

DETAILS OF DEATH ASHLAND SOLDIER GIVEN BY DYMENT

ASHLAND, April 25.—(Special to Mail Tribune.) After all the anxiety manifested by relatives for information concerning husbands, sons and brothers in the European war zone, it has remained for Colin V. Dymont, American Red Cross searcher with the 91st division in France, to supply tidings relating to the fate of boys overseas who went to the front from the Pacific northwest, and this information has been forthcoming when urgent inquiries even thru official military channels have failed. A case in point is that of Archie L. Smith, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. K. Smith, residing at 925 B street, this city. Archie was a member of Co. A, 361st Infantry, of the 91st division. This regiment was the especial pride of the three Pacific northwest states. His parents were notified of his death weeks ago, but particulars were absolutely lacking, and Dymont has supplied the much sought for information. It seems that Archie was a runner for Lieut. Bates of Co. A, and was instantly killed at the battle of Epinonville, Sept. 27 last. A locket he wore contained a picture of his wife and child, residing at 711 I street, Sacramento, from which city he entered the service in the railway corps, but was later transferred to the infantry. He met his death during a vicious machine gun fire directed by the Huns at a contingent of Co. A. Epinonville is about 22 miles from Verdun. Archie was formerly a fireman for the Southern Pacific at Sacramento. Dymont has much to say regarding these casualties of the war in a series of articles appearing in the Oregonian.

W. S. Du Peau is assisting the police force occasionally, especially in connection with the night detail more patrol work is deemed necessary, Tom Roberts being the regular night policeman.

R. W. Talcott, job printer and formerly publisher of the Canyon Press, a publication which was not exactly the official organ of the Spring Water commission, is now employed in the Union office at Walla Walla, Wash. He wants to sell his property here, a neat bungalow located on Pine street.

Sydney Haselton, brother of Mrs. Clark Bush, is home from overseas. Where he was connected with "the aviation branch of the service in both England and France, having received three distinct promotions for efficiency in meeting the exacting requirements of aerial navigation. He was mustered out of the service recently at the Presidio, San Francisco, with the rank of sergeant of the first class. His assignment overseas was with the 373rd aerial squadron. Previous to choosing a future vocation he will rest up in this vicinity for awhile.

Frank Shaler, a former resident here engaged in line work on telephone and electric light properties, has been visiting friends this week, on his way to Washington localities from the oil fields of central California where he has been employed.

Dr. S. J. Parson has returned home from an extended visit in Portland.

Not many days ago a silk waist was missed from the counters of a well known local store. The garment was traced direct to the home of a woman in this city who was plainly accused of the theft and given short shrift by way of settling the bill, an amount approximately $12. Protests with the air of injured innocence were in order, but the bill was rattled according to "statement rendered." A local jeweler sold a stranger a watch for a nominal sum, accepting a check largely in excess of the purchase, handing back the change in current coin of the realm. In course of the trend of events the check was returned, bearing the old familiar legend by way of endorsement, "no such firm" or words to that effect. Two other women visited another city jeweler the other day and talked rings and came plus, incidentally passing upon the merits of a trio of pearl necklaces. Exit the women, also one of the necklaces. The jeweler considers these "pearls of great price" when disposed of in this way. However, he knows the parties, and developments are in order in due season.

The Civic Improvement club banquet, available to the ladies of the organization and their friends, will be given at Hotel Austin, promptly at 8 o'clock, on Friday evening, April 26, to be followed by a theatre party at the Vining, the attraction to be a far one entitled "A Great Romance." The Masonic Home committee is making good progress in lining up the advantages which Ashland has in abundant measure to offer as inducements to have the institution located here. In addition to climatic and scenic assets, the physical status of several eligible sites will be submitted to the officers representing the grand lodges of the Masonic body and the Eastern Star, who will meet in Portland on Saturday of this week to entertain proposals as submitted by various localities thruout the state. In this connection Rev. P. K. Hammond, representing Ashland lodge No. 23, left for Portland on Thursday evening, to submit to this committee propositions regarding the home as outlined by the local committee having this matter in charge. Ashland is receiving encouragement from other lodges in southern Oregon, notably Medford and Jacksonville, both having indicated a desire to boost the local movement.

A well known garage is about to change hands, in fact an invoice of the equipment is already in prospect looking towards a speedy change in ownership. Particulars "to be outlined in our next."

The Wednesday Afternoon club did not meet on the date indicated this week, a postponement having been announced until April 30. Mrs. W. M. Poley will be hostess at her home on Gresham street.

Miss Lena Casey, for years efficient member of the clerical force in the postoffice, has had her hours of service transferred from the daylight schedule to the night shift lasting until about 1 a. m.

Miss Anne McCormick on Friday afternoon of this week gave a food demonstration at the home of Mrs. A. H. Peachey on Lincoln street.

The address of H. W. Lewis, at the Methodist church, on Tuesday evening, was pronounced a masterpiece of logic and the climax of urgent appeal in behalf of the great centenary missionary movement in which the church is engaged at present.

Right on the heels of a movement to give Klamath Falls a municipal cleanup, comes a big fire in that town destroying several blocks, some of them historic structures, consequently the work of clearing away this wreckage will add to the job in general.

Citizens generally are pleased with the recent action of the state accident commission in awarding to Mrs. Teresa Lowe, widow of the late George M. Lowe, Ashland policeman, $30 monthly pension for life, the specific sum of $4,808.73 being set aside for this purpose. The husband lost his life in local railroad yards a few weeks ago, having been accidentally run down by a passenger train.

The temporary address of the Whited family, now in Los Angeles, is 2260 West Fifteenth street. The Rogue River Baptist association will meet in 42nd annual convention with the Ashland church this week, beginning Friday evening and continuing over Sunday. In the way of entertainment the Harvard plan will be adopted, delegates being provided with lodging and breakfast, they to obtain lunch and dinner at restaurants convenient to the church.

Attorney and Mrs. F. W. Shopleigh of Portland arrived in the city Thursday and are guests at the Hotel Medford.
