AMERICA MUST SUCCEED GERMANY IN ITALIAN FIELD

ROME, May 15.—(Correspondence of the Associated Press.)—American influence in Italy must succeed German influence of pre-war days, American troops, machines and agricultural implements must replace the Teuton brands. American education must supercede Germanic education. The books from the shelves of libraries written in Italian to impress the Italian mind with Germany's greatness and superiority and German catalogues written in Italian must make room for new books written in Italian of America's greatness and catalogues of American houses in Italian to preach American trade and commerce.

This was the statement of Dr. William Charles White, of the Rockefeller Tuberculosis Foundation commission serving with the American Red Cross. Dr. White has conducted an exhaustive investigation of the educational system of Italy with a view of introducing into the schools the American system of hygienic instruction.

"We have found in the libraries throughout Italy, hundreds of books telling of German methods and German systems. The ramifications which Germany had in Italy to capture Italy's trade were enormous. It brought her results for, until 1915, she had a greater commerce with Italy than any other nation. "Knowledge of America where almost half a million Italians were annually before the war, of American methods and life are lacking in Italy while works on German education, can be found in great abundance."

come to congress asking only for a non-intoxicating beverages." Referring to President Wilson as "the greatest man in the world today," the speaker said organized labor had stood squarely behind him and was asking congress to do as much.

Women Are There

"Mr. Colpoys' speech was interrupted by the arrival of a delegation of women who, headed by a band marched directly to the speaker's stand. The crowd rose and gave "three cheers for the ladies."

The women were led by Mrs. E. Rooney of San Francisco, who at the invitation of the chairman mounted the speaker's table and announced she was the "first woman advocate of personal liberty in America."

Stampering her foot on the table and waving her parasol, she shouted amid cheering: "It will take a woman to put it across and you can bet your 'f's I'll go to the devil if I don't do it."

At a pause during Mr. Colpoys' address one of the delegates shouted: "Give him a drink."

The sally drew a laugh from the crowd and when Mr. Colpoys said a majority sentiment on prohibition was represented, "no matter what prohibitionists, who happen to have a seat on either end of this capitol may say" another delegate shouted: "Give them a taste; maybe they'd feel different about it."
