ASHLAND AND VICINITY

The Red Cross salvage headquarters are now open for business every day in the week except on Sundays and Mondays. A varied assortment of goods are on sale and donations are solicited. No goods are sold on commission, it being taken for granted that all the wares are donated to the Red Cross outright. The plan is to effect the sales on the merits of the articles, giving value received, the transactions being based on strict business principles, devoid of excessive profit which some might think sentimentality would dictate under the circumstances.

At the same time a veritable bargain counter is to be met with in many respects. The salvage corps is now effected on a permanent basis, with the following officers elected, to superintend its business interests: Mrs. Etta Lanikin, chairman; Mrs. Mary Whitney, secretary; Miss Lillian Patterson, treasurer. Miss Mary Niver has charge of publicity features as secretary in this special assignment. The ladies have planned the sales days and the appointment of help on a schedule to meet all requirements, and hope to receive liberal patronage in behalf of this deserving cause.

One wheel of the wagon became lodged in an obstruction in the road and Mrs. Billings was violently thrown from the vehicle, receiving severe cuts on the forehead and other bruises. Barring complications her speedy recovery is assured.

Reports indicate that the Moore brothers, F. W. and H. L., have purchased the Robert P. Neil ranch of several hundred acres in the Dead Indian section.

Mrs. Ellen Wagner and Mrs. Eugenia Atkinson arrived here Saturday from a tour of Jackson and Klamath counties. Occupying Prospect as a base, they visited all the noted scenic localities in that section, including Crater lake. The only actual labor attendant upon this pleasure outing was the time spent in foraging after the elusive huckleberry.

Mrs. B. O. Walden, clerk at McGee's, has returned from her summer vacation.

Mrs. Lola Applegate, accompanied by her son Robert, and daughter Doris, has returned to her home at Harrisburg, after a visit of two months here with relatives. En route she visited with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Payne, who are now residents of Dallas.
