SOLENS PROTECT IMMORAL WOMEN

SALEM, Feb. 11.—The house used practically the entire morning session today on the war department's morals bill and finally killed the measure.

Representative Elmore, opening the debate, stated briefly that the bill was requested by the war department of the United States, which he considered sufficient recommendation. It legislated against prostitutes, professional and otherwise and those who patronized houses of ill-repute.

Representative Hughes then took the floor and said he opposed the bill whether or not the government was behind it. It placed too much of the burden on the woman, he said. Martin echoed his sentiments.

Mrs. Thompson opposed it as discriminating against women.

MYSTERY VEILS DISAPPEARANCE OF 2 QTS. BOOZE

What became of two of the 14 quarts of whisky which disappeared from the train when Earl McManiman of Los Angeles was arrested by Speed Cop McDonald last Friday night. That is a mystery which is puzzling Sheriff Charles Terrell. The more he ponders on the matter the more mystified he becomes.

When after the jury trial in Judge Taylor's court yesterday noon in which McManiman was found not guilty, the sheriff took the suit cases back to Jacksonville and was looking over the contents he discovered that one bottle was filled with vinegar and another with coffee.

"Well, I'll be doggoned," said Terrell, or rather he used the Lake creek expression meaning the same thing. He now does not know whether the jurymen, the police or the speed cop played a joke on him, or whether some one swiped the booze contents of the two bottles since Friday night and substituted the harmless decoctions. Anyhow, two perfectly good quarts of whisky disappeared from two bottles since the arrest was made last Friday night.

Of course the law allows the jury in a liquor case to sample the evidence submitted to determine whether the evidence is booze or not, but of course presumes that the sampling will be light. Then anyhow, the average Jackson county juror would just need a quick glance, a hurried sniff and a mere taste to recognize any breed of booze, and too would not profane any booze bottle by putting coffee or vinegar in it. That seems to let the jury out of the mystery.
