

STATE DOG TAX WILL BE TESTED IN SALEM COURT

SALEM, Feb. 5.—An injunction suit was filed today to restrain the county clerk of Marion county from enforcing the collection of the state dog tax of one and two dollars respectively for male and female dogs.

The law will be contested in the courts on the ground of conflicting with the city laws and the state law allowing dogs to be placed on the assessment rolls as personal property.

While Judge McCourt held the state law to be constitutional in a Portland case, it is stated that circuit courts generally do not pass on constitutional matters and if they did a majority of the circuit judges at Portland frankly say the law is unconstitutional.

All the pleadings and arguments in the Portland case are being brought to Salem and it is expected that Portland counsel for the state humane society will assist in the trial of the case at Salem. It will be watched with great interest and locally will be brought to trial by John Carson.
