CHARRED BODY OF ELK CREEK HERMIT FOUND

At 10 a. m. Sunday, Arthur Moore, fire patrolman, while at work on a brush fire in the head of Elk creek district, discovered the still burning body of Francis Marion Bailey, a well known hermit of that district, not far from the trail. Bailey, of course, was dead and his body was charred from the feet to the chest. The shoes and undershirt were still burning.

Coroner Perl of this city, who visited the scene and brought the remains back to this city, thinks that Bailey, who was 69 years old, and had been suffering with heart trouble for a year past, fell dead from a heart attack Sunday while climbing the trail, and his body rolled down to where it was found, where a small forest fire crept up to it and set his clothing on fire.

Only three hours before the body was found Asa, George and Thomas Weeks, who had been negotiating with Bailey for the lease of his ranch near by, parted from Bailey, who left them saying that he was going over to see how the fire was getting along. The fire he referred to was one not far from his ranch which was caused by lightning striking a tree Saturday afternoon, and igniting grass and brush.

Bailey was an old bachelor, who had resided in the Elk creek district for the past 30 years, having homesteaded his ranch of 160 acres. He lived in a small cabin on the ranch with only a burro for companionship, and eked out an existence by laboring on the ranches in that section.

But little was known of his life before locating in the district beyond the fact that he came from somewhere in Illinois. The last letters he had received from a brother and sister 30 years ago from Wisconsin were found among his effects.

LIGHTNING STARTS 50 FOREST FIRES

Within the past two days over fifty small forest and brush fires have been started in Jackson county by lightning striking trees in the forests. These many fires were under control before they became very serious, but only by the hardest kind of work on the part of the fire wardens and the forestry service employees.

The fires were started in various parts of the county's timbered districts, and there were many similar fires in the Ashland district. W. T. Grieve, state supervising fire warden for Jackson county, said today that a large force worked all night in getting control of a menacing fire in the Big Butte district.

John Grieve, road supervisor of Proaspet, was a Medford visitor Monday.

SUNDAY HOTTEST DAY IN 6 YEARS; NO RELIEF NEAR

Sunday was not only the hottest day of the year so far, but was also the hottest day Medford has experienced since July, 1911. No relief seems to be in sight for the weather prediction says continued warm. Today promises to be equally hot.

The highest temperature yesterday was 107 degrees, reached about 3 p. m. At midnight the temperature had fallen to 86 degrees and the lowest temperature of the night was at 5 a. m. today when the thermometer stood at 72 degrees, presaging another fiery hot day. The thermometer reached 100 at 1 p. m. and Sunday at 7 p. m. it was still at 100.

The official temperature at 1:30 o'clock this afternoon was 101 degrees.

All the official temperatures are taken by the government from the instruments on top of the Garnett-Cory building. The street and home thermometers always register several degrees higher.

During the night there was considerable lightning and thunder and a few sprinkles of rain fell in various parts of the city.
