

ASHLAND AND VICINITY

EAGLE POINT EAGLETS

By A. C. Howlett

The comic operetta, "Bulbul," has been not only postponed, but the scene of its presentation has been changed from the Chautauqua auditorium, where it was advertised to be given last Friday night, to the Vining theater on Tuesday evening, May 14.

The grand lodge of Odd Fellows meets at Seaside, May 21. Heading the delegation from here will be Geo. W. Trefren, grand master. Rebekah delegates will include Mrs. W. L. Moore of Bellevue, and Mrs. Newell Wright and Miss Mollie Songer of this city. Mrs. Wm. Myer and Mrs. J. D. Perotti will also be in attendance as visitors.

The local postoffice now has five employees in the military service, hence a quintet of stars are exhibited on its service flag.

Funeral services of Mrs. Lovinia Carpenter were held at Stock's undertaking parlors last Saturday afternoon. Tributes of esteem were in evidence from old-time friends residing at the former home of the family at Glenwood Springs, Colo., in addition to the remembrances from local residents. Interment was in Ashland cemetery.

Regular meetings of the home guard for drill and other business have been changed from Tuesday to Monday evening of each week.

Incident to the establishment here of a patriotic fund, upon which requisitions may be made in behalf of aiding the various war relief measures without inaugurating drives, which have become almost perennial, contributors may have the privilege of diverting their donations to specific purposes. The fund in general will be initially raised and subsequently replenished by regular subscriptions as a permanent basis, supplemented by freewill offerings.

Walter Phillips, a first lieutenant in the American expeditionary force, and who is now in France, in a letter to relatives here says the boys lived high while on the ocean bilow, with no less than seven meals per day available, "three going down and four coming up" during the stress and storm period on the high seas.

Mothers' day, May 12, was universally observed in local churches, appropriate exercises being the order. In the language of the Baptist church announcement, "All mothers are invited and will be treated as guests of honor, and the entire service will be planned to encourage them and to admonish children to love and care more for them," and it is needless to say that this announcement-involution was carried out in both letter and spirit.

Acorn circle, Women of Woodcraft, is the only fraternal organization here in the beneficiary insurance line which is designated by government authority to sell war savings stamps, and the energetic, patriotic ladies are retailing these savings features in more than a desultory sort of way. Mrs. Josephine Crocker is clerk of the circle and information concerning the stamp series, both thrift and war savings classifications, may be obtained from her.

Some vital statistics concerning Hawthorne school are available as a result of the recent inspection at the hands of Miss Allen, the county nurse. Children to the number of 237 were examined, and a comprehensive survey of the health conditions and habits of 162 of these pupils was made to parents, with advisory suggestions as to remedying existing habits and defects.

Owing to the scarcity of wood, also due to warnings from the federal fuel commission, local parties are placing orders for next winter's supply of coal, and most of the heaviest consumers have already been supplied. By far the major portion of this supply is from the Wyoming districts, particularly Rock Springs.

Last week W. D. Hodgson and H. L. Moore were on a tour of the Grants Pass district, inspecting areas in the railroad land grant territory throughout that section with the view of locating purchasers.

Harry Sinclair, formerly of the Tidings office, motored over from Northern California points the first of this week for a visit among old familiar surroundings.

The various Masonic grand lodges meet in Portland in June, and in the meantime recommendations as to the availability of sites for the proposed Masonic home are solicited from various lodges throughout the state.

Ashland, thru Blue Lodge and Eastern Star chapter channels, will file necessary papers relative thereto with a special grand lodge committee which has charge of this particular matter.

The Civic Improvement club will meet in Auxiliary hall on Tuesday afternoon, May 14. An informal program will include musical selections and patriotic talks. Red Cross workers will please bring along their selections.

