Christian Church
Members of the First Christian church are looking forward with much interest to the coming of Rev. D. E. Millard and wife who will arrive March 1st to take up the pastoral work. Rev. Millard has been in the "Y" work in the navy yard at Bremerton for the last eight months and has been in close touch with our boys. Mr. Millard will be here for the Sunday school and church service on March 2nd and plans are being made by those interested to ask every member of the church and Sunday school to be present at that time as well as any friends of the church. Some plans will be discussed in the Sunday school hour tomorrow and a meeting of the board is called for immediately following the morning communion service. Let everyone be present this Sunday to help plan for the coming of our new pastor.

Bible school 9:45, followed by communion and board meeting.

Women in War Work

There seems to be a lack of knowledge in the community in regard to the workings of the home service department, and we wish to again make it plain to every soldier's family that we have a department of this kind right here in Medford and a most efficient woman at the head of the department who will at all times answer any inquiry regarding allowance, compensation or any matter whatsoever that has to do with a soldier or his family. This is not a charitable institution, but one authorized by the United States government for the sole purpose of keeping in touch with every one of Uncle Sam's laddies, and rendering any service, great or small, that will give those remaining at home, comfort. Tell your troubles, your hopes or fears to Mrs. Schieffelin and great good will be the result, for she is in constant touch with the government on matters pertaining to the soldier. Anyone having Red Cross yarn to knit into garments will please finish the garment as soon as possible, for the Red Cross is anxious to make a shipment.

We have 370 lbs. of yarn to be made into garments for women and children. Several ladies are now working on samples and as soon as these are completed instructions will be given at the knitting room and every captain of a knitting unit is earnestly requested to watch the paper for the cue when to call at Red Cross for proper instructions, and rather her crew of knitters together for the emergency.
The Red Cross greatly appreciate the nice sum of money given to them by the disbanded soldiers auxiliary and take this opportunity of publicly thanking them.
Draw again the knitting needles that temporarily were sheathed following the signing of the armistice. Hands that became expert in wielding them in thousands of Red Cross work rooms, when there were garments to be made for our boys in camps and trenches, have new work to do and this time it is not a matter of supplying comforts; it is one of relieving actual and terrible suffering. Patriotism never had any finer personification than in the case of millions of American women who responded to the country's call and became the "army behind the army." Now it is humanity that calls. Women and children all over Europe are suffering for the lack of proper clothing. It is to supply in some measure the crying needs in this line of relief that the Red Cross chapters are now summoned to a new knitting task, and yarn originally intended for soldiers' garments is to be made available as quickly as possible for the making of stockings, mufflers and sweaters for children, and shawls for women.

The daily press cables are full of heart-rending stories of distress—misery beyond description. Henry Pratt Judson, president of the University of Chicago, on his arrival in New York a few days ago from a tour of inspection in the Near East, told of scores of thousands of Syrian and Armenian refugees who had marched 700 miles thru storms and winds, with nothing but scraps on their backs.
A Vladivostok cablegram describes the pitiful plight of several thousand Russian children who were sent to the country to escape famine, but were left stranded by the military operations. The American Red Cross is caring for some 1200 of them in certain centers, but thousands more are "rattling wild in the trail mountains, subsisting on roots and what they can beg and living in a state approaching savagery.
Ignace Jan Paderewski, polifecian first, pianist second, represents united Poland, the fruition of vain dreams. He is seeking to create a strong and able state that may take its place among the powers.
A social hour, scheduled for 3:30 at Red Cross sewing rooms Monday afternoon will bring together those women of Medford who have given the required 500 hours of service and anyone else interested, for the purpose of giving to these women, for the sum of $1, a service badge. It is keenly regretted that the Red Cross cannot bestow the badge gratis, but owing to strict rules by which the Red Cross is governed, funds cannot be expended in any other way than for relief to stricken humanity in one form or another. If there are any ladies in Medford who know to a certainty they have given of their time 500 hours to Red Cross work since an organization was effected, and haven't sent their names to Mrs. Moors, will you please do so between

CARUSO IN FILM
AT LIBERTY SUNDAY

The Page theatre will present next Thursday, Friday and Saturday, a film dealing with the life of the late Colonel Theodore Roosevelt, appropriately entitled "The Fighting Roosevelts." This feature picture traces the life of the great American from the days of his boyhood, up thru his career as youngest member of the legislature of the state of New York, takes us with him to the western plains, shows him to us as mayor of New York city, as governor of New York state, as the colonel of a regiment of roughriders in the Spanish-American war, and finally as its highest executive chief.
"The Fighting Roosevelts" stands today an accurate and complete history of the greatest American the country ever knew. The picture was made not long before the death of Roosevelt. He authorized it himself and stated that any profits that might accrue to him should be turned over to the Red Cross or other patriotic organizations. He co-operated with the director, gave him access to his libraries, albums and diaries and saw to it that the various events of his career were set down with the greatest degree of accuracy possible.
To Miss "The Fighting Roosevelts" would be to miss the best lesson in Americanism!

Under the direction of Edward Jose, Enrico Caruso and his company engaged in the filming of "My Cousin," the great tenor's first picture for Artcraft, which will be shown at the Liberty theater next Sunday and Monday, went to the Metropolitan Opera house for a number of interior scenes. About 500 extras were used in the making of scenes with the world famous "diamond horseshoe" and balconies as background.
The remainder of the shots for this series of scenes were made at the Manhattan Opera house, due to the fact that the stage of the Metropolitan was utilized for other purposes, chiefly the painting of scenery for next year's production. About 40 members of the Metropolitan chorus took part in the scene from "I Pagliacci," which was reproduced on the stage of the Manhattan. The support provided for Mr. Caruso is exceptionally fine, his leading woman being Carolina White, a famous opera singer.
