

PRESIDENT GETS NEARER PEOPLE IN MANCHESTER

MANCHESTER, Dec. 30.—President Wilson, who arrived here last evening, found in this city a different atmosphere from that of London. There his time was absorbed and necessarily by formalities and official functions. Here there have been formal events, but with a more democratic air. Here he found a hospitality which could not be warmer than that of London, but which brought him closer to the people.

The lord mayor is a self-made man. His home, where Mr. and Mrs. Wilson were guests, is in a section of the city hall where the mayor's life during his terms of office. The rest of the president's party were quartered at a nearby hotel.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilson sat down to an early family dinner last evening and soon afterward retired to their apartment on the fourth floor where they could rest. The president's days in England have involved great physical strain which was apparent to those near him last evening.

The most important feature of today was the presentation of the Freedom of the city to Mr. Wilson, with an address by the president. Thirty-five minutes were allotted to the speech. It was at first planned to hold the ceremony in the municipal chamber, which is the customary theater for civic events, but in response to public opinion, the old Free Trade Hall, which accommodates nearly 4,000 persons, was selected.

Pressure for invitations from officials from nearby cities, as well as from the people of Manchester, was insistent. If Free Trade Hall had been three times as large it could not have sheltered all who were anxious to secure admission.

The most notable engineering works in Manchester are the ship canal and docks. The first activity of the day was an inspection of these and the party proceeded from the city hall in automobiles. There were eight cars in the procession. After his return to the city hall, Mrs. E. Holaday, American consul, presented American residents in the city.

From there it was a short drive to the Free Trade Hall. After the ceremonies there, the official party drove by a circuitous route to the Midland Hotel, where at 1 o'clock the president was entertained at luncheon by the city officials and many of the representative citizens.

Before Mr. Wilson's arrival at the hotel there was an incident at the Royal Exchange which will be treasured in the history of that institution. The president appeared in the distinguished strainers' gallery, while the floor was filled with members, and made them a very brief, informal speech.

The only escort for the president's drives about the city was a squad of mounted police. Mr. and Mrs. Wilson and their party took the train for London shortly before 3 o'clock.

EXPRESS CRUISERS WILL TAKE PLACE OF HYDROPLANES

DETROIT, Dec. 30.—Fast express cruisers, which can be used for commercial purposes when not being used in racing events, will soon displace hydroplanes as the object of interest to yachtsmen in speed contests, according to Commodore A. A. Schantz, of the Detroit Yacht club.

Commodore Schantz is authority for the statement that hydroplane racing is passing out. The type of powerboats that have been seen tearing through the water at more than 60 miles an hour in the famous Gold Cup races, the local yachtsmen declare, have little about them that is practical.

"The government during the war," Commodore Schantz said, "did not regard any of these hydroplanes seriously when it was having fast boats constructed for the navy, and that fact opened the eyes of the sportsmen to the impracticability of the racing machines we have built for the annual races for the Gold Cup."

Detroit will defend the Gold Cup next fall, if necessary, he added, but that will be the final effort of local yachtsmen in the powerboat game.

Commodore Schantz believes the express cruiser races will attract many more entries than the hydroplane events.

WILSON PAYS TRIBUTE TO GENERAL HAIG

MANCHESTER, Dec. 30.—In his address at the luncheon at the Midland Hotel today President Wilson referred to unity of command on the battlefield in the recent hostilities. "I not only," he said, "had the pleasure of meeting Marshal Foch, who confirmed my admiration by the direct and simple manner in which he dealt with every question we talked about, but I had the pleasure of meeting your own commander and I understand how they co-operated because I saw they were real men."

It would be necessary in the years to come, he said, to submit to unity of command, but the powers must plan a unity of purpose in which they would find a great recompense and a strengthening of spirit.

Before Mr. Wilson's arrival at the hotel there was an incident at the Royal Exchange which will be treasured in the history of that institution. The president appeared in the distinguished strainers' gallery, while the floor was filled with members, and made them a very brief, informal speech.

The only escort for the president's drives about the city was a squad of mounted police. Mr. and Mrs. Wilson and their party took the train for London shortly before 3 o'clock.