L. F. Ferguson has moved his residence quarters from the Siskok building to 167 Hargadine street.

With Medford trade is Medford made

As I stated in my last, I am now at this time at the home of my old friend and ministerial brother, Rev. M. C. Davis, four miles from Wolf creek. On my arrival at the Wolf creek station, I was met by Mr. Davis and was soon on the way in his Maxwell car, for his home, where I was met by his wife, son Bertie, daughter Miss Esther, and little granddaughter, Ines Howard. After partaking of a bountiful dinner, Mr. Davis then took us in his car for a trip up to the reservoir, where they store their supply of water for mining. On the route we passed through the little village of Golden, that at one time was quite a flourishing mining camp, before the differing mining claims passed into the hands of the few capitalists. The reader will remember that while an individual may have a good mining claim, where there is good paying dirt, or if it happens to be a quartz mine, good prospect for gold, that that one person, unless he has the capital to develop the mine is not much better off than he was before for it takes money to make money. And that is almost invariably the case, for instance, the mine of which I am writing which is situated on Society creek, before it could be worked successfully had to have two ditches dug and one of them is some five or six miles long, and the other is about half that length, and then they have made a large reservoir where they store the water so as to give a pressure sufficient to do the work, and then in addition to the ditch and reservoir there is some five thousand feet of heavy steel pipe from 16 to 24 inches in diameter through which the water is forced by gravity pressure and comes out of a discharge pipe six inches in diameter, and all this has to be done before the gold can be taken out of the dirt, and the result is that the poor man is forced to sell out to the man or men who can command the capital to do all this work. Passing on through Golden we went on up the mountain side until we finally reached the reservoir, where we found Mr. Nias Layman, the man who attends to shutting off and turning on the water as it is ordered by telephone and who goes over the entire length of the ditches every day. He lives in a beautiful little cove on the side of the mountain and seemed to be as "happy as a clam at high tide."

After spending an hour or so looking over his neat new house, garden and flowers garden, we began to retrace our steps, and on the way left the car and walked a few hundred yards to the part of the mine where they are working at this time. Owing to the scarcity of water, for there is no snow in the hills this season, and consequently a shortage of water, they can run the hydraulic only a part of the time, a few hours each day. But since I was here a few years ago they have washed off and cleared up several acres of land. The way they clear up the land is to first cut and roll together the timber and burn it to get it out of the way. They then set their elevators and that is an incline built of heavy timbers and plank. It is made on about a 25 per cent grade, 12 feet wide and runs to an elevation of about 20 feet. The first part of the floor is made of heavy steel bars two inches wide and one inch thick and a space between the bars of two inches. This extends up for about 12 feet and is so arranged that all of the gold and fine gravel passes through into a heavy plate of steel and that is so constructed that all the dirt, gold, etc., goes from that into a satch box containing apartments to catch the gold. The rest of the floor of the elevator is made of heavy plank and extends on up until it reaches the required height, generally about 20 or 25 feet, and as the dirt is washed up by the force of the water the rocks are forced onto the elevator and pushed over it. When the rocks get up even with the top they will sometimes put on an extension of 16 feet so that they pile the rock up to a height of 30 feet, and they will roll a boulder over the elevator that will weigh five or six hundred pounds simply by the force of the water. By the use of the two elevators they will clean off an acre of two of land at a time without moving the elevator. When the fine gravel and dirt accumulates so as to interfere with the flow of dirt from the flumes the men who direct the hydraulic simply turn loose the water on that and drives it into a pile to itself and now they have some six or eight of these mammoth piles of rock and gravel. At one setting they will clear off over an acre and half of ground, down to the bed rock and in many instances the dirt is as much as 12 to 15 feet deep. After they get the dirt and rock all sluiced off they then go over the whole of the bed rock and clean up the gold. But I will have more to say about that in my next letter, as I expect to go to the mine again and watch the process of cleaning the bed rock. And also of my trip to Cow creek.

DECIDE YOURSELF

The Opportunity is here, Backed by Medford Testimony.

Don't take our word for it. Don't depend on a stranger's statement.

Read Medford endorsement. Read the statements of Medford citizens.

And decide for yourself. Here is one case of it.

Edwin J. White, proprietor dairy business, 322 E. Main St., Medford, says: "I was nearly laid up in an attack of lumbago. It came on without any warning and I thought my back was broken. I couldn't straighten up and went about all bent over. A friend advised me to take Doan's Kidney Pills, which I did, and soon I was able to get about. It required only one box to fix me up in fine shape and since then I have never had any trouble with my back and kidneys."

Prices 60c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mr. White had. Foster-McMillan Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y. —Adv.
