One hundred young girls, dressed in white, will hold the flag while the pictures are being taken.

CITY ASSESSMENT CASE WAS SUBMITTED FRIDAY The case attacking the validity of the paving assessments and the legality of the Hanson plan, in which Chas. D. Colby and Wm. Stanley are plaintiffs and the city of Medford is defendant, was submitted Friday to Judge P. M. Watkins of the circuit court on pleadings, stipulation of facts, written brief and oral argument, in which Attorney F. J. Newman appeared for the plaintiffs and City Attorney Fred Mears and Attorney A. E. Reames for the defendant.

The decision of the circuit court will be rendered soon—probably next Tuesday.

No matter which party to the suit shall be favored by the decision of the circuit court, the case will be appealed to the supreme court of the state for final adjudication, as this is a test case intended to remove vexatious disagreements on locally disputed questions of law relative to vital community matters.

SWEET ARRESTED FOR PROWLING AT FEDERAL BUILDING

C. Sweet, the well known Jacksonville character, who was arrested by a soldier of Company I, while prowling around the federal building Friday night, was released from custody later and was taken back to Jacksonville by an acquaintance.

For some time past a man was seen prowling about the federal building at night time. The fact was reported to Postmaster Mims, who in turn informed the police. The attaches of the postoffice also kept watch for the stranger, and one night recently a clerk gave chase, but failed to catch the man. Night Policeman Timothy also tried to catch him.

On top of this, when, several days ago, Postmaster Mims received a black hand letter in which the writer complained that his mail was being held up and stated that he was going to call at the postoffice in person to see about it, Colonel Mims, connecting the black hand writer and suspicious night prowler together, wired the postoffice department the details and asked if the department wanted the unprotected building guarded at night.

The reply was that the building should be guarded and informed Postmaster Mims who to communicate with San Francisco in this regard. While waiting for a reply from San Francisco Col. Mims communicated with the commander of Company I and the latter detailed a soldier to guard outside the federal building at night.

About 10 o'clock last night Sweet appeared at the building and began to walk around it. The soldier halted him with his gun and placed him under arrest. Postmaster Mims interviewed Sweet later at Company I headquarters. Sweet admitted prowling around the building nights and that he had written the black hand letter. He said he did this because his mail was being held up. Sweet gets his mail at the Jacksonville post-office, but this fact seemed to make no difference to him in his story.

Postmaster Mims and others who interviewed Sweet decided he was harmless and not of sound mind, so he was permitted to go back to Jacksonville.

care of the needs of all the allies in that respect. French and British plants, under the plan, will be released for the manufacture of battle craft exclusively, while American plants are developing a battle type which by next spring probably could give a formidable account of itself.

The plan to bring all allied student aviators to the United States for elementary training is an outgrowth of the enormous expansion of the government's aircraft policy. The original program called only for machines enough to equip land and naval forces at a cost of about $75,000,000. The production board now has mapped out a campaign, however, that means an initial appropriation of about $500,000,000 and an eventual expenditure of probably $1,000,000,000. General Squier, in charge of army aviation, made it clear today that the war department stands back of this campaign, which he said was necessary to put the "Yankee punch into the war."

If European aviators are sent here for training, the number of training fields will be increased to a score or more and additional universities will be directed to give technical aviation courses.

RED CROSS DAY IN ALL THE MEDFORD CHURCHES

From the pulpits of every church in Medford congregations will listen

Sunday to sermons urging contributions of every possible dollar to the great Red Cross war fund the coming week. Employers will encourage their employes to contribute what they can constantly give, even offering to advance employes wages to encourage subscriptions, where necessary, and everywhere in Jackson county committees will be actively working for the success of the most worthy cause that has ever appealed to the American people.

Liberty bonds, in lieu of cash, will be accepted by the Red Cross war fund campaign committee when the big drive starts next Monday. Authority to accept for bonds just the same as for cash was received from Red Cross Executive Committee Chairman Seward Prosser, of New York, by Campaign Manager Daniels last night, and no doubt a great many people will contribute liberty loan bonds to the great fund for humanity. The over-subscription of the liberty loan assures the Red Cross committee that there will be no trouble in turning the bonds into cash at par value at any time; and, with this understanding, many people have bought liberty bonds to donate to the Red Cross fund.

Look beyond the cost price when you buy a refrigerator

A refrigerator has more than one price. The price you pay is only the beginning of expense. The ice cost is the big cost that will equal or exceed the first cost every year, if you buy a cheap, ice-cutting refrigerator.

It Pays to Pay the Price of the

Automatic Refrigerator

For it is so well built, with its slight honest-built walls and it is so saving of your ice that it pays the additional cost over a cheap refrigerator the very first season. At the same time, it keeps food so much tastier. Its automatic circulation prevents flavor mixing. Its built-in water cooler insures a plentiful supply of ice-cold water at all times, without a penny's extra ice cost.

If you don't investigate the Automatic before you buy, you'll regret it. We're glad to show it, without obligation.
