Ye Smudge Pot By Arthur Perry

The distinguished South American who declares that these United States "desire to procure Brazil as a colony," is a Brazilian nut.

Now Colonel House has engaged in the Fiume affair, and had a confab with the Italian something Monday. This clinches the matter, neither friend or foe will be able to untangle the mess.

John Mann has stuck a card up in his window reading, "A new capture of waists and gowns." This is liable to inspire Sam Richardson to stick out a sign reading: "These pants just surrendered after a hard fight."

DOUBLE-JOINTED REGRETS (Roseburg Review)

Glendale was rudely awakened from a sense of security to be told that after three weeks deliberation Dr. Knott had discovered that the eruptive disease spoken of before was small-pox. The first case was the little son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Palmer. Mrs. Palmer promptly took her son to Dr. Knott, who could have prevented a spread of the ailment if he had shut in that case. The homes of Mrs. J. E. Churchill and the Palmers are now under quarantine, after many others have been exposed. We regret to say, and we cannot say, just who is to blame.

TALKING AS SUBSTITUTE FOR WAR.

VISCOUNT GREY'S approval of the League of Nations is interesting. He says nothing of self determination, arbitration, disarmament; his hopes are centered entirely in the provision, making an annual conference between the world powers mandatory.

The former British foreign minister believes the best assurance of world peace is the safety valve of free international expression. If any nation has a grievance, the league will give that nation an opportunity to air it, and Viscount Grey believes, that plenty of air, hot or cold, will be found a satisfactory substitute for fighting.

This is a typical British point of view and political progress in England the past century, is a practical demonstration of its essential validity.

England has become one of the most liberal governments in the world through peaceful revolution. Since George III the state has been transformed politically and socially, without firing a gun. Expression has been substituted for repression, radicals, fanatics, anarchists, have been allowed to roam Hyde Park every Sunday, chattering like magpies, instead of suffering an eloquent martyrdom in the Tower. The only problem which has not been treated with this lenience is the only one which has not been solved,—the problem of Ireland.

We believe Viscount Grey has hit upon one of the most important features of the League Covenant, and his contention will undoubtedly be sustained by subsequent events. If the world had possessed a public forum for reciprocal agitation, the world conflict would probably never have occurred. As it was the British foreign minister came near preventing it, by urging a conference at the 11th hour.

The terms of peace will not remove injustice, discrimination, jealousies and animosities, but with a talk-fest each year, where every nation will be given a right to be heard, the danger of an outbreak by force will be materially lessened, and threat of war on a large scale may eventually be removed.

Fiume, the Hamburg of Hungary

WASHINGTON, May 13.—"If Trieste was the Bremen of Austria, Fiume was the Hamburg of the Hungarian kingdom, a close rival for the brisk Adriatic trade of the period before the war," says a bulletin of the National Geographic society.

The bulletin on Fiume is the third in a series of geographic news bulletins dealing with places of the former dual empire which may fall either to Italy or to the Jugo-Slav nation.

"Fiume is another of those footholds on the eastern Adriatic where Italians clung despite the steady influx of Slavs in the interior, and, in this case even into Fiume itself. This city bears evidence of early Italian culture, it figured as a potent Slav factor in the turmoil of Balkan politics, and it felt strongly the influence of Hungary upon its thriving industries and fast growing commerce.

"Mazvar gerrymandering caused it to be annexed to Hungary in 1870, despite the protest of Croati to which it had belonged since the revolution of 1848-49. Tender consideration for its value as a seaport, rather than for its citizens, prompted its establishment as a royal free town, making it a geographical slice of about seven square miles cut out of Croatia.

"Despite the Hungarian interest in the city its pre-war population was 90 per cent Italian and Slav, with the Italians slightly predominant. Only about half the remaining tenth were Hungarians. The Slavs included Croats, Serbs and Slovenes. As important to Hungary as are New York or Boston to the United States, Fiume's total population is not much greater than such suburbs of those American ports as East Orange, N. J., or Brockton, Mass.

"Fiume is situated on the northeast shores of the Gulf of Quarnero, only 70 miles by rail, southeast of its trade rival, Trieste. Across the bay is the popular summer resort, Abbazia, famed for its evergreen laurel and profusion of roses, to which tens of thousands of visitors formerly thronged each summer.

"The older town, distinctively Italian, is built on the hillside, overlooking the gulf. The newer city lies nearer the waterfront. There are three harbors. The largest, accommodating 150 large vessels, is protected by a breakwater half a mile long. The quay is nearly two miles long.

"Before the war Fiume's manufacturing plants included a government tobacco factory, the Whitehead torpedo works, a rice shelling factory, a petroleum refinery, and many smaller plants, among which were saw mills and paper mills. Its fisheries constituted an important industry. It exported sugar, grain, flour, horses and timber.

