Josh Wise says: "You can't play a tune on a bass drum, but you can make everybody hear you."

On Jan. 17, 1917 a check for $915,787 was mailed to J. Ogden Armour as a dividend of 53 per cent. on his stock in the Eastern Leather Co.

All the pool rooms in South Dakota are to be closed by order of the state council of defense from July 5 till the end of the war.

The old-fashioned men who used to be called a "gentleman of leisure" is now known by his correct title—loafer.

German soldiers, says one of General Pershing's reports, have been trying to win the friendship of the Yanks. By heck, we don't blame 'em.

One of the most pleasant diversions these days is to sit in the restaurant and watch the fellow who used to load his coffee so naively with sugar that he had to eat it with a knife and fork.

A Cleveland city councilman has a plan to prevent rent increases. He proposes that the question be arbitrated. Probably he never met a landlord.

American soldiers, says Marshal von Graussenberg, of the Austrian army, will not make good soldiers on account of their "fastidious habits."

A Pessimist "Why did you get rid of your cat?" "I like a cheerful, optimistic cat around the place. This one seemed to be a calamity howler."

Missed Her Opportunity Mrs. Blowitt—I could have married four of the wealthiest men in town.

Her Husband—Why didn't you? The whole four might have been able to pay your dress bills.

A Nice Country "I'm so happy," she said. "Ever since my engagement to Bertie the whole world seems different. I don't seem to be in dull, prosaic England, but in—"

"Lapland," suggested the small brother.

Tit for Tat In a London 'bus a man in civilian garb rose and offered his seat to a woman.

"I never accept favors from slackers," she said witheringly. "Madam," he replied blandly, "was all thru Gallipoli, and if we'd had as much powder as you have on your face you'd have got to Constantinople in no time."

Protected "Now, Bertram, I don't want a lot of those French girls falling in love with you. Promise me you'll put on your gas mask if you see one coming."—Judge.

A Good Many of These "What is Ed Goodby doing these days?" questioned the man who just got home.

"Oh, he's working his son's way thru college," returned the other.—Ladies' Home Journal.

NO MORE FREE PAPERS.

THE Mail Tribune, along with every other newspaper, is in receipt of the following order from the war industries board, dated Washington, July 5, 1918:

To All Newspaper Publishers.

On account of the shortage of materials the question of the supply of paper is becoming acute and the use of paper must be economized to the greatest possible extent. It is necessary that all newspapers which publish a daily and weekly edition put the following preliminary economies into effect July 15, 1918.

Discontinue the acceptance of the return of unsold copies. Discontinue the use of all samples or free promotion copies.

Discontinue giving free copies to advertisers, except not more than one copy each for checking purposes. Discontinue the arbitrary forcing of copies on news dealers.

Discontinue the buying back of papers at either wholesale or retail selling price from dealers or agents, in order to secure preferential representation. Discontinue the payment of salaries or commission to agents, dealers, or newsmen for the purpose of securing the equivalent of return privileges.

THOMAS E. DONNELLEY, Chief Pulp and Paper Section, War Industries Board.

The Mail Tribune cheerfully complies with the above, though the actual saving in news print will be slight. Most of the requirements are already the policy of the paper and all are good business moves for the publisher.

More paper is needlessly wasted every Sunday in the parais sections of the metropolitan papers than all the economies of all the country and town newspapers in America can save in a year's time.

The war board's attention is respectfully called to the economic waste involved in the huge Sunday issues of city papers—a criminal waste of labor and material, when both are needed by the nation, without rendering any useful service in return to society to justify existence other than satisfying the catch-penny cupidity of the publisher.

Rizzo, the Dreadnaught Chaser

Italy has a mighty hunter, a young sailor who pursues neither men, nor animals, nor yet submarines, but dreadnaughts. Already he has four in his bag and two of them certainly will never furrow the Adriatic sea again.

Here is the sort of work he does. On the night of June 10th two Austrian battleships of the Viribus units type stole from the great Austrian base at Pola, surrounded by a wheeling fleet of ten destroyers.

At any rate, when Rizzo glimpsed the Austrian ships looming up vague and gray he ordered full power ahead, darted thru a gap in the shielding line of destroyers, slammed a torpedo home against the side of the 29,000 ton Szent Istvan, saw it sinking, launched another torpedo at the following dreadnaught, watched a huge column of spray shoot up as the ship keeled over badly damaged.

