PROPER PUNISHMENT.

IN SUSTAINING the conviction of Eugene Debs and others found guilty of violating the espionage law in attempting by disloyal speeches to obstruct the recruiting service, the federal supreme court has served notice upon the socialists that abuse of the right of free speech will not be tolerated in time of war—even in free America.

Debs, Berger and others who gave aid and comfort to the enemy, have so long preached their old-world theories of proletarianism and class hatred in their propaganda to overthrow the United States government and destroy American institutions, that it was but natural that they should continue to seek these ends during the war.

In fact in the defeat of the United States, they saw the possibility of attaining their ends—and under protection of the constitution they attacked, did not hesitate to openly and brazenly wage a campaign whose success would have spelled national humiliation and defeat.

Bolshevik Russia is the ultimate aim of these socialists, who are pacifists in a war between autocracy and democracy, but ardent champions of a civil war to array class against class and brother against brother.

Reason is wasted upon them, for they are fanatics, who in the name of humanity and the brotherhood of man, seek the inhumanity of anarchy in the destruction of their fellow-countrymen. All of them should be deported to Russia to practice what they preach.

MAKING A GOOD START

GOVERNOR OLCOTT has made a good start for his administration in refusing to draw the two salaries allowed him under the constitution—that of governor and secretary of state. He announces that he will turn back into the treasury the salary of the latter office, and if the supreme court holds that the law permits, will resign as secretary of state, providing that such action does not invalidate his position of governor.

A few weeks ago, before the legislative committee, he opposed any increase in salary for himself, holding that the finances of the state did not justify it. This action, followed by his refusal of the double salary, is an earnest of a sincerity rare among officeholders, who seldom place the welfare of the state above personal gain.

In seeking to retain the present highway commission intact, the governor is also showing the best business judgment. The present commission has the confidence of the people and in many respects, could not be improved upon.

The welfare of the state demands that Mr. Booth continue on the commission, to which he brings an experience of existing conditions, a ripened business judgment and a fairness that would be difficult to duplicate.

With his familiarity with state affairs, his impartiality and his common sense, Governor Olcott's administration promises to be the most efficient and therefore the most popular in the state's history.

Refuge Home for Girls

There are 90 Florence Crittenton Refuge Homes for girls maintained all over the United States, but the one situated at East Thirty-first and Glean streets in Portland is conceded to be the banner institution. Its work is essentially to provide a home for girls facing motherhood, but any girl in need of help will find shelter there.

It is non-sectarian in character, and aims to save girls as well as protect them. Thinking people are beginning to understand, as one of the lessons gleaned from the war, that the strength of the nation is measured by the strength of the individuals who compose that nation.

They are beginning to see that heredity, prenatal influences and environment are the determining factors in shaping the individual life, and some thinkers believe that the greatest of these factors is environment.

The best minds to day are concerned not only with race betterment through eugenics, which is the science of being well born, but also with the eugenics, the science of clean living.

Work of the Home: Not until the nation awakens to the fact that the birth of human beings is as important as the breeding of cattle will we seriously devote ourselves to the study of eugenics and produce a race of people who will be truly well born.

The Florence Crittenton Home must take the girls as they come, with all the disability of poor heredity, and apply the science of eugenics, giving to every girl who comes to them the assurance that her child shall be decently born and cared for.

They can only guarantee that the little being ushered into the world without its consent shall make its entrance into life in a clean atmosphere and be surrounded with sympathy and love.

A group of women physicians contribute their services to the home without charge, and no nobler women labor of love to our unfortunate girls. In all the twenty-five years since the doors of this refuge were opened, they have never lost a girl by death, which is indeed eloquent testimony of the unselfish and tireless devotion of these talented women.

The dear of the medical staff is Dr. C. Gertrude French, and her associates are Dr. Jessie McGavin, Dr. Kitty Plummer Gray and Dr. Mary McLaughlin.

Well Equipped Hospital: The hospital at the home is as perfectly equipped for its work as any on the Pacific coast.

Every facility is provided to enable the physicians to handle each case with about a provision is also made for the segregation and care of those unfortunate girls who are suffering with social diseases.

A woman who has been privileged to visit various types of social service institutions both in this country and in Europe says, "It gives me great pleasure to affirm that Mrs. Ward, who presides over the home, is a most exceptional woman.

