CARD SYSTEM FOR LIMITING USE OF SUGAR ADOPTED

A card system for limiting sugar purchases to two pounds a person a month has been adopted by the food administration. Each family will have one sugar card on file with the dealer, according to the new rules which are being put into effect in Jackson county by Food Controller Folger.

The cards will be filed with the food administrator, who will check them over to provide against duplications. The new restrictions were made following complaints from retail dealers that many were repeating purchases and were buying at different stores.

A catechism summary of the sugar situation has been prepared to inform the public of the seriousness of the situation. "I wish to emphasize that any family having on hand sugar in excess of their needs for eating should return this to the dealer," said Mr. Folger in speaking of the new rules.

What is sugar hoarding? It is having on hand more than is needed for a reasonable length of time. You should not fail to return any unused sugar purchased for canning purposes.

May a household have more than a month's supply of sugar on hand? This is not justifiable except in extreme cases where they are no stores available for purchase, and it should be done only upon advice of the federal food administrator or his deputy.

What are some of the evil effects of hoarding? It throws the distribution system out of joint; it raises prices; it imposes a heavier burden upon those already doing their utmost; it results in waste where there are no proper facilities for storage; it is dishonest.

What is the moral wrong of hoarding? It is selfish, cowardly and unpatriotic. It is, in effect, taking unto oneself special privileges at a time when all Americans should be on the same footing, share and share alike.

Is there any punishment for hoarders? Yes. The food control act provides fines of not more than $5,000 and imprisonment for hoarding by dealers, manufacturers or householders.

GERMAN FINED $50 FOR MAKING A BET

LONDON, Aug. 13.—A German subject was fined $50 at Newcastle for making a bet of a bowling match. He had been in England since infancy but had never been naturalized. When arrested he had $500 in his possession.

EXIT "SAMMIES."

GENERAL MARCH, chief of staff of the war department is the latest to file a protest against the nickname of "Sammy" for the American soldiers in France. He states that the name is objectionable to the men and that the British simply style them "Yanks."

The name "Sammy" was adopted by some of the smart-alec New York newspaper correspondents when Pershing's first troops landed in France. It was widely copied by press associations and newspaper feature syndicates, though it met instant rejection and protest by the soldiers themselves.

"Sammy" is suggestive of sissy, and when applied to the husky heroes of the Marne is a sad misfit. There is nothing diminutive or effeminate about the American soldier and he deserves a better fate than to be thus camouflaged.

"Sammy" was never popular at home or abroad and the least we can do is to forget it—if for no other reason than that the soldiers ask it. Americans have been dubbed "Yanks" for a century and probably will continue to be for other centuries.

"Yank" is an abbreviation of "Yankee" and has the merit of real American origin. It is supposed to have been originated by the American Indians as a corrupt pronunciation of the word English and was in use in the 17th century. Though originally used to designate New Englanders, it was applied to all northerners during the Civil war, but since the declaration of independence has been given to all Americans by foreigners.

YOUTH ESSENTIAL.

THE greatest increase in the army from the new man power bill registering men for military duty between 18 and 45 will come from those between 18 and 21. The percentage of unmarried men between 31 and 45 fit for military duty is comparatively small. Moreover the withdrawal of a large number would seriously affect industry and cripple business, for it is just as essential that the industrial army be kept at work behind the lines as it is that the fighting army be kept at the front.

There are now, according to federal statistics, 224,326 men under 21 already in the army and navy. Of these 133,000 are in the army, 97,500 in the navy and 13,826 in the marine corps.

In the Civil war, out of a total enlistment of 2,788,314, only 628,516 were over 21 years of age and 1,151,438 were 18 or younger. Of the northern armies, a great majority were under 21. The Civil war was virtually fought by those under the minimum age of the present draft law.

Lloyd George says that it was the boys of 18, training in the British army that checked the great German drive of March 21. Similar tribute is paid to the boys of other warring nations and there is no question but that the best soldiers are those between 18 and 25.

The allied war council, which is running the war, has requested the United States to have an army of 5,000,000 troops at the disposal of Marshal Foch by spring—and more must be available if needed. Only by including the youths of 18 can such an army be raised without disturbing the economic life of the nation. The army must be ready if we are to make a quick end of the war.

