far it would be possible on the part of the allied and associated governments to help Germany in the matter and for example, in return for the repayment of the cost, to provide the prisoners with new outfits, underclothing, suits and boots.

In dealing with labor questions Count Von Brockdorff-Rantzau says the German government agrees with the allied and associated powers that the greatest attention must be paid to these problems.

"Internal peace and human progress depend on how these questions are handled," the note says. "The demand for social justice repeatedly drawn up in this connection by workers of all lands only partly finds endorsement in principle in this section of the allied governments' draft of the peace terms. These high demands have for the most part already been carried out in an admittedly exemplary fashion in the German empire."

Fatty Arbuckle At the Liberty

That's how Dorothy Dalton in 'Hard Boiled' A Paramount Picture

The public always loves to see the biter bit and in Dorothy Dalton's new picture, "Hard Boiled," which is on view at the Liberty theater this week, the manner in which the rascally, old deacon is beaten at his nefarious games by a charming prima donna pleases everybody who cares for a wholesome story of life in a small town. There is comedy galore. The plot of "Love" is completely away from any of the modish and presents the heavy weight laughmaker in unfamiliar but wholly amusing situations and with incidents enough, it is declared to keep everybody interested to the last foot of the film.

Referring to the draft of an agreement on international labor compiled by the German government and proposed by the German plan for a League of Nations, the note says:

"In order in the interest of all of humanity to put these principles everywhere into practice the acceptance of the German delegation's proposal is certainly requisite. We consider it necessary that all states should join in this agreement, even if they do not belong to the League of Nations."

"In order to assure the workers cooperation in sharing these principles the German delegation considers it necessary to convolve representatives of the national organizations of the labor unions of all the contracting parties to a conference at Versailles, even during peace negotiations, to deliberate and make decisions on international labor law. It considers it would be advantageous that the proceedings of this conference be based on decisions reached at the international trades union conference held at Berno from February 5 to February 9, 1919. We append a copy of these decisions which have been accepted by the representatives of trades union organizations in Bohemia, Balesaria, Denmark, Germany, Great Britain, France, Greece, Holland, Italy, Canada, Norway, Austria, Switzerland, Sweden, Spain and Hungary. We have been charged to do this by the union of Germany."
