Ye Smudge Pot
 By Arthur Perry

During the present cold spell it is permissible for gents wearing straw hats, to pack wazoo spokes, with which to knock the icicles off.
 In certain circles, people break limbs instead of legs, when hard luck hits them. To break a "limb" is a little more refined, but a leg is a leg, and the pain is the same. Personally, if a femur is ever busted, it shall be referred to, as "the lower member."

A number of citizens who though they looked cute in ice cream pants have reverted to winter britches, and loitering on the sunny side of the Nash thawing out.

A VERY NICE CONCESSION

 WANTED—Housekeeper, widow or girl twenty to thirty-five years of age, for family of four, one man with three girls age three to nine. Water and everything handy in house. Good stove to cook on and plenty to cook. You can work as long as you like. Address 6635, care

The Bolsheviks are now fighting among themselves, and it is about time the allies step in and put a stop to the slaughter, if it ever gets that far.

The city of Tacoma has an anti-flirting law, Yreka, Cal., is waging war on the slit skirt, and several other towns are suffering from an overdose of righteousness, which is worse than none at all. The homely people are all excused, and the good looking birds will procure blinders at once.

Man is an interesting cuss. For two weeks this colt, tried to give away the surplus 1916 issue of the Smudge Pot, with no success whatsoever.
 Friday a fiend in human form drifted in and stole all but six.

Scientists claim that whiskers are unsanitary, but this is not enough to overcome the luck of some people.

The poem below is reprinted by request, and was written in the days when it looked like, troops were going to be massed on the border, and flatten out Mexico.

Was busts loose in our own backyard,
 And maybe the call will come.
 To the fighting men of our own home town,
 To answer the fife and drum, Elmer Foss and Captain Vance, And the boys who lead at the fancy dance.

Off to the front and Mexico.
 Seldom Hill of the baseball game, That razzing pair—the Beveridge boys—Seeking fame in the cannon's flame,
 Along with the nifty Hobby Deuel, And Gunner Laidley fresh from school.

May you all come back who go away,
 But war is red and black and grey,
 And the hell of the game is simply this:
 Not all the Greaser bullets miss.

PRESIDENT WILSON'S MEMORIAL ADDRESS.

THE issue which President Wilson defined in his Memorial Day speech is the issue of idealism versus materialism. The question to be fought out in America is the question of whether the people as a whole believe in ideals as working principles of national faith, or don't believe in them.

President Wilson's interpretation of the world war and America's part therein is frankly idealistic. He reads into that clash of arms, a more significant clash of spirits. And he asks as a reward for our sacrifice, as a consecration of our victory, no territory, no treasure, no material advantage, but the reconstruction of the world on the basis of a higher humanity, a more inclusive brotherhood.

The great nations are not to ask,—does this pay, but is it right; not is this in our selfish interest, but is it in the interest of mankind? It is for such a world, the president maintains that America fought, and the "things that these men left us, though they did not in their counsels conceive it, is the great instrument we have just enacted in the League of Nations."

This will be answered in some quarters with a loud guffaw. So the doughboys went over the top shouting for the League Covenant and the 14 points! Piffle! They went over the top to give the Hun a beating. They did it.
 Now they want to get back home and mind their own business.

Of course. And in '61 the Yanks didn't drive into the Wilderness shouting for the Proclamation Emancipation, they went in to kill as many rebels as they could, end the war and get back home, but the fundamental spirit behind that drive was expressed by Abraham Lincoln.

So the fundamental spirit behind the world war is expressed by President Wilson. It is here in the realm of moral values, that the president is supreme, it is in the sphere of ideals, that his greatness will be enshrined.
 This translation of the conflict into terms of spiritual regeneration, may be delayed by a temporary reaction, but nothing can prevent its eventual triumph. When he speaks of a better world to be built upon the ruins, he speaks the truth, he truly reaches the soul of American aspiration.

Weekly Oregon Crop Report

PORTLAND, May 30.—The past week was generally favorable for fruit crops, cereals and hay crops, according to the weekly summary issued by the weather bureau here, based on reports from all parts of Oregon.
 The fore part of the week was bright and warm, the maximum temperature going above 90 degrees in many places. Toward the close of the week the weather was cloudy and moderately cool, with good rains west of the Cascade mountains and light showers over most of the remainder of the state. Light frost occurred in a few localities, doing no material damage. High, driving winds were a feature of the weather in localities. Farm work progressed rapidly. Aphides have appeared in small numbers in Marion county.
 Winter wheat, oats and rye are generally promising these crops have been benefited by rain in western counties but will need more moisture in central and eastern counties for proper filling. Winter wheat and oats are heading in most sections. Some rye is being cut for ensilage and hay. Until near the close of the week spring oats, wheat and barley were generally heading rain. This condition was relieved in the western counties at the close of the week, but drought continues over most of the central and eastern counties and in many cases spring grain is suffering. A considerable acreage of corn is being planted. Early corn is coming up well. Cultivation is in progress in Douglas county.
 The week was generally favorable for fruit crops. Drooping of prunes continues in some counties but has ceased in others. Peaches are being thinned in Lane county. Strawberries continue abundant in Douglas county and are ripening in Malheur county.

 Irrigated alfalfa is growing well. Alfalfa, clover, timothy and vetch have been benefited by rain in western counties, but elsewhere, where not irrigated, need rain. Some hay is being cut in western counties. Pastures have been revived by rain in western counties but elsewhere are drying rapidly, although there is still sufficient feed for stock. Lambing and shearing have been completed in most sections.
 Planting of potatoes made good progress and most of the crop has been planted. Early potatoes have made good growth. The warm spring weather of the early part of the week was helpful to gardens and in western counties they have been helped by rain, but elsewhere more rain is needed.

Spending Money Without Removing It from the Bank
 IN many instances a depositor of the First National Bank will draw a check to pay for something. The one who receives the check, being also a depositor, deposits it—and so on down the line. Now that's one of the ways money remains "liquid"—or in shape to spread over a great deal of ground.
 It's really a financial education in itself to carry a bank account.

Electric Range
 Your Pocketbook's Good Friend
 Time is money—food costs money.
 This Electric Range guards each as carefully as a bank watches your savings.
 It requires far less attention than any other range on the market. You can cook and take the children for a walk at the same time.
 Food shrinkage is appreciably less—the saving is at least 15 per cent. Dishes cooked electrically have a superior flavor of unusual goodness.
 Through the courtesy of B. W. Paul there will be a demonstration of the Hot Point Electric Range at Paul's Electric Store, corner Main and Central, beginning Monday, June 2, and continuing for one week. Do not miss this.
 You will learn something for the good of your pocketbook.
