SHERIFFS ROND UP STRIKING APACHES

GLOBE, Ariz., Aug. 8.—A force of deputy sheriffs, led by Deputy Armer, was due today to reach the scene of the Apache uprising in the Sierra Blanca mountains, fifty miles northwest of here, where nine white men were reported early today to be surrounded in a dugout by a mob of more than 100 striking Indian and Mexican miners, while a forest fire, set by the Indians, was sweeping the mountains.

CROWDS WITNESS DE SAULLES' FUNERAL

NEW YORK, Aug. 8.—Funeral service for John L. DeSaulles, one-time Yale athlete, who was shot and killed by his former wife, were held today at the DeSaulles' home here. Although the time and place had been kept secret, such a large crowd of curious persons gathered that twelve policemen were necessary to keep the street clear in front of the house.

THE ALL-IMPORTANT PROBLEM

THE PORTLAND TELEGRAM calls attention to the fact that a proper system of drainage will convert the Willamette valley into the richest agricultural area of similar size under the sun. Within the boundaries of the valley lie 3,000,000 acres of agricultural land, two-thirds of which could be doubled in productive power by drainage.

The Willamette valley, tho much larger, is not as fertile, not as prolific proportionately as the Rogue River valley, which has superior soil and climatic resources. In the Rogue River valley the one thing needed to make it the richest and most productive valley for its size on the coast is water—yet but little progress has been made in solving the problem.

The necessity of irrigation here is self-evident. One has only to compare the yields of irrigated and non-irrigated tracts. One has only to walk thru the orchards and alfalfa fields of the watered and unwatered tracts to realize that the water is worth as much as the land, much of which, without the water, is valueless.

We expect sloth and inertia in the Willamette valley, where ultra-conservatism has always successfully fought progress. We do not expect it in the Rogue River valley, where the people have led the state in progressiveness.

The Telegram says: "There is really no excuse for inaction or for the lack of public interest in this great constructive work to be done in the Willamette valley. The reward to be gained by the people of the valley, by the people of the state, is ample." Likewise there is no excuse for continued inaction upon irrigation in the Rogue River valley.

We have all experienced the bitter fruits of lack of water—meagre yields, crop failures, depreciated values and hard times. The remedy lies in our own hands. If we have not sense enough to apply it, we deserve the results, for in the Rogue River valley, as ye water, so shall ye harvest.

ROOT AND LA FOLLETTE

ELIHU ROOT has always represented stand-pattism in politics. Robert M. La Follette has represented progressiveness. Hence the Mail Tribune opposed the former and supported the latter.

Now, however, the country is at war and patriots have forgotten partisanship. Greater issues are at stake than local politics—the existence of democracy, the life of the nation. He who places petty partisanship above patriotism is a mighty poor American.

Root has honorably represented his country in Russia and shown that he possesses a high type of patriotism as well as the sympathy for the oppressed that distinguishes a true democrat. Real Americans are proud of him. La Follette has proven that his sympathies are with the enemies of his country, with the autoeracy whose creed is the oppression of humanity—and hence is a fake democrat. Real Americans are ashamed of him.

As Mr. Root, the conservative statesman, says: "As sure as the sun rises tomorrow, if this war ends with the triumph of Germany, our people will be a subject nation of the German ruling nation." Yet we find Mr. La Follette using his position and influence to oppose needed war measures, to create division and discontent at home, to keep the nation from prosecuting a vigorous and successful war and doing what he can to aid and comfort the enemy. He could not do more if in the employ of the kaiser. No wonder he is heroized by German sympathizers.

La Follette's course has chagrined and astounded his supporters, alienated his following and blasted his future. All the excellent work he has done will be forgotten and only his sedition remembered, for

The evil that men do lives after them, The good is oft interred with their bones.

FOUR AMERICANS LOST BY CRUELTY GERMAN U-BOATS

LONDON, Aug. 8.—Four Americans were lost on the British steamer Belgian Prince, who was sunk on July 31, by a German submarine. One American is among the survivors. Thirty-eight of the crew of the steamer were drowned and three others were rescued by a patrol boat and taken to a British port. The survivors say the submarine shelled the vessel, after which the commander ordered the crew to take to the boats and go alongside the submarine. According to the survivors, the Germans removed the life belts and clothing from all the crew except eight, smashed the life boats with axes, then re-entered the submarine and closed the hatches, leaving the men on deck. After traveling on the surface for several miles, the U-boat submerged.

