

FOOD RESOURCES OF PACIFIC OCEAN SHOULD BE USED

SAN FRANCISCO, June 23.—The available food resources of the North Pacific ocean are being utilized only in small part according to Professor John M. Cobb, director of the College of Fisheries, at the University of Washington, Seattle.

"There are in our Pacific coast waters, so far as known, more than 400 species of fish, several hundred species of crustaceans and mollusks and many species of marine algae. More than half of the species of fish are known to possess considerable food value, yet we do not utilize more than about 45 to 50 of them and of these 15 species are used to a very limited extent. Of the crustaceans about six species are used commercially, while of the mollusks only about eleven species are to be found in our markets.

"Many problems in connection with the best methods of preparing these for market will have to be solved before the majority of the species can be utilized, and these problems are being attacked in fisheries experimental laboratories established on this coast since 1916. A considerable part of the research work of the new College of Fisheries will be along these lines.

"An interesting problem for the bacteriologist and chemist is that of determining why the flesh of certain Chinook or King salmon should be white while the large majority are of the usual salmon color. This peculiar condition prevails from Puget Sound to Bering Sea, being practically unknown south of the Sound, and the proportion is from one-fourth to one-third of the catch. With these off-color fish the flesh is generally white, although occasionally one is found with flesh on one side white and on the other red, while a few have mottled flesh. As these white mottled fish do not bring the fishermen much more than one-fifth the price obtained for the red mottled fish, owing to the difficulty experienced in obtaining a market for them it inflicts a heavy financial handicap upon those operating in the regions affected.

The statement was dictated to a representative of the Tri-City Labor Review at San Quentin prison. Mooney issued the statement because of reports that there might be bomb explosions.

MILK IN BERLIN ONLY FOR SICK AND BABIES

BERLIN, June 24.—Authorities of Greater Berlin entrusted with the distribution of fats and milk declared in a communication to the Imperial food minister, that Berlin is now receiving only 200,000 quarts of milk daily, which is 133 quarts less than the city had a year ago. This, it is said, is sufficient only for children and the sick. The minimum required for the needs of those entitled to milk is about to collapse, say the authorities, who accuse the food ministry of failing to take proper measures to relieve the situation.

CLEMENCEAU WILL RESIGN SOON AS PEACE IS SIGNED

PARIS, June 24.—Premier Clemenceau has expressed his intention to resign from office as soon as the treaty is promulgated, feeling that he has accomplished the task for which he assumed the premiership, says Marcel Hutin in the Echo de Paris. It is expected that parliament would ratify the treaty late in July.

PARIS, June 23.—"We have waited 49 years for this moment," exclaimed Premier Clemenceau as he opened the dispatch announcing that Germany would sign the treaty, at the meeting of the council of three this afternoon. "For 49 years," he continued, "the mailed fist of the reitro (German trooper) who has governed Germany has menaced the world. Whether the man's name was Bismarck or William II, it was still the same reitro of the Middle Ages surrounded by soldiery and drunk with pride.

"Be careful; keep your powder dry. Be careful. Remind the world that it is living on a barrel of that powder.

"This reitro's dogma is that might is right, that a state's only obligation is its own interest, that treaties do not exist when they clash with the interest of a state, and get rich by any means. We know from witnesses who were at the side of William II that when he learned of the Sarajevo tragedy, he who posed as a keeper of the peace said: 'The hour has struck. Now we shall see what an army is.'

PARIS SEES GRAVITY PEACE TASK AHEAD

PARIS, June 24.—In such headlines as "Really peace at last" does the press of Paris express its relief at the formal end of the great war. Editorial writers embroider their text with comments in keeping with the principles professed by their respective newspapers, but none of the writers is entirely jubilant. Underlying all the comment is the feeling that the task which lies ahead is almost equal to that of winning the war.

GO NORTH YOUNG MAN AND JOIN THE U. S. ARMY

SAN FRANCISCO, June 24.—Major General John F. Morrison, commander of the western department of the United States army, said recently that if he were a young man and not in the service, he would enlist and apply for an assignment to an Alaska station.

"We are now recruiting a battalion of the 21st infantry to full strength so it can be sent north to relieve the United States guards stationed in Alaskan forts. I don't believe a young man could out in three years more profitably than in the army in Alaska.

"During that time he can become acquainted with conditions and when his term expires he will know right where to go to get in on the ground floor. Service in Alaska offers many advantages, among which is a 20 per cent increase in pay and a larger ration allowance."

The army has five forts in Alaska and usually one company of infantry is stationed at each fort.
