

HUMAN FLY TELLS OF ROUGH TRIP IN DODGE AUTOMOBILE

Jack Williams, the Human Fly, is very fond of the Dodge automobile, and the reason for that fondness is due to a trip that he made in one from Denver, Colo., to Salt Lake City thru one of the roughest parts of the country to which an automobile was ever introduced. His account of the trip follows and brings to light some unusual points in the Dodge's favor.

"We left Denver in a Dodge headed for Salt Lake City last July, not knowing what was in store for us on the way. No special arrangements were made for a tedious trip as we expected to be able to make the trip in at least two days, the mileage being something over 500 and allow me to say right here that had it not been for the exceptionally easy riding qualities of the Dodge I would at the present moment be a permanent guest of Wyoming's prettiest insane asylum as I did not know that a car could do all the things that car was called upon to do on that trip and have enough of it left to make a rolling pin for the spider family.

"After leaving the little city of Laramie, Wyo., we began turning that poor little Dodge first into a submarine and then into a biplane of the clear air type. The road was not broad and should never have been called a road. It sounds funny to hear some people of the state of Oregon cuss the roads here. I dare say had they been with us on that trip they would have a great deal less to say about the roads in this state. But that isn't telling what happened to us.

"About 10 miles out of Laramie the highway started up an incline as though it was peacefully going to cross the railroad. Arrived at the top we could not see where to go from there. Apparently the highway ended right there. After 15 minutes spent in looking around for the road we had lost, we discovered that instead of crossing the railroad, it wasn't a real railroad, but it was an abandoned one that we were to drive that Dodge along over those holes that once upon a time had been filled with ties, and for thirty miles we did nothing but bump the bumps. Added to this was the misery of a hot summer day on the prairie. After about six hours of this kind of treatment we began to descend into the valley, and you may be sure that it wasn't a road that we had been following. It was filled with ruts and washouts varying in depth from six inches to three feet, making it impossible to drive faster than 10 miles an hour, and we had 150 miles to go over, nearly all in the same condition.

"As we had nothing to eat and no water it was necessary to keep going all night as there were no farms or ranches in that part of the wilderness, only four fools and a little Dodge. About 10 o'clock that night we struck a good little trail and the driver started to speed her up. Wish, boom, crash! And fifteen minutes later I woke to find that one wheel had run off an embankment and the Dodge was bottom side up. Nice predicament for Human Fly and a Dodge. Well, we all got around the thing and turned it right side up after a superhuman effort, the driver got in, pushed the started and there sounded the prettiest little purr, and that little Dodge just ran right off as if nothing had happened without even a puncture. About 4 o'clock next afternoon we arrived at Salt Lake City. Well, it is only natural that I should like a Dodge after such trying conditions."

PERSHING RULES STERNLY

to make war on a civilian population. All persons who, with honest submission, act peacefully and obey the rules laid down by the military authorities will be protected in their persons, homes, religion and property. All others will be brought within the rule with firmness, vigor and promptness. The American army will govern in strict accordance with international law and the rules and customs of war sanctioned by the civilized world. Inhabitants on their part must absolutely abstain in word and deed from every act of hostility or impediment of any kind toward the American forces. It is your duty now to devote yourselves to the orderly and obedient conduct of your private lives and affairs, to the re-establishment of normal conditions in schools, churches, hospitals and charitable institutions and resumption of your local civil life.

"You will be unobstructed, but on the contrary, will be encouraged and protected in those pursuits. So far as your attitude and conduct make it possible, local courts, governing bodies and institutions will be continued in operation under supervision of American authorities. Except where they affect the rights and security of the American army your present laws and regulations will remain undisturbed and in force. Every violation of the laws of war, every act offering hostility or violence and every disobedience of the rules laid down by military authority will be punished with the utmost vigor."

GERMANS UNABLE TO SEDUCE SINGLE AMERICAN OFFICIAL

Second List Held Up

Besides this list, Mr. Bielaski also presented a supplemental list of about 30 names of others to whom he said German propaganda matter was mailed, but who were not believed to be friendly to the cause.

This list, the committee decided to withhold from the record.

Mr. Bielaski produced letters Dr. Hale wrote to Dr. Albert, German propagandist, advising how notes written by Secretary Bryan during the Lusitania controversy should be answered.

From Dr. Fuehr's diary notes were read telling of conferences between Hale and Von Bernstorff. Accompanying Hale was Lewis D. Edwards, also sent by Mr. Hearst, who later according to Mr. Bielaska, discovered Hale still was in the pay of the German government.

Newspaper Offered

A prisoner named Weunenberg, at Atlanta penitentiary, convicted of espionage, according to Mr. Bielaski, informed the department of justice that a special mission of Hale was to arrange, in transmitting his news dispatches, to include messages for German officials in this country.

Many books and pamphlets showing German propaganda efforts were produced by Mr. Bielaski.

Mr. Bielaski told the committee that in October, 1914, Bernstorff wrote a letter addressed to Albert and Dernburg in which he said the Washington Post was offered to him for $2,000,000. This offer was made, he said, with the understanding that the Post owners buy the paper back at the end of the war for $1,500,000.

The communication from Fuehr to the German foreign office dated August 2, 1916, said the Post had been friendly to Germany up to that time, but recently had shown indications of joining the enemy. This change was attributed by Fuehr to the Russian ambassador and he said the policy had changed since the death of the late John R. McLean.

In a letter to Bernstorff, Fuehr said "the Washington Post may be lost to us if it cannot be put in the hands of Mr. Hearst."

COFFEE EXCHANGE PERMITTED TO REOPEN

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—The New York Coffee Exchange may re-open when it so desires, it was announced today by the food administration. Members of the exchange will meet in New York Monday to determine the date of re-opening and when trading shall be resumed.

Notice to Merchants
The certificate plan of buying sugar has been discontinued, and merchants may supply their needs direct as before the war. The consumers' card system may be discontinued, but merchants will please preserve cards heretofore used until called for by the county administrator.
