

ITALIAN VICTORY MOST PORTENTOUS SAYS LLOYD GEORGE

LONDON, June 25.—Speaking on the war in the house of commons last night, Premier Lloyd-George stated that the Italian victory is one of the most portentous events of the year, and it may have infinitely greater results than other victories which look bigger. It is a defeat inflicted on a power not in the best condition to sustain it.

"Here is a great encounter, in which the Austrian empire is being held. All the strength she has been able to gather is being held, because for this attack she has brought up every available man. Considerably more than 50 percent of the Austrian effectives were engaged in this attack. Had they captured the Montello position, they might have got behind the whole allied position, and it might have been disastrous.

Great Disaster for Enemy "But they were held by the Italian army. The pressure against them increased daily, and now the Austrians are in full retreat, and the only question is whether they will be able to effect their retreat.

"The Italians have recaptured Montello and are now for the first time in months on the left side of the Piave. They have captured a number of guns and recaptured half the guns lost in the first offensive. The Austrian army committed its whole strength to this great offensive, and had inflicted upon it one of the greatest disasters in the war. This at a time of serious discontent in Austria, when three-fifths of the population are completely out of sympathy with the objects of the war—as a matter of fact, they are far more in sympathy with the aims of the allies—when three-fifths of the population are well aware that their only chance of achieving anything in the nature of freedom for themselves was to secure a great allied victory, and at a time when the whole of the Austrian prisoners belonging to one great and powerful race in Austria were actually congregating in order to come over and fight on the allied side in Siberia. I refer to the Szechoslovaks. This is a matter of great significance and hope.

Danger Still Lurks "With regard to the western front, it would be a mistake to think that the danger is over. But whatever our difficulties might be, the central powers' difficulties are infinitely greater, with populations driven by hunger to something in the nature, not merely of discontent and sedition, but even, in some cases in Austria, to revolt, and with more than half the Austrian army sympathizing with the objects of the country with which they are fighting.

"The central powers also have difficulties in other countries—in Bulgaria and Turkey. I point these things out not to raise false hopes, but to show that all we need is to keep steady, endure and stand. There is not the faintest doubt in my mind, considering the whole position and looking at the whole facts, that our victory will be complete."

PARIS, June 25.—French socialists will send delegates, including Albert Thomas, the former minister of munitions, to the coming national conference of the labor party in London. Alexandra Varéna, founder of the new socialist group, lately formed in Paris, was asked today if the socialists of this group would accept an invitation for a socialist conference in Denmark, tendered by T. Staunig, the Danish socialist leader. He stated that if it was a question of conferring with neutrals, the journey might be undertaken, but that if it was considered a step toward Stockholm and an international conference, numerous socialists would oppose acceptance.

This pronouncement from the socialist group represented by M. Varéna is considered important as a symptom of the strengthening of French unity. The ideas thus expressed also conform, it is pointed out, to those of the British and American labor parties.

NEW REGISTRATION OF LOCAL WOMEN FOR WAR WORK

A very illuminating talk was given at the Presbyterian church yesterday afternoon by Mrs. Charles H. Castner of Hood River, state chairman of the woman's division of the state council of defense, regarding the duties of the American women in war work, with particular reference to the women of Jackson county.

After explaining the purposes of the state council of defense, its handicaps because of lack of funds, but its growing influence, and are fact that every request of the state council of defense is in reality a request of the government Mrs. Carsten announced that a new registration of local women in war work would be carried on, as well as a survey of all children of 5 years of age and under.

What Women Are Doing. The tremendous change in the industrial conditions caused by the war had, the speaker explained, thrown thousands of women into business and commercial life. In Wilmington, Del., alone, in the manufacture of munitions there are nearly 15,000 women employed. In Klamath Falls where Mrs. Castner has just visited, a large number of girls and young married women are working in box factories, attracted by the excellent wages. This change has brought into bold relief the baby problem, the proper care of children in the home, the proper conditions surrounding the home, and the members of the woman's division of the council of defense are called upon to see that the welfare of the children in Oregon is not sacrificed.

Aid Young Mothers. The speaker said, however, that a normal employment of women was necessary and desirable. She urged local women of business training to take the place of able-bodied men in the offices and stores, to aid in labor on farms and in the orchard, and the place of the older women would be to take the place of young mothers, called into war work, in the care of their children.

Mrs. Castner made a strong appeal in favor of Red Cross work, saying that the need of medical bandages was greater than the supply, that in the war zone bandages were now being used over and over again, and that yet in nearly every community there were women who were not doing their share in this important work. She urged the members of the organization to do all in their power to make such women see the light and realize their obligation.

Support War Savings. A special word of praise for the war savings stamp campaign was made and hearty support of the food administration was asked. Great enthusiasm was aroused when Mrs. Castner stated that the other day a ship sailed from Portland with 2700 barrels of white flour which had been sent back by the loyal people of this state in answer to the government's appeal.

Mrs. E. N. Warner, county chairman of the woman's division of the council of defense, presided at the meeting and at noon a luncheon was given in Mrs. Castner's honor at the Hotel Medford. Over one hundred women attended the meeting, many coming from all parts of the county. The meeting will add greatly to the enthusiasm of local women in war work and hearty support of the work of the state council of defense.

The amount expected to be raised in school district No. 9 is $3924.00, but as I understand Dr. Hart, the amount that has been invested in War Savings stamps up to this time, about $1000 is to be deducted from the $3924, leaving a balance we are expected to subscribe or rather buy, $2924.
