ROOT ON AMERICA'S DUTY.

ELIHU ROOT is too busy just now trying to settle the mooted question as to whether near-beer is beer or beer near-beer to take a hand in the controversy raging over the proposed constitution of the league of nations, but his sentiments concerning the subject of America's duty toward the world were fully set forth in an address delivered at the republican state convention of New York, Feb. 15, 1916, as follows:

"The American democracy stands for something more than beef and cotton and grain and manufactures; stands for something that cannot be measured by rates of exchange, and does not rise or fall with the balance of trade. The American people achieved liberty and schooled themselves to the service of justice before they acquired wealth, and they value their country's liberty and justice above all their pride of possessions.

"They deem that the moral laws which formulate the duties of men toward each other are binding upon nations equally with individuals. Informed by their own experience, confirmed by their observation of international life, they have come to see that the independence of nations, the liberty of their peoples, justice and humanity, cannot be maintained upon the good nature, the kindly feeling, of the strong toward the weak; that real independence, real liberty cannot rest upon suzerainty; that peace and liberty can be preserved only by the authority and observance of rules of national conduct founded upon the principles of justice and humanity; only by the establishment of law among nations responsive to the enlightened public opinion of mankind.

"To them liberty means not liberty for themselves alone, but for all who are oppressed. Justice means not a justice for themselves alone, but a shield for all who are weak against the aggression of the strong."

These were not the words of that "impractical idealist," that "visionary sentimentalist," that "theorizing college professor" Woodrow Wilson, but of the former secretary of war under McKinley, secretary of state under Roosevelt called "the ablest man in public life in this or any other country"—and they were uttered as an indictment of the president for having kept us out of war after the invasion of Belgium. Yet they summarized the motives that actuated the president at the peace conference and are identical with the aims set forth in the president's speeches on the league of nations—which was denounced as a "mawkish dream of the president himself."

When Mr. Root uttered these words, they were endorsed and approved by the same newspapers, the same politicians and the same senators who are now conducting a propaganda against the president for striving to attain these exalted ideals and the proposed league of nations through which they only can be realized. That Mr. Root still holds these ideals is evident from the fact that he has refrained from joining the clamor against the league.

The reception accorded at the time to these sentiments, shows the shallow insincerity and cheap demagoguery of those opposing the league. The opposition will fail to kill the league as it ought to fail, because of its dishonesty,—because those opposing seek to betray humanity for imaginary petty partisan advantage.

GAIN IN MORALE IN PAST YEAR BY PRESBYTERIANS

The annual business meeting of First Presbyterian church was held Thursday evening, following a supper in the chapel of the church. This church was organized March 29th, 1885 by the Rev. M. A. Williams, a worthy minister still held in grateful remembrance by the few citizens whose residence dates back to that early day. With these thirty-four years of service in the community the church has indeed been an institution closely related to the growth of Medford. One charter member remains in the city.

The reports from the various departments of the church were most encouraging and reflected a healthy condition. No great gain in membership has marked the past year but the gain in morale has been marked. The trustees were able to report the goal of the New Era drive practically assured and the plans for the new year were accordingly enlarged.

E. N. Warner, Carl J. Brommer and W. D. Luke were elected elders for the term of three years. Mr. E. A. Welch was elected to the board of trustees for a term of five years. Mrs. R. W. Clancy was elected to serve as deaconess for two years and Mr. John R. Carpenter was chosen to serve as deacon for a like term.

This church will entertain the Southern Oregon Presbytery April 23-25, at which time the present minister will be installed as permanent pastor. Committees were appointed at the meeting to plan for the entertainment of the ministers and delegates who will be here for the sessions.

The third member probably will be a representative of labor.

It was reported that the amendment to the league of nations covenant urged by Leon Bourgeois, providing for a permanent military and naval staff for the league, has been rejected by the league of nations commission.

Don't Let Catarrh Drag You into Consumption

Avoid Its Dangerous Stage. There is a more serious stage of Catarrh than the annoyance caused by the stopped-up air passages, and the hacking and spitting and other distasteful features.

The real danger comes from the tendency of the disease to continue its course downward until the lungs become affected, and then dreaded consumption is on your path. Your own experience has taught you that the disease cannot be cured by

KLAMATH FIGHT ON COURT HOUSE AGAIN IN COURT

That seemingly perennial, much ontangled and legally complicated controversy over the too many Klamath county courthouses was trotted to Medford today for another airing in circuit court chambers before Judge Calkins, which will result either in the legal phases being simplified or in a still further complication in the much mooted matter, if that were possible.

The last phase was the filing of an injunction suit by Contractor Dougan against the county to compel the county to accept the new court house and there was a possibility today of the incorporating of all five suits in the court houses row into one equity suit for trial. The matter was up before Judge Calkins this afternoon.

Contractor Dougan was represented by Attorneys Harrison Allen of Portland, C. F. Stone of Klamath Falls and A. E. Reames of Medford. The county of Klamath is represented by Attorneys Jay Lowman of Portland and Fred H. Mills of Klamath Falls. County Judge Bunnell and Burrell Short, county commissioner, are among the Klamath county officials here in attendance.

San Francisco visitors in Medford today included H. B. Symes and G. L. Chandler.