A Collector of Medals Of course Rizzo was promoted and decorated for this romantic enterprise. But he has been collecting medals for bravery ever since Italy entered the war and now has the most complete assortment of anyone in the country.

Rizzo is a Sicilian. He was born at Milazzo only thirty-two years ago, and with his first breath drew in the salt smell of the spindrift. Like many Sicilians he comes of a family of sailors and so, when only a lad, fell naturally into the sea service, joining the merchant marine.

When Italy declared war against Austria he was called home and made a sub-lieutenant of reserves. But almost immediately he began to show his characteristic dash, and in May 1915 he was raised to a full lieutenant.

For that he received a silver medal and was transferred to the regular service. Right afterward he began those swift raids on the enemy coast which have made him famous, and soon got another silver medal. His third medal was won during the great Italian retreat after the disaster at Caporetto.

Still Keeps at It This time Rizzo got a gold medal and was promoted to the rank of lieutenant commander. But there were still Austrian bases to attack and in February with a single torpedo boat he slipped into the Bay of Buccari and torpedoed another enemy craft which was thought to be safely hidden among the nest of submarines at Flume. He picked up a bronze medal for that and then bided his time until the Szent Istvan crept along trying to get away from just such fellows as Rizzo.

This Italian commander's exploits have a smack of the old days about them, when Mars cherished and watched out for the individual and cared less for science, when the marshal's baton reposed in every soldier's knapsack.

Last December the Italians learned that the Austrians were about to dispatch from Trieste two big battleships to bombard the Italian coast. Rizzo was ordered to spoil their plans.

Rizzo launched four torpedoes. The great battleship Wien sank in five minutes. Her companion was disabled. Before the noise of the explosions had died away Austrian searchlights were playing upon the intrepid Italians and Austrian shells were falling all about them.

This time Rizzo got a gold medal and was promoted to the rank of lieutenant commander. But there were still Austrian bases to attack and in February with a single torpedo boat he slipped into the Bay of Buccari and torpedoed another enemy craft which was thought to be safely hidden among the nest of submarines at Flume. He picked up a

TURKEY PROBES TABRIZ OUTRAGE BY HER TROOPS

WASHINGTON, July 12.—Turkey has informed the United States through the Swedish office that so far as the true facts as to the reported seizure of the American consulate and sacking of an American hospital at Tabriz, Persia, by Turkish soldiers, have not been ascertained, but that it will be done at the earliest possible moment.

Through Spanish and Swedish diplomats the United States asked for an explanation of this incident, which if regular Ottoman troops were involved, might mean a declaration of war. The attack was reported June 19, by the Spanish consul.

Minister Morris at Stockholm reported today that the foreign office had informed him the inquiry of the United States had not reached the Ottoman government until July 5. Then the matter was presented with a request for a telegraphic reply, which has now come in the form of a statement that an investigation is proceeding.

It is assumed that the Turkish government is having great difficulty in communicating with its forces in Persia.

Do Not Get Careless With Your Blood Supply

Impurities Invite Disease. You should pay particular heed to any indication that your blood supply is becoming sluggish, or that there is a lessening in its strength and vital force.

By keeping your blood purified, your system more easily wards off disease that is ever present, waiting to attack wherever there is an opening.

PROBE OWNERSHIP OF STOCK IN THREE CHEMICAL FIRMS

NEW YORK, July 12.—A hearing to determine whether the majority of the stocks of three chemical companies in the United States is American owned or German owned was begun here today before Merton E. Lewis, state attorney general, at the request of the department of justice and A. Mitchell Palmer, alien property custodian.

If the majority of the stock of these three concerns, the Hoechst and Hoeslacher Chemical company of New York and two subsidiaries, the Niagara Electro-Chemical company, Niagara Falls, N. Y., and the Perth Amboy Chemical company of Perth Amboy, N. J., is owned by a German company, the Gold and Silver Refinery of Frankfurter, Germany, as alleged by the government, the three companies will be subject to seizure by the alien property custodian.

The companies assert that 52 per cent of the stock is American owned, their claim being based on an alleged transfer of this amount of the stock to American hands in February, 1917, or two months before the United States entered the war.

Lillian Fairfield of Hornbrook, is a guest at the Hotel Holland.

Before the arrival of the stock there is much to talk about. The comfort of the expectant mother is the chief topic, and there is here to be seen the woman who has used or knows of that special external help—Mother's Friend.

By the regular use of Mother's Friend during the period the troubles are made and kept soft and easier they expand easily, without strain, when baby is born and the pain and danger of the crisis is naturally less.
