Homemade trays may be made of side and end boards three-fourths of an inch thick and two inches wide, and bottom boards of lathing spaced one-fourth of an inch. If desired, one-fourth-inch galvanized wire mesh may be tacked to the side and end boards to form the bottoms of the trays.

Frames for use before fans may be made of wood of convenient size. Frames for use with artificial heat should be made of non-inflammable material to as great an extent as possible. As many as six trays may be placed one above the other when artificial heat is used. In drying before a fan the number of trays that may be placed one above the other will depend, to a large extent, upon the diameter of the fan. In drying in the sun, trays as described may be used or the products to be dried may be spread on sheets of paper or muslin held in place by weights.

Preparing Products for Drying.

Vegetables and fruits will dry better if sliced. They should be cut into slices one-eighth to one-fourth of an inch thick. If thicker, they may not dry thoroughly. While drying, the products should be turned or stirred from time to time. Dried products should be packed temporarily for three or four days and poured each day from one box to another to bring about thorough mixing, and so that the whole mass will have a uniform degree of moisture. If during this "conditioning" any pieces of the products are found to be too moist, they should be returned to the trays and dried farther. When in condition, the products may be packed permanently in tight paper bags, insect-proof paper boxes or cartons, or glass or tin containers.

Recipes Spinach and Parsley.

Spinach that is in prime condition for greens should be prepared by careful washing and removing the leaves from the roots. Spread the leaves on trays to dry thoroughly. They will dry much more promptly if sliced or chopped.

Garden Beets, Onions, Carrots, Turnips, Parsnips and Cabbage.

Beets: Select young, quickly grown, tender beets, which should be washed, peeled, sliced about an eighth of an inch thick, and dried. Turnips should be treated in the same way as beets. Carrots should be well grown, but varieties having a large woody core should be avoided. Wash peel, and slice crosswise into pieces about an eighth of an inch thick. Parsnips should be treated in the same way as carrots. Onions: Remove the outside papery covering. Cut off tops and roots.

Best tops: Tops of young beets in suitable condition for greens should be selected and washed carefully. Both the leaf, stalk and blade should be cut into sections about one-fourth inch long and spread on screens and dried.

Swiss chard and celery should be prepared in the same way as beet tops.

Rhubarb: Choose young and succulent growth. Prepare as for stewing by skinning the stalks and cutting into pieces about one-fourth inch to one-half inch in length and dry on trays.

All the products under this heading should be "conditioned" as described. Raspberries: Sort out imperfect berries, spread select berries on trays, and dry. Do not dry so long that they become hard enough to rattle. The drying should be stopped as soon as the berries feel to stain the hand when pressed. Pack and "condition."
