Alex Sparrow, supervisor of Crater Lake national forest, created much excitement at the depot this morning. After purchasing a ticket for Tacoma and boarding the train he decided to purchase a pair of arctic shoes at a front street store while the train was waiting. Just as the train was pulling out he emerged from the store and started for the rear car calling to the crew to "Hold 'er." The crew did not hear him, and had closed the platform doors. The frantic and breathless supervisor just managed to reach the steps of the last car. Now everyone wonders why an earth Alex wanted a pair of arctic shoes.

Place order for an Oldsmobile now. Trechler Peterson, Inc. School libraries for every county in the state are now ready at the state public library and will soon be distributed. Miss Cordelia Marvin, state librarian, says the books this year are much more attractive than formerly, especially those dealing with American history. The books for county distribution this year are also in many ways more interesting. Jewelry, the gift of love, answers every gift requirement; it is the remembrance that means more to the recipient than any other gift. Martin J. Reddy, 227

SOCIALISTS TOLD WORKERS NOT TO OBEY THE DRAFT

CHICAGO, Dec. 16.—Two Jackies, former members of the Young People's Socialist league, were the principal witnesses today at the trial of Victor L. Berger and four other socialist leaders charged with conspiracy to violate the espionage law.

The witnesses are William Maukus of Waukegan, Ill., and Carl Berreiter. Berreiter told of attending a convention of Young People's Socialist league in May, 1917, at which he said several anti-war resolutions were adopted.

Maukus identified an anti-war resolution which he said William Kruse, one of the defendants, assisted in preparing and which was presented at a meeting of the league on May 6, 1917. It urged all "workers" not to join the army, even if drafted, and also called for contributions for the defense of members who might become involved in difficulties because of adherence to the resolution.

NEW YORK, Dec. 16.—Major General Barnett, head of the marine corps, returned from two and a half months spent in Paris and at the front, enthusiastic over the record of his fighters from Chateau Thierry to the end of the war. He said the marines were "wonderful."

Among the army men aboard were 486 officers and men and a number of wounded from the second anti-aircraft battalion, which was in action on the Toul front when hostilities ceased. They are from California in command of Major James W. Riley. Other aerial units were taken on at Liverpool.

Many of the returned Americans wore decorations for bravery.

LITTLE INTEREST IN 1919 SESSION OF LEGISLATURE

SALEM, Ore., Dec. 16.—The legislature of Oregon will convene January 13, 1919, for a session to last not more than forty days. The governor is privileged to call a special session of not to exceed twenty days, any time within the biennial period, but this has seldom been done in the history of the state.

Little legislation of importance has been forecast for the coming session, and nothing of a partisan nature can well raise an issue. Seventy-nine republicans, nine democrats and two independents will make up the legislature. Prohibition will not be an issue, in any form, it is predicted.

With Oregon definitely in the bone dry column, the ratification of the federal prohibition amendment is expected to be made without a battle of any consequence.

A proposition to simplify the state government by doing away with a large number of offices and a re-grouping of the duties of others, is to be reported upon to the legislature by a committee appointed two years ago, and interest may center in the consideration of this plan, which, however, is not conceded to have much chance of adoption. The radical nature of the changes suggested and the large number of office holders affected will work against its chances of success, according to political prophets.
