

ASHLAND AND VICINITY

Among candidates for high office who have been here lately were Walter M. Pierce of L. Grande, for governor, and Dr. J. W. Morrow of Portland, for national committeeman, both on the democratic ticket. They happened here during the normal school drive and found occasion, non-politically, to speak a good word for the dual institutions which will be voted upon at the general election next November to meet the existing needs of Southern and Eastern Oregon. The normal drive has been pushed this week, with 20 canvassing teams in the field. Following the tactics of other drives and in order to conserve the time and efforts of the workers, luncheon was served on Tuesday and Wednesday by Bellevue ladies and a local contingent. The goal set is to raise a fund of $5000 to be expended for publicity purposes exclusively, the field throughout the state to be systematically canvassed. Good success has thus far been met with.

Among other soldier boys from this vicinity now in France, who have been heard from recently are Meredith Beaver, Elwood Hedberg, and a son of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Slack. Beaver is a bugler in the 65th artillery, and the censor seems to have passed the description which he gives as to the particular detachment to which he belongs, the quarters assigned being those occupied once upon a time in the distant past by the great Napoleon. Of the boys lately heard from, all were reported in good health, adding the welcome postscript that they were being well cared for.

The city will not tolerate loafers even in the local jail. Those convicted of petty misdemeanors will, under provisions of a special ordinance, be compelled to work out their fines at employment in various municipal departments. Thus will the merits as well as the demerits of these loafers be put to the test at sundry jobs on streets and in the parks.

Whittle, the Businessmen's association, and Ed Thornton the roundup organization proper, he being secretary. Lee Hall is treasurer.
