

NEW GAME CODE CLOSES STREAMS TO WINTER FISHING

One of the important bits of work done by the legislature was the passage of a state game code, which changes fish and game laws and gives the fish and game commission the authority to close a stream to commercial fishing, but to leave it open to angling. This does not confer upon the commission the power to open a stream in disregard of the provisions of the statute, but it may close it as it sees fit, regardless of statutory regulations. This will enable the commission to close the Rogue whenever deemed necessary.

Another feature of importance which was placed in the law at the last minute was a closed season of four months on trout. As it now stands, the season will be closed during December, January, February and March. The act originally provided for a closed season for January, February and March, and inasmuch as the steelhead is a true trout, the Rogue and its tributaries are closed automatically hereafter to winter and spring fishermen.

Deer Season Uniform
The fish and game code also makes the deer season uniform throughout the state, being open from September 1 to October 31, inclusive, with a bag limit of two deer with horns, there being no change in the limit.

The duck season under the act is to extend from October 1 to January 15, inclusive, and in all counties in western Oregon, with the exception of Clatsop, Columbia, Multnomah and Tillamook, open from October 15 to February 15, inclusive. In the four counties named the season will be from September 15 to December 31.

This change in the season, in particular as it affects the four counties named, is of wide significance to the lovers of sport, as it is believed in this is found a satisfactory solution of the duck baiting question, which has arisen from time to time to confront the various legislatures. In fact, this provision in the act was reached as a compromise on the duck baiting subject and caused the duck baiting bill to die a natural death in committee without further discussion.

Duck Hunting Law
Under the arrangement reached, the duck hunters who bait their game along the Columbia and its tributaries will have cleaned up their shooting by December 31, and this will allow the birds to drift on down into the Willamette valley counties in search for better feeding grounds. It is believed this will obviate the contention that has been kept up by Willamette valley sportsmen that duck baiting practically kills the sport in the valley.

Another change of prime importance is a provision allowing the killing of three female Chinese pheasants out of a bag of ten. State Game Warden Shoemaker declares that this is one of the best moves taken for the conservation of the birds, inasmuch as now, when a female pheasant is killed, the hunterman throws it into the brush. By legalizing the killing of a limited number he believes that it will be for the best interests of the pheasant shooter.

"DAD" HUNT GONE LIVESTOCK MEN MOURN A FRIEND

A. F. Hunt, formerly of Ashland where he resided for 17 years, well known throughout the state as a cattle buyer and shipper, died last week at Portland, where he resided for the past 12 years. He left Ashland shortly after his defeat as a candidate for sheriff. The Portland Journal contains the following account:

The death last week of A. F. Hunt removes from the livestock industry of the Pacific coast and especially the Pacific Northwest one of its best known figures, and one of the real Rogues of the livestock trade. Mr. Hunt was well known to practically every shipper of cattle in the Pacific coast states and was considered one of the best judges of livestock in this section. "Dad" Hunt, as he was known to practically everyone, for few were acquainted with his given name, was an operator and shipper to the Portland market even in the days when there was scarcely an established market here. He took an extreme interest in the business until his death. Arthur Franklin Hunt was born October 19, 1859, at North Springs, Iowa. At the age of 11 years he came to Oregon with his parents, the late Mr. and Mrs. John M. Hunt, who settled near Oakland, Ore. He was married to Isabelle Deardorff on October 31, 1880, and soon after moved on a cattle ranch near Ashland where he resided until the last 12 years, which time he has been a resident of Portland.

After coming to Portland Mr. Hunt and Mr. Lacey went into the livestock commission business in the old stock yards at Seventeenth and Vaughn streets, and remained there until the present stock yards were built at North Portland. Mr. Hunt sold the first car of cattle ever sold in these yards, Frank M. Lacey purchasing for the Carstens Packing company of Tacoma.

Before coming to Portland Mr. Hunt bought and shipped livestock to Portland and San Francisco and also bought for the Carstens Packing company for three years.

He was president of the Hunt commission company of North Portland. He is survived by Mrs. A. F. Hunt of Portland, Ore., and four children, Mrs. R. C. McMillan of Boise, Idaho, Mrs. W. M. Dodge of Ashland, Ore.; Corporal John W. Hunt, with the army of occupation in Germany, and Bennett F. Hunt of Portland; a sister, Mrs. J. L. Thornton, Oakland, Ore.; two grandchildren, Katybel and Jacqueline Hunt of Portland, Ore., and a niece, Bess M. Hunt, of Portland.

The funeral was held at Oakland, Ore., February 23. Burial was at Fair Oaks.

YARDS LOCK OUT 9000 MACHINISTS AT SAN FRANCISCO

SAN FRANCISCO, Mar. 2.—The 6000 machinists made idle in the San Francisco bay region thru differences with their employers over the Saturday half-holiday have been ordered to return to work and renounce the half-holiday, by W. H. Johnston, president of the International Lodge of Machinists, it was announced here today by R. H. Brotherton, special shipping board mediator.

A general tie-up of shipyard and contract shop workers in the San Francisco bay district, involving approximately 35,000 men, was brought into prospect here today by refusal of the yards and shops to re-employ approximately 9000 machinists and laborers and defied an ultimatum denying them a self-declared Saturday half-holiday.

Thousands of the men reported at the shops and yards but were turned away, the California Metal Trades association, the organization of employers, announced. The employers admitted that shipbuilding activity

Read this: Edwin J. White, former dairyman at 322 East Main street says: "I was nearly laid up with an attack of lumbago. It came on without any warning and I thought my back was broken. I couldn't straighten up and went about all bent over. A friend advised me to take Doan's Kidney Pills, which I did, and soon I was able to get about. It required only one box to fix me up in fine shape and since then I have never had any trouble with my back and kidneys." Price 50c, at all dealers.
