Friday coming down the grade by the Bybee bridge. The team became scared and ran, turning the back over and dragging him quite a distance. He was cut pretty badly about the head and face, one cut above his eye reaching eight stitches; also a bruised leg and shoulder. His brother Victor escaped with a bruised eye and knee. Six auto loads of people went from this neighborhood to Medford to the circus Wednesday. Miss Maltby left Sunday for her home at Alsea. Mr. Strathern's family and Mr. J. Vincent and family and J. Glass and family motored to Central Point Sunday for meeting. Mrs. Ola Chapman and little boy are staying this week with Mrs. Theo. Glass. Mr. and Mrs. Howard Mayfield of the Meadows was trading in Medford Friday.

of the sack clear from the floor, and then five or six fleeces are thrown in and then a man gets into the sack and tramps it in all around the sides. The sack being wet keeps the wool from springing back and by that means he can get in two hundred and seventy-five to three hundred and twenty-five pounds to the sack. While I was watching them shear I also was keeping tab on the weight of the fleeces. I saw possibly fifteen or twenty weighed and the lightest one was eight and the heaviest ten and a half pounds. Mr. Lewis is confident that they will average eight pounds. He expects to have about fifty-five sacks of wool this season. While I was on the trip to the sheep camp I noticed that Wm. Von der Hellen was building a house on the tract of land that he bought of Luke Ryan of Medford near the Reese creek school house. I also noticed that he has torn down the two-story warehouse that stood between the residence of Dr. Holt and the old Geo. Brown & Sons warehouse. John Foster and Gus Nichols motored in from Salt creek Wednesday afternoon. Wednesday being circus or show day in Medford, the result was that quite a number of people from Butte Falls motored out to see the sights, and the reader perhaps will remember that we had a nice shower and the result was that several of them failed to reach home that night, and Horace Geppert and his brother Charles, Mr. Stoddard, wife and two children, Mr. Merrill Brenner, wife and three children, and Carl Brenner of Butte Falls, spent the night at the Sunnyside on account of the sticky mud. Miss Zula Geppert, one of our phone girls, went to Medford to see the show and remained over night in town. Prof. Engelhardt, the man who bought the Boquest place, was in town with his daughter and, were business callers Thursday morning. Born to Mr. and Mrs. Green Mathews, one of our heavy stock men and capitalists, June 30th, a boy baby. Born to Mr. and Mrs. Amos Ayres, formerly the depot agent at this place May 15th, a son. Mrs. Edward Meyer of Lake Creek and another lady motored into town Thursday. D. R. Patrick was doing business here Thursday and took dinner at the Sunnyside. John Rader was also a business caller. Mrs. McPherson of Portland, a sister-in-law of our townman, Fred McPherson who has been here visiting.

EAGLE POINT EAGLETS

By A. C. Howlett.

Last Wednesday as I was crossing our suspension bridge Wm. Lewis, our sheep king stopped at the end of the bridge and asked me to take a ride with him up to his sheep ranch and see his shearer shear his sheep by machinery, and as I had never had the opportunity to see it done before I accepted his invitation and started and after riding about five miles we came to where they were at work. There were four shearing machines but as he had only three shearers one of them was idle. He had eight pens all arranged so as to have everything as handy "as a pocket in a shirt"; they were all arranged in a barn. The first one, the one that opens out into the main corral was a little larger than the rest, running the whole length of the barn, and then another gates about four feet wide with gates just wide enough to reach across the pen, so that when the men wanted to separate them by opening one of the gates that made another small pen, etc. And then joining the last long pen there were four small pens that would hold ten or twelve sheep at a time and these pens were arranged with a wide gate that made one side of the pen and for a door on the other side they had wool sacks hung so as to keep the sheep in and so arranged that the shearer could reach in and take a sheep by the leg and by simply turning around have it on the platform ready to apply the shearing apparatus. The shearing machines in this case were run by a small gasoline engine. The shearing machines are arranged so that the operator can stop it at any time. When a sheep is brought onto the platform he is set on his rump and the operator commences trimming around the head and front legs, and then the belly and by the time he has them trimmed he commences to work on one side, going the entire length of the sheep and keeps on right around the body, finishing off at the tail and then the sheep is pushed back into the same pen again and another is dragged out. The shearer does not tie up his own fleeces, but a man does that job for all three of the shearers, and they keep him busy. The shears are connected to steel tubes and are arranged very much like the clippers used by the barbers for cutting the hair close to the head. Mr. Lewis said that some of the men would shear over a hundred a day. There was one man—I didn't learn his name—that I kept an account of time on and he did not know that I was keeping time either, and he sheared four sheep in just eighteen minutes. He was a little faster shearer than the other two. They kept one man busy most of the time shearing the wool. The wool is tied up in a bunch, each fleece by itself, and the wool sack is first dipped into a barrel of water and thoroughly soaked and then hung in a frame, the bottom of the sack clear from the floor, and then five or six fleeces are thrown in and then a man gets into the sack and tramps it in all around the sides. The sack being wet keeps the wool from springing back and by that means he can get in two hundred and seventy-five to three hundred and twenty-five pounds to the sack. While I was watching them shear I also was keeping tab on the weight of the fleeces. I saw possibly fifteen or twenty weighed and the lightest one was eight and the heaviest ten and a half pounds. Mr. Lewis is confident that they will average eight pounds. He expects to have about fifty-five sacks of wool this season. While I was on the trip to the sheep camp I noticed that Wm. GRAY HAIR BECOMES DARK AND BEAUTIFUL

Try Grandmother's Old Favorite Recipe of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural color and lustre to the hair when faded, streaked or gray. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is messy and troublesome. Nowadays we simply ask at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." You will get a large bottle of this old-time recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients, at very little cost. Everybody uses this preparation now, because no one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally and evenly. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, thick and glossy and you look years younger. Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound is a delightful toilet requisite. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.