The proposal to give all these youths in service a free education at government expense to better fit them for industrial life after the war is a good one. The war in itself will provide a liberal education; turn thoughtless youths into thinking men, who know the world by seeing it and remove the curse of narrow provincialism from the generation that will rule the land. And all youths should gladly embrace the chance to serve their country so profitably.

ROGUE BARTILETT'S BRING GOOD PRICE

Oregon Bartillets are bringing good prices. A car of pears from Blenheim's Hampton and Mira Vista orchards, small sizes, sold thru the Birdwell Fruit company, at Chicago Monday at $3.32 a box, which means better than $2 net a box in Medford. A carload of valley pears, shipped out by the Rogue River Fruit Distributors sold in Cleveland Monday at a good price. No reports were received today of any valley pears having been sold in the east. Prices at the eastern auction markets yesterday as telegraphed to the Rogue River Fruit and Produce company were as follows: New York (24 cars California pears) $2.72; Chicago, $3.60; Boston, $2.90.

JAPANESE RIOTING OVER HIGH RICE PRICES

TOKYO, Aug. 11.—(By the Associated Press.) Six thousand demonstrators against the high price of rice have destroyed stores at Kyoto, forcing the authorities to call out the troops. Several members of the crowd, which was armed with swords and axes, were wounded. The government is arranging for the sale of rice to the poor at cost.

FIVE CANADIANS CAPTURE 100 HUNS

WITH THE CANADIAN FORCES IN PICARDY, Aug. 13.—(By Canadian Press.)—During the open days of the present offensive, five members of a well known Canadian battalion captured more than 100 Germans. In a dense fog one morning the party suddenly came upon a fully manned German trench. A corporal in the party gave the order to fire. This show of force brought more than 100 Germans, one after another, tumbling up out of the trench to surrender.

COWLES FINDS NEW USE FOR SURGEONS TAPE FOR AUTOS

Mr. and Mrs. Fred H. Cowles accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. L. R. Hubbard and Mrs. Sooyouth returned Wednesday noon from a trip to Crater Lake, having spent an exciting night in their stalled automobile some miles this side of Trail.

About 8:30 o'clock, in crossing a bridge, they had a puncture. The new extra tube they had proved defective and blew out as fast as a pencil. Nine different times Mr. Cowles took off and put on and blew up the tire by flashlight torch, only to have it flatten out before the machine was fairly started. He tried to run on the rim, but it was too rough. At midnight he gave it up and walked three miles to find a house with a phone to summon assistance—but the Jones scared him off at one place and in the darkness he was unable to locate another. Weary and footsore he returned to the car to await daybreak to the music of the coyote. At dawn he walked several miles to the Hylanders clubhouse where he improvised a breakfast and took it with his furnished guests who had gone without dinner the evening before to reach Medford early.

In his "first aid" package, Mr. Cowles located some surgical adhesive tape. Reinforcing his patches with this he was enabled to proceed several miles at a time before the patch blew off. He worked his passage slowly toward the city. Just how many times he took off, patched, and blew up that tire he don't know—he lost track of the count long before reaching the Modoc orchard, where help was summoned by phone.

SECRECY VEILS FUTURE SUMMONS TO ARMY SERVICE

Public farewells at the depot to draft contingents leaving the city are a thing of the past, and hereafter the drafted men will depart from Medford quietly and without the time of their going or even their names being known until after the train has departed. This is in accordance with orders recently received by the county draft board from the adjutant general's office.

The government's policy now is to surround the draft movements in secrecy. No longer will the various draft calls be published in advance, and the names or destinations of the men selected to fill these calls. The drafted men themselves will not know where they are bound for until they are aboard the train. They will be merely notified to report to the draft board on a certain date, it is said, but will be given plenty of time to bid farewell to their relatives and friends.

The secrecy now to be thrown about draft calls and contingents is said to be for the protection of the men themselves lest some pro-German sympathizer or crazy I. W. W. member, knowing the train and destination of a contingent might wreck the train.
