tle more of distinguished visitors to our valley in the future. Great artists have been in our midst in the past and were appreciated when ap pearing in concert and entertained socially to quite an extent. These people would searcely have escaped being interviewed in a larger place, and as such tete-a-tetes are always interesting to the music lover all least, why shouldn't we have a few "side lights" on their "pasts," Surely nocommunity of its size could excel us in the sympathetic appreciation of our audiences, Walter Damrosch speaking particularly of that feature of his appearance here. Then would not the artist, who is usually big in more than an artistic sense, be glad to give his opinions of us and other matters more intimately than acros the footlights, though even curtain speeches have been extremely few Salvatore Giordano, known to many thru his singing in "Martha" in Medford about two years ago, is a prominent member of the opera company playing at Ravinia Park, Chicago, this summer. Other members are Florence Macbeth, Carolina White, Irene Pavloska, Morton Adkins, Cordelia Latham, Henri Scott, Millo Piero, Francesco Daddi, Marguerite Bériza, Morgan Kingston, Or-ville Harrold, Edith Mason, Frances Ingram and William Schurtz. Musical America has this to say of Mr. Giordano's voice and work? "Salvatore Giordano sang the role of Hoffman. His voice is a lyrie tenor, sweet and expressive, and he gave an excellent portrayal of the role."
