

AMAZING FEATS OF BRITISH FLIERS DURING DRIVE

Crippled Airship Attacked by Fokkers Tanks Two Pursuers and With Gas Down and Engines Shot to Pieces Dives Thru Clouds to British Lines—Observers Crawls Out on Wings.

WITH THE BRITISH ARMY IN FRANCE, Sept. 11.—(By the Associated Press.)—Amazing feats by British airmen during the recent fighting may now be mentioned.

A pilot and observer, returning from a bombing raid, fell behind their formation because of engine trouble and were attacked by Fokkers. The elevator controls were immediately shot away and the observer was badly wounded. But he continued to fight and shot down one Fokker in flames and saw another crash out of control.

By this time all the gasoline tanks had been shot through and the engine hit in several places. All the instruments on the dashboard were smashed by enemy bullets. Both rear guns were jammed and the observer bleeding badly. The pilot succeeded in getting his machine into a dive and went through a cloud and reached the British lines. The gallant observer was found to have been wounded 10 times during the fight.

Downs His Pursuer

Attacked by a squadron of enemy airplanes, a lone British scout spun downward, but on the way saw that only one of the enemy was following him, so he came suddenly out of the spin just above a grove of trees and caught the enemy machine crossing in front of him and shot it to earth where it burst into flames.

There are many stories, too, of how British (irmen swooped back and forth over the German batteries playing their guns on the enemy, until these guns were completely silenced.

Such tactics as these aided materially in making the recent British victories possible. One British scout sailed over an enemy sausage, dived and finished off two German sentry planes then fired on the sausage, which was being hauled down and finally drowned two bombs squarely on the winch used in raising and lowering the balloon.

Crawled Out on Wings

There were many instances where the observer crawled out on the wings and stopped bullet holes in the gas tanks with his fingers, a handkerchief or a glove. One machine had its starboard top and bottom planes broken by anti-aircraft fire. An observer leaned over the side of the fuselage holding a machine gun in his hands and thus maintained the balance and enabled the airplane to land safely.

Another machine had its gas tank punctured by a bullet and the pilot was wounded in the leg. The fuselage burst into flames but the observer kept the fire under control with a small extinguisher until the machine was brought to earth, where it blazed up, the observer rescuing the wounded pilot just in time.

There is an increasing number of cases in which British pilots have attacked enemy night bombers caught in searchlight beams. In every case reported the enemy has been shot down.

This is a ruling of the department, and is a regulation mutually advantageous to both shippers and postal employees.
