If there is any truth in the old weather adage "If March comes in like a lion it will go out like a lamb" then the weather at the end of this month will probably be balmy and springlike, for today was stormy from 7:20 a. m. when it began to snow briskly, but the snow soon turned into wet flakes which melted almost as fast as they fell. Notwithstanding this stormy outlook the prediction from the San Francisco bureau is for fair weather for Tuesday. The rain from Saturday at 5 p. m. to 8 o'clock this morning only amounted to .10 of an inch.
