WAR TAX BILL NOW PRACTICALLY FINISHED

WASHINGTON, June 29.—With revision of the war tax bill virtually completed and now totalling $1,449,000,000 against the $1,500,000,000 levy of increased taxes adopted by the house, the senate finance committee today considered authorization of additional bonds.

Senator Stone proposed a bond issue of $500,000,000. The committee plans to reach a decision tomorrow and to fix the rate to be imposed on war excess profits—probably sixteen percent. During lengthy committee discussion of the bond question, a larger issue was not suggested, although with a half billion of bonds, Senator Simmons said the bill still would fall short by $300,000,000, and probably more, of meeting the ensuing year's war expense.

From excess profit the committee plans to raise $300,000,000. An amendment adopted today would exempt from the tax upon individual persons:

In office or employment, including that of a commercial traveler or agent whose remuneration consists wholly of a fixed and definite sum irrespective of the amount of business done or any other contingency; and a profession the profits of which depend mainly on the personal qualifications of the individuals and in which there is not required the investment of more than nominal capital.

Manufacturers and their representatives generally are opposing the repeal proposed by the committee of the draw-back by which they receive from the government practically all duties paid on raw materials which enter into manufactured products which later are exported.

WILSON OPPOSES PROHIBITION

often represents the president in conferring with congressmen, went to the capitol today and told senators the president does not desire to disturb or divide public sentiment during the war by cutting off consumption of light alcoholic beverages in general use and that such action is unnecessary as it would conserve comparatively small supplies of foodstuffs.

The provision to stop manufacture of distilled spirits, Mr. Durlleson told senators, was not objectionable to the president.

Some of the senate leaders later expressed confidence that the prohibition sections would be modified so as to permit beer and wine manufacture to continue and that prohibition of distilled spirits would be adopted.

Amended for President.

An amendment to meet the president's wishes, Senator Phelan said, would be offered, probably next week.

"The president feels that such action ought to satisfy the prohibitionists as well as all others, if he is given authority and full responsibility, if he deems it necessary in any emergency to prohibit further manufacture of beer and wines," said Senator Phelan, "but he does not believe it is necessary to immediately cut off the use of beer and other beverages with little alcohol."

President Wilson expressed to Senator Martin his hope for prompt action upon the bill and anxiety over the prospects of delay from the prohibition issue.

"I told the president I was against such procedure," said Senator Martin. "I said congress itself has the responsibility and should act—not pass it along to the president."

Opposes Cessation.

Senator Phelan, however, positively stated that the president is favoring legislation giving him authority to either continue or stop manufacture of malt and vinous beverages, and is opposed to immediate cessation.

Efforts to arrange for a vote on the bill at 5 p. m. tomorrow were blocked by objections of Senators Borah and Lodge.

"I have no disposition to crowd the matter," said Senator Chamberlain, in charge of the bill, "but I wanted to know how the senate felt about it."

Senator Hardwick's motion to recommit the bill to the agriculture committee on the ground that it is unconstitutional was lost, Senator Reed and the Georgia senator alone supporting it.

Reading of the bill for amendments was then begun.

An amendment adopted by Senator Lewis of Illinois would limit alcoholic content of intoxicating beverages to ten per cent after September 1.

them without adding a single battalion to the army.

Why in France?

"Our greatest army is in France. We are there to recover for the people who have been driven out, their patrimony, the land which belonged to them. As to Mesopotamia, it is not and never has been Turkish. You have only to read the terrible reports to see what a wilderness the Turks have made of the Garden of Eden. What is to happen to Mesopotamia must be left to the peace conference and there is one thing that will never happen to it. It will never be restored to the blasting tyranny of the Turks.

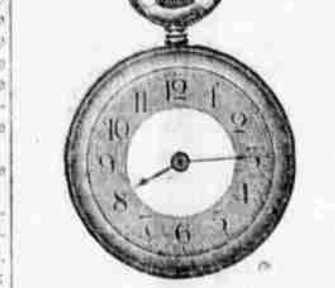

"The same observation applies to Armenia. As to the German colonies, that again is a matter which must be settled by the great international peace conference. When we come to settle who must be the future trustees of those uncivilized lands? We must take into account the sentiments of the peoples themselves and whether they are anxious to secure the return of their former masters or whether they would rather trust their destinies to other and juster and gentler hands. The wishes, desires and interests of the people themselves of all those countries must be the dominant factor in settling their future government.

Equitable Peace Basis.

"Peace must be framed on so equitable a basis that the nations would not be guaranteed by destruction of Prussian military power so that the confidence of the German people shall be put in the equity of their cause and not in the might of their armies, better guarantee than either would be democratization of the German government."

"No one wishes to dictate to the German people the form of government under which they should choose to live. But it is right we should say that we will enter into negotiations with a free government of Germany with a different attitude of mind and a different temper and different spirit and with less suspicion and more confidence than we should with a government with whom we feel today to be dominated by the aggressive and arrogant spirit of Prussian militarism.

"All the allied governments will, in my judgment, be acting wisely if they draw that distinction in their general
