EX-KAISER CUTS THOUSANDTH TREE IN DUTCH REFUGE

AMERONGEN, Holland, March 15. (By the Associated Press.)—Former Emperor William today completed, saving into lozes his thousandth tree since he took refuge at Count Von Bentinck's castle here last fall. From the thousandth tree a few lozes were converted into souvenirs of the achievement and marked in red ink with the inscription "W.-2." These were presented to members of the Bentinck family and to those who have assisted the ex-emperor in his work during the last ten weeks.

As he was completing his task a young countess took a snap shot of Herr Hohenzollern and his assistants, Dr. Roerster and Captain Von Ise-mann, together with the young gardener who adjusts the lozes on the bench for the ex-ruler to saw them. The picture included the former empress, who was reading a newspaper nearby.

COMPANY "C" TO SERVE IN GUARD

PORTLAND, Mar. 17.—Members of Company C, old Third Oregon, which had an active part in the war, have planned to reorganize as a National Guard company upon their return home. Returned members of this fighting unit, and others who were members formerly but who did not go overseas, have made definite plans for reorganizing the company as soon as all the boys have come back. A veteran corps will be formed and application will be made to the government to muster in the company again as a National Guard unit.

MEXICAN REBEL LEADERS SURRENDER

MEXICO CITY, Mar. 17.—Among the most notable recent surrenders of rebel leaders to the government, according to an official report by General Fortunato Maycotte to the war department, was that of the former federal brigadier general, Pablo Vargas, in the state of Guerrero. Vargas revolted about a year ago when his chief, General Silvestre Mariscal, governor of Guerrero, was imprisoned in Mexico City for disobedience of orders.

KENLY DEMOTED.

THE country hears with regret of the demoting of Major General William L. Kenly as director of military aeronautics as a reward for his successful efforts in reorganizing the aircraft service. He reverts to his rating as colonel of field artillery. His demotion again calls attention to the autocratic rule of the general staff, which in Prussian-like manner, punishes officers that have capacity and originality enough to suggest changes in the red-tape inefficiency of its bureaucracy.

General Kenly, who had been chief of artillery for the A. E. F. was selected by Pershing to become director of aircraft when the scandals of the aircraft program forced Secretary Baker to divorce training and production. He at once demonstrated his efficiency and what the division of military aeronautics was at the signing of the armistice was wholly his work and that of the organization he built.

The reason for "scalping" General Kenly is the fact that he held that the air service ought to be a distinct establishment, that just as the army is the military establishment of the nation on land and the navy the military establishment on the water, the air service should be the military establishment of the air—as is the case in Great Britain.

A bill along this line, providing for a consolidation of the flying arms of the army, marine corps and navy under its own member of the cabinet, was introduced in the last congress by Senator New and approved by Senator Chamberlain. Whether General Kenly had anything to do with drafting the measure is not known, but it embodied his views.

The proposal aroused the antagonism of the general staff, of the navy and of the marines, who sought to keep the control of their respective air branches in their own hands. The general staff proposes to detail officers to the air service for specified periods, during which they retain their rating to the branches to which they formerly belonged. The result will place a shifting personal of inexperienced men in charge of air craft, spell inefficiency and make for neglect of this vital branch of national defense.

Whatever the general staff wants, goes with Secretary Baker. When it opposes reform of army injustice in court martials, and demotes the officers favoring it, Baker sanctions the opposition. When it opposes efficiency in air service, and demotes those favoring it, Baker O.K's the action. It is a law unto itself and its rigid red-tape rules the military establishment—which is one reason why the people pray for a league of nations to minimize its power.

BOSTWICK STRUCK BY BULLETS 4 TIMES IN TWO BATTLES

"I was conscious all the two days I lay on the battlefield in France, and about all that I could think of was to drink water and smoke cigarettes," said Irwin D. Bostwick, who so far as is known was Jackson county's most wounded and worst wounded soldier of the war, who arrived in New York, Feb. 12, and is here on the thirty days furlough from the base hospital at Camp Lewis to visit his mother, Mrs. Eva Bostwick. They formerly resided in Applegate.

"I am lucky to be living and thankful for it too," said this modest 27 years old hero of the 117th engineers who was wounded in four places, in two different battles, participated actively in all the big battles of the war in which American troops participated except the last one, the battle of the Argonne, and who will be a cripple for life. His right leg is shorter by two inches than before he received an awful wound from a machine gun explosive bullet at St. Mihiel.

His Leg Shattered "It was a great experience I went thru and I wouldn't have missed it for anything," said this modest, fine looking and smiling young man as he leaned on his cane and discussed the miracles done by modern surgery. His leg was shattered by the dum dum bullet between the knee and the thigh, which in its explosive force cut two inches of the bone away. Like most other wounded soldiers Bostwick carries with him the bullet or missile which the surgeons extracted from his leg, as a souvenir.

All his wounds were received in the thickest of fighting and while he was serving with his company which was attached to the attacking tanks, which meant that the engineers accompanied the tanks into action and cleared the way for their progress.

Story of Wounds He was first wounded in the neck on Feb. 22nd a year ago on the Lorraine front. He was returned to duty immediately after he was released from the hospital. He escaped in the succeeding battles until at the St. Mihiel front on Sept. 12 he received several bad wounds, all at the same time, from machine gun bullets. In addition to the bullet which shattered his leg, he was wounded by other bullets, but far less seriously, in both legs and the back. He lay on the field where he fell until he could be removed to the hospital two days later, and all this time he had an inordinate craving for cigarettes and water.

Craved Water and Cigarettes "My canteen was pretty well filled when I fell," he says, "but other soldiers passing by left me several canteens full of water which kept me supplied. I had no cigarette, only the "makkings," consisting of papers and a package of Bull Durham. However every time some of the boys passed by I bummed several cigarettes, so I managed to keep pretty well supplied."

Mr. Bostwick is still taking surgical treatment at Camp Lewis and does not expect to be discharged from service for some time yet.

PERSHING AWARDS HEROES OF FAMOUS RAINBOW DIVISION

COBLENZ, March 16. (By the Associated Press.)—General Pershing said good bye to the boys of the 42nd division today. In a farewell address to the troops of the Rainbow unit who are preparing to start for home the first week in April, the American commander-in-chief wished them all good luck.

The inspection and review took place in a great field near Remagen, on the west bank of the Rhine. From the heights across the river hundreds of German civilians assembled and watched the review through field glasses. General Pershing spoke from the rear end of a wagon with the soldiers gathered about him.

Before his address the commander-in-chief presented one congressional medal of honor, two distinguished service medals and 46 distinguished service crosses to officers and men of the division. The medal of honor was pinned by General Pershing on Corporal Sidney Manning of the 167th Infantry for leading his platoon during an attack on the Ourra after its commanders had fallen. All but seven members of the platoon were killed or wounded. Manning himself was wounded nine times. Manning was a farmer boy near Brewton, Ala.