"Fiume had a governor, who was a member of the upper house of the Hungarian parliament, four representatives in the lower house, and two representatives in the diet of the Croats and Slovenes.

"Originating in Roman times, Fiume was destroyed by Charlemagne in 799. The Franks ruled it for a considerable period. Then it passed to feudal lords until the Emperor Frederick III made it a part of Austria.

"This emperor, who was Frederick V, as archduke of Austria, was the son of Ernest, the 'man of iron' and Cymburga, a Polish woman, from whom the Hapsburgs are thought to have inherited the protruding lower lip which sometimes became a disfigurement. His long and inconsequential reign is chiefly recalled because he puzzled lexicographers by leaving on his books, not only and having inscribed on his tomb, the initials 'A. E. I. O. U.', a promissory note of future Austrian greatness which Frederick did little to realize. The most generally accepted explanation is that the initials stood for the Latin, 'Austriam Est Imperari Orbis Universo,' meaning 'All the earth is subject to Austria.'

"Charles VI proclaimed Fiume a free port. Maria Theresa first united it with Hungary. Successively occupied by the French and British it reverted to Austria and later was restored to Hungary before it was ceded to Croatia."

What the Grizzlies Mean

1. Its object is to cooperate with the Medford Commercial club, promote and open up good roads and trails to points of scenic beauty, on mountains, lakes and rivers and develop them for the benefit and enjoyment of the people and especially to make southern Oregon attractive to tourists and newcomers, that they may get to these points of beauty by train, by automobile or by trail and thus become attracted and finally locate here.

2. The president of the Grizzlies, Mr. Will G. Steel, who is also secretary of the Medford Commercial club organized and promoted the Mazamas or Mountain Climbers, which has a world wide reputation now. He also promoted resorts like the "Oaks" near Portland, but his greatest achievement was "putting on the map" Crater Lake National park through the efforts of the Medford Commercial club, and it is becoming rapidly known to an ever increasing throng of world tourists as an "unsurpassable Mecca and scene of behu-lia in the world," upon which hundreds of thousands of dollars is being expended by the United States government, and by which Medford and southern Oregon is being widely advertised and reaping an ever increasing reward.

3. Mr. Steel's latest and greatest effort is the promotion of the Grizzlies, whose object is to make southern Oregon appreciated by its own people as well as tourists by opening

Plumber Thought He Needed New Pipes

"My stomach and intestines were always full of gas and I often had severe colic attacks. The pain and soreness caused me to think I needed a new set of pipes. Since taking Mayr's Wonderful Remedy all this has disappeared and my only trouble now is to make enough dough to buy all the food I'd like to eat." It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and allays the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. One dose will convince or money refunded. For sale by druggists everywhere. Adv.

up its many scenic beauties, unsurpassed on the Pacific coast.

To those who want to go to the sea shore—we will open up our lakes and rivers. To those who want to hunt or fish, we will open up and develop unsurpassable fishing and hunting resorts. To those who want to go to the mineral springs, which are unsurpassed in the world, we will open up and develop them. To those who want to go to mountain and Alpine resorts, we have them here and will open up and develop them.

4. Southern California with its many developed and advertised resorts has made its deserts bloom and become an asset worth billions of dollars to its inhabitants, has made its 25' an acre desert land worth thousands of dollars per acre and become a "world famous playground" thronged with millions of tourists and all this has been done within the memory of many Medford citizens.

It is true that Los Angeles also had a "Can't Do It club," but some of these emigrated to the Rogue River valley and other places and left the sun baked village of Los Angeles counseled then of about 4,000 or less visionaries or dreamers, who perhaps did not have money enough to get away.

5. Southern Oregon has a year-around climate unsurpassed in the United States. Has more undeveloped resources of timber, minerals of all kinds, building stone, coal, asphaltum, fine prospects for oil with an oil well now being drilled than any similar area of population in the United States. It is more progressive with paved streets and highways, more and cheaper electricity than any portion of the United States of similar population. It has a progressive city with the Los Angeles spirit, whose people recognizing its many natural scenic beauties and mineral springs are spending thousands of dollars developing the same for the enjoyment of its inhabitants and increasing throng of tourists.

It has proven a wise investment which no one regrets.

6. Uncle Sam wishes homes for the returning soldiers. We should try and get them here as well as thousands of other homeseekers. There is welcome and room here for many thousands, with unsurpassed opportunities for all.

7. Mr. Will G. Steel, president of the Grizzlies wishes to enroll all the population of southern Oregon as a Grizzly. The dues are now $1 per year, but may soon be increased. The money is to be expended in promoting the objects herein stated.
