WAR TIME ECONOMY

War Time Economy does not mean to "let down" on things, and to hoard your money. It means to spend it more intelligently, more productively—in other words to avoid waste.

More than ever before in our lives we must keep our homes and ourselves right up to the top notch of efficiency. We owe it to one another. It means added strength to fight the big fight. Let's have the courage to keep ourselves fit, ready for whatever comes.

You have come to realize that every carefully prepared meal you serve that saves wheat and sugar, and wastes nothing, is a victory, and now we want you to realize that every carefully planned garment that you buy, that saves money, is another victory.

Victory in the food fight and victory in the fight, for saving money, on dress and the upkeep of the home, will mean that the men of this community are definitely helping toward a nearer, surer victory in the world fight for democracy.

It is right at this point of saving that the Cheapest Store in the West serves you best. War time simplicity and economy is apparent in this store—every resource at our command is applied to reduce buying and selling cost and assists our patrons in their wartime savings and the buying of our Nation's Thrift Stamps so that this great World War can be successfully prosecuted to a final victory for justice and right.
