Deputy United States Marshal S. F. Pace assisted by Dean Terrill left this morning for Portland with four prisoners bound over to the federal grand jury, three from Medford and one from Klamath county. At a preliminary hearing before F. Roy Davis U. S. commissioner, held yesterday afternoon Dave Davidson of Albany and M. Whitford, of San Francisco were held for trial to the federal court at Portland, on the charge of violating the Mann act, and "Gloria Monroe," the young woman in the case, was held to the same court as a witness. The three, who were arrested early in the week at one of the hotels, traveled here together from Klamath Falls. The other prisoner was Ed Smith, a one-armed man, who was bound over from Klamath county on the charge of bootlegging among the Klamath Indians.

According to H. E. Gething, manager for the local salmon fishermen, the present year is one of the poorest seasons for fishing that the men have ever struck, says the Grants Pass Courier. Catches are small and two or three of the boats have discontinued the business for the present. Mr. Gething states that up to the 12th of the present month the run of salmon had been very light at the mouth of the Rogue, while on the Umpqua conditions were little or no better. During the dry weather the fish hover near the mouth of streams and a heavy storm is probably needed to send them on up the rivers.

Keeping Money Liquid

A little cash and a lot of credit keeps the industrial world moving today. For instance money deposited here at the First National Bank may be advanced in part toward a half dozen different kinds of development work in a year, where temporary relief of some kind is required.

One should aim to build up his own credit standing against the time when his need is greater than 'cash on hand.'