The house is spick and span from cellar to attic, the order perfect in every department, and this is attained without iron rules of discipline. Mrs. Ward has the happy faculty of winning and retaining the confidence of the girls, and of obtaining their co-operation; she possesses that rare combination, perfect efficiency and sympathetic understanding."

Most of the work in the home is done by the girls, there being only two persons on the salary list, the superintendent and the nurse. The total expenditure for salaries in 1918 was $1,772.45, which covers every item of expense for service.

Educational Facilities: The board of education of Portland supplies a competent teacher, and the girls are at their studies five afternoons a week in a large sunny school room. Cooking classes are conducted twice a week, and a sewing teacher once a week teaches the girls to cut and make their own garments.

The desire is to keep the girls with their babies in the home at least six months, and to send them forth equipped to earn their living in an upright way. Frequently marriages are contracted.

NOW IS TIME TO PRESERVE EGGS BY WATER-GLASSING

Every woman in Jackson county should preserve eggs this spring for fall and winter use. Some women have estimated that they saved twenty-five dollars or more last year by water glassing eggs for home use.

Only clean fresh eggs should be used for water-glassing purposes. Do not use eggs that have been washed as they spoil more easily than unwashed, clean eggs. If sufficient eggs are not obtainable when the waterglass solution is first made, additional eggs may be added from time to time.

Waterglass is 30 cents a quart and a quart of waterglass will preserve 15 dozen eggs. It is not desirable to use the waterglass solution a second time. Eggs can be waterglassed for about two cents a dozen. Since waterglass eggs remain in excellent condition they can be used in the fall and winter when fresh eggs are selling for 60c or more a dozen.

Use the following method when waterglassing eggs:

- (1) Select a 5-gallon crock and clean it thoroughly after which it should be scalded and allowed to dry. (2) Heat a quantity of water to the boiling point and allow it to cool. (3) When cool measure out nine quarts of water, place it in the crock and add the one quart of waterglass, stirring the mixture thoroughly. (4) Place the eggs in this solution. Eggs may be added from day to day. Be very careful to allow at least 2 inches of the solution to cover the eggs at all times. (5) Place the crock containing the preserved eggs in a cool dry place, well covered to prevent evaporation.

summed, and all over the states are Crittenton girls who are good wives and mothers, and their children respected and useful members of society.

The state makes an annual appropriation of $3,750 a year for the Florence Crittenton Refuge Home, but the cost of running the institution annually exceeds the appropriation about $2,500. The deficit has to be met by voluntary contributions. Girls go to the home from every county in the state, but assistance has never before been asked for outside of Portland.

A GOOD FRIEND

A good friend stands by you when in need. Medford people tell how Doan's Kidney Pills have stood the test. M. S. Biden, shoe repairer, of 21 South Central Ave., Medford, endorsed Doan's ten years ago and again confirms the story. Could you ask for more convincing testimony? "I suffered from what the doctor said was rheumatism, caused by an excess of uric acid in my blood," says Mr. Biden. "It showed itself by severe pains, especially in my back. My kidneys were out of order, too, and these troubles caused me to run down in health. I couldn't stoop without getting dizzy. Doan's Kidney Pills did just what they were represented to do and soon the pain began to leave me and my kidneys acted more regularly. By the time I had finished three boxes, I was without any signs of the trouble." (Statement given September 13, 1907.)

On March 16, 1916, Mr. Biden said: "It has been some time since I have had any occasion to take Doan's Kidney Pills, but my opinion of them hasn't changed in any way since I first endorsed them. Today I am enjoying first-class health."

AMERICANS MOST POPULAR IN ITALY; WILSON IDOLIZED

Arthur Parry, former city editor of the Medford Sun, writes as follows from Tarento, Italy, under date of January 31, where his vessel, the U. S. S. West Elcano was stationed:

I write you these lines from Tarento, an Italian city of 75,000, just inside the heel of Italy on the Adriatic side. Tarento in the late war was the rendezvous of the allied fleets in the eastern Mediterranean, and one of the chief naval bases of Italy. Here are gathered now the warships of all allied lands. Trieste was a cosmopolitan city—every race and color, but Tarento is Italian and like all European cities built of stone, there being a scarcity of wood.

