No Single Feature Could Give Such High Efficiency

Maxwell Motor Cars

Table with 2 columns: Car Model and Price. Includes 5-Passenger Car, 5-Passenger with All-Weather Top, 5-Pass Sedan, 6-Pass. Town Car.

A.W. Walker Auto Co.

Medford, Ore.

We said recently that this Maxwell Motor Car is a "featureless car."

By that we meant that no one feature was better than any other—and none less efficient or effective.

Uniformity is the outstanding quality of Maxwell design and construction.

Apropos that, we are frequently asked what particular detail of the motor is responsible for the tremendous mileage per gallon of gasoline obtained by Maxwell owners.

If you ask an owner he will almost invariably give the carburetor most of the credit.

Now, obviously the carburetor must be a good one. If it were not, it would prevent, even if it did not accomplish the result.

But a good carburetor does not make a good motor car—nor an efficient mixing valve alone an efficient motor.

The factors that made that famous "Non-Stop" record possible, and the test in which 3,000 owner-driven Maxwell Motor Cars averaged 29.4 miles per gallon of gasoline—were many.

Every detail of motor design had to be right—every proportion just right in relation to every other one.

Piston displacement, valve dimensions and valve lift, compression, balance—everything in precise ratio and correct relation to every other detail.

'Twould require a volume to tell how Maxwell engineers achieved that splendid result. Just as it required long years of practical manufacturing experience to know how.

Of course the carburetor helps—but equally so does the electrical system.

By the way, if this were the kind of motor car in which any one feature stood out above others, we would emphasize that electrical system.

But it isn't. Maxwell results are uniform. Those results are the product of a combination of many features—not of one or two only.

Similarly, if one owner achieved a sensational mileage or a high degree of reliability, that would prove nothing.

That happens with all makes of cars—the poorest included. But for 3,000 owners to average 29.4 miles per gallon of gasoline;

For the same model to run 22,022 miles—44 consecutive days and nights without stopping—THAT CAR MUST BE A MAXWELL.