BRITISH LORDS AIR SCANDAL OVER SALE OF HONORS

LONDON, Aug. 8.—A lively discussion arose in the house of lords last night on alleged scandals connected with the distribution of honors. The Earl of Selborne, calling attention to the bestowal of honors in return for contributions to party funds, moved that hereafter the reasons for rewards should be published and the premier, in recommending recipients should satisfy the sovereign that no payment or expectation of payment was associated with the recommendation. The house came to no vote on the subject. Supporters of the motion, including Baron Herestord and Baron Charnwood urged the adoption of the American system of auditing and publishing party funds. Baron Herestord said that a large portion of the money went not into party funds but into the pockets of those who offered the honors for sale. He added that this war would be famous for the large numbers of honors and awards bestowed upon people who had failed disastrously. Earl Curzon, government leader in the house of lords, admitted the gravity and importance of the subject, but thought there was exaggeration.

CHURCHES TO AID FOOD CONSERVATION AND WAR WORK

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8.—The United States government is mobilizing the churches of the country for war.

The full social power of the 70,000,000 people organized in the churches and their auxiliary societies is one of the latent resources the nation has long neglected.

In these organizations there is a capacity for teamwork, a moral purpose closer to the life of the people than any political institution.

From the church to the home are channels of communication the government does not possess.

To harness these forces to food conservation is the first step in the program of co-operation between the government and the churches. This work has been entrusted to George A. Cullen, railroad man of New York, who has come down to Washington to put it over.

He has met the representatives of nearly every religious denomination and mapped out a plan by which the churches are to keep up the enthusiasm for food saving, and keep tab on the actual results in every home.

Heads of the young people's organizations, the denominational executives and accountants, the religious publishers and others have come to Washington to link up the government and the religious forces.

While church co-operation in food conservation is the first practical step, it is only the beginning of the churches' work.

The first concrete thing is a system of weekly reports from housewives, to be handed in to the churches when the plate is passed on Sunday. The accompanying report blank will be supplied by every church to all its homes.

These weekly reports will be forwarded to denominational headquarters, tabulated and forwarded to the secretary of a national food report committee, appointed for each denomination. The results will be sent to the food administrator at Washington and published.

Every pastor, priest or rabbi will put his full personal appeal behind the movement, and the rivalry of the different bodies is expected to insure nation wide saving of food-stuffs.

8000 CASES OF TYPHUS IN BEIRUT

NEW YORK, Aug. 8.—Conditions in Syria and Palestine are declared to be "the worst possible," by a refugee who fled from there and has just reached New York and reported to the American committee of Armenian and Syrian relief.

The committee's informant, whose name is withheld, said there were 8,000 cases of typhus in Beirut when he left, owing mainly to a lack of medicine and scarcity of doctors. The poorer classes have been wiped out by starvation, he said. In Lebanon he saw many villages and towns without a single inhabitant. Relief work in Beirut is being carried out in behalf of the American committee by Americans there.

TO HAVE BEAUTIFUL NOSE, TAKE LESSON FROM MISS ELLIOTT

Maxine Elliott

Schopenhauer says, "The fate of innumerable girls has been decided by a slight upward or downward curvature of the nose."

Pascal has often been quoted to the effect that "if Cleopatra's nose had been a trifle larger the whole political geography of the world might have been different."

Maxine Elliott has a perfect nose. You will notice it is not small.

Womanly beauty has come to mean something besides structure and color. Unconsciously, perhaps, we look behind the beauty of the human machine for the utilitarian strength and adjustment of its part. We like a long nose because we know that its owner will have a more sonorous speech. We dislike visible nostrils because they are unesthetic to behold.

We like a little curvature at the base of the forehead, as you see in the nose of Maxine Elliott, because it denotes perfect development of brain cavities and high intellectual powers.

Whatever the shape of your nose, my dear girl, you can keep it clean. Never let ugly blackheads appear at the side. At the risk of hurting

DE SAULLES' BOY IN CUSTODY OF FATHER'S PARTNER

MINEOLA, N. Y., Aug. 8.—All mystery about John Longer DeSaulles Jr., the four and a half year old son of Mrs. Blanca DeSaulles, who shot and killed her divorced husband last Friday, when he refused to give up the child to her care, was cleared today, when he was found in the care of G. Maurice Heckscher, DeSaulles' business partner.

Counsel for Mrs. DeSaulles was expected to make an appeal to Mr. Heckscher today that the mother, who is confined in the county jail here, on a charge of first degree murder, might be allowed to see her son. Should this appeal fail, it was said, legal action probably would be taken.

Mrs. DeSaulles, who was said to be in a serious condition by three persons who examined her, has been removed from the cell she occupied to a room in the sheriff's apartments of the building. DeSaulles' funeral was held today.

some one's feelings I am going to insist that blackheads are only the result of personal uncleanness. If they neglect one finds them making their appearance, wash the face carefully with a flesh brush and pure hot castile soap lather. Rinse with tepid water. Then dab with witch hazel and lastly rub with ice.