As far as I have been able to see there is not a tree as big as a rose-bush in Italy. It looks from one end to the other for all the world like the Willamette valley, denuded of trees and to heighten the impression, they have a drizzle, a. m. and p. m., that bears resemblance to the Oregon mist. The sunny Italy stuff is unreliable; a more truthful phrase would be "Windy Italy."

They are long on villas, and every hay is lined with them—great big stone mansions, now unoccupied, but before the war the haunts of the very rich from France, England and Holland.

The railroads are toy affairs—the venerable "villie mogul, if over here would be the queen of the round house. Soldiers who were in France tell me that when the regular American engine began operations in France, the people were scared at their approach, and marvelled at their might. The toca-cooca are ancient, and on a par with other equipment.

War time regulations are still in force, and it is impossible to buy a square meal at any price. Beef is $1.50 per pound, bacon $2.50, and everything else in corresponding proportion.

Wilson is very popular, and his picture is for sale in all stores and displayed. It is a poor picture. The only newspaper obtainable (English) is the London Times, 20c per. One does not know what is going on in the States. The other day I read that H. Gill was dead. Hope when I get to New York there will be some Tribes and Suns awaiting me.

I spent a day at Pola, formerly the great Austrian naval base. Some Austrian ships were anchored in the harbor, but the Jug-Slavs got the most of them. The Austrian is a very tame citizen now. We are bringing back an American (Serb) who enlisted in the Serb army, at Butto, in 1914, fought two years and was an Austrian prisoner for over a year, during which time his principal food was turnips, friend, baked and boiled. It is worth the trip over to hear them cuss the Bulgars. One sees very few, practically no wounded, as they are in hospitals and convalescent camps. The badge of mourning is a familiar sight. The kids are hereditary beggars. The older beggars are horrible examples of deformity. Gambling games run wide open on the streets, that is, a few of them—a sort of chuck a luck with pennies, the main squeeze being a red-vested be-ringed gent with a keen eye for the dough.

It was from Tarento that the allies bombed Durazzo, the chief Austrian port, and if I recollect O. K. Tom Scottin was here for a while. It is a 200-mile flight. One can see plenty of Zeppelins and machines in the air—with the people paying no attention. There are all kinds of British soldiers here—many races—a a testimonial to the unity and variety of the empire.

We are now on the way home and I hope to be discharged by March 15, if all goes well.

CIVIL WAR VETERAN WOULD AID FRIENDS

Says Tanlac Did Him So Much Good He Wants to Give Every Old Soldier a Bottle

"I wish I could buy every old soldier a bottle of Tanlac, for from the way it has fixed me up I believe it would add years to their lives," said Frank B. Kendrick, a Civil War veteran living at 4800 Charlotte avenue, Nashville, Tenn.

"Some time back," he continued, "I had rheumatism so bad, and went down so fast, that it looked like I was on the verge of a general breakdown and had about despaired of ever walking again. I was fast losing what little flesh and strength I had left and could hardly get from my bed to my chair. I had no appetite, could hardly sleep and suffered constantly with headaches.

"After taking Tanlac a short while I began to improve. I kept it up till I have gained thirteen pounds and feel better and younger than I have in years. Tanlac just filled me with new life and energy and put me on my feet again. I have a fine appetite and can walk anywhere I want to go and hardly feel it at all."

Tanlac is sold in Medford by West Side Pharmacy, in Gold Hill by M. D. Bowers, in Central Point by Miss M. A. Mee, in Ashland by J. J. McNair. Adv.

BERT LYTELL AT RIALTO THEATER TONIGHT

Not content with being an actor of distinction both on the stage and screen, Bert Lytell has made his debut in the literary world in a play in which he also enacts the leading role. This is the production, "Hitting the High Spots," which will be shown at the Rialto theatre today and tomorrow.

For some time the actor had been diligently reading manuscripts which he received by the score, trying in vain to find one which he deemed worthy of production. He was on the lookout for a story with a dramatic and adventurous plot—something forceful and at the same time with a strong thread of romance running thru it.

This seemed an impossible combination to get however, for the stories he read were either silly and sentimental or of the blood-and-thunder variety of adventure, both of which he did not want, and so he decided to write a play himself. In laying his plot in Mexico Mr. Lytell gives his audiences a glimpse into a world filled both with romance and adventure and the quality of the play is such that it adds to the glory he has already achieved as an actor.
